SENATE PASSES 11½ BILLION NEW DEAL BOND BILL

Inflationist Raps It as Inflation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The paradox of an inflationist arguing against the inflationary policies of the New Deal was the only disturbance created in the senate today when the bill to increase the government's borrowing powers by 11½ billion dollars came up and was passed. The measure had been passed by the house, so it is now ready for the President's signature.

Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], who believes the government should issue greenbacks instead of bonds and save the interest, pleaded in vain for a postponement of action, at least until the Supreme court decided the 69 billion dollar gold clause cases.

No Hurry, He Insists.

"There is no hurry about this measure," Thomas declared. "The Supreme court may decide the gold clause cases next Monday and we may have to pass a lot of new legislation. This would be a good vehicle to carry it through. I am confident that the court will sustain the government in those cases, but if it doesn't we'll be ready for action. If it takes a constitutional amendment, well and good. If it requires a statute, we'll have a statute."

The reference to a statute was interpreted to mean a law to increase the membership of the court so it could be packed with judges whom the New Dealers could rely upon.

Thomas assailed the government's fiscal policy as being more inflationary than anything ever proposed by the inflationists. He said the government was going deeper in debt to the tune of 5 billion dollars a year, and doing it by selling bonds and piling up fixed charges.

"Worst Kind of Inflation."

"I am against inflation, but I am trying to stop a tendency that's leading inevitably toward the worst kind of inflation," he declared. "From 60 to 80 per cent of the bank deposits are already tied up in government bonds. Now we are going to issue another 5 billion and the only customer is the banks. That will be absorbed by the banks, displacing 5 billion more of bank deposits. Next year it will be 5 billion more. How many years can that go on before the banks have no more money with which to buy bonds?

"If that time comes and the bonds go down and the banks start selling what will happen? There won't be any market and the banks will fail. Then where will we sell our bonds? We will start the printing presses. This printing of bonds is already in a process of uncontroled inflation of bonds."

"Billion Dollar Congress."

Thomas said the days of the so-called "billion dollar congress" were gone, that senators no longer thought in terms of billions. It's trillions now, he said. He arrived at his figure of a trillion by estimating the total public and private fixed charges, including interest, taxes and debts, that will have to be paid off in the next 30 years.

Senator Pat Harrison, [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, which reported out the bill, insisted that it was an emergency matter. He said the second Liberty loan act limited the cumulative bonding power of the government to 28 billions and that the treasury was not on the verge of that limit.

"It would be most unfortunate if the secretary of the treasury found himself unable, because of a law, to issue bonds," said Harrison.

The new law gives the government power to have outstanding at any one time a total of 25 billions in bonds. Since the total now is 13½ billions, the treasury can issue another 11½ billion. In addition, the treasury has power to borrow up to 20 billions on short term notes, bringing the aggregate limit up to 45 billions.

The new law also gives the treasury power to issue "baby bonds" in denominations of $25 to $10,000 for the small investors.

Carpenter Is Badly Twisted by State.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

(Pictures on Back Page.)

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—A young Swedish carpenter swore to an alibi for Bruno Richard Hauptmann at the latter's trial today for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the night of March 1, 1932.

He followed Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the defendant's wife, to the witness stand in Judge Thomas W. Trenchard's court. Both these defense witnesses placed Hauptmann in a New York City restaurant bakery on the night of the kidnaping.

But whereas Mrs. Hauptmann clung steadfastly to her story, Elbert Carlstrom, the carpenter, involved himself in so many contradictions under cross-examination that his testimony, in the opinion of most observers, was of little or no value to the man on trial.

Bruno Indulges in Tears.

Mrs. Hauptmann's testimony was marked by some studied dramatics from Hauptmann, who has changed remarkably since the trial began. Then he was consistently stolid and unemotional, maintaining the poker face he has cultivated. As the weeks have passed the defendant has lost his stoicism.

Thus, today when his wife spoke of his mother in Germany, who has always longed to see her son, Hauptmann bent his head, wiped his eyes bravely and then lifted his head again to eye his wife in the witness chair.

There was considerable argument along the press benches as to whether this was a bit of nice acting or the natural reaction of a kind hearted son. There were two schools of journalism on the subject.

Mrs. Hauptmann said her husband called for her at Frederickson's bakery and restaurant, where she worked as a waitress on the evening of March 1, 1932. They went home about 9 p. m., she testified, and Hauptmann did not leave his house that night.

Sure Bruno Is Faithful.

She also asserted a belief in her husband's fidelity, although she admitted she had entertained some slight doubt for a time concerning Hauptmann's friendship with Mrs. Greta Henkel, a buxom brunette whom he met at a bathing beach in the summer of 1932 when Mrs. Hauptmann was visiting in Germany.

"I wouldn't go to her house for a reason which I will not state here," she declared, but added, "Mrs. Henkel is a friend of mine just as much as she was a friend of my husband."

It apparently pained the German housewife to admit that she had never cleaned the top shelf of the broom closet adjoining her kitchen from November, 1933, until September, 1934, but she stuck to her story under cross-examination. It was on this top shelf, according to Hauptmann's story, that the shoe box left by his friend and partner, Isador Fisch, had lain during those months until he accidentally discovered it was filled with currency eventually identified as Lindbergh ransom money.

Never Saw the Box.

"I never saw the box," said Mrs. Hauptmann, "because I had no occasion to look up there."

She had quarreled with her husband about his stock market speculations, she admitted, but she had no reason to suspect that he had any source of income other than their savings over a period of years.

Under cross-examination she admitted that she had first told police she did not remember the night of March 1, 1932, nor if her husband had been with her. But when she later learned that March 1 was a Tuesday she became certain, she told the jury, of her alibi for her husband because he called for her every Tuesday in 1932 when she worked late in the bakery.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind," she concluded her testimony, "that my husband was with me that night."

But Carlstrom Wavers.

There was no doubt in Carlstrom's mind either when he was called as the next witness, but he was to be a very uncomfortable young man before the day was over.

On March 1, 1932, he testified, he was living in Dunellen, N. J. It was

Corn Fed Boy Has His Ideas, But So Has Pa

John Hendricksen, 19 years old, whose home is on a farm near Story City, Ia., settled his husky figure in a chair before Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan last night, and smiled. It didn't matter that his father, Nels Hendricksen, had gotten out a warant charging his son with taking $20 worth of corn from the 160 acre Hendricksen farm.

"Shucks," said John, laughing, "that's just pa's way of getting me home. Anyway, I was going back there in a couple of days."

But it wasn't his father's odd way of bringing a son home that amused John. It was John's ruse of running away from the farm to get "pa's" consent to John's marriage. And last night it appeared that Dad Hendricksen had finally been won around to the young man's point of view.

John Explains the Matter.

"You see, it's this way," said John to Chief Sullivan. "I'm the oldest kid in the family. Got three younger sisters. So I do all the chores, feeding 20 head of cattle, 120 hogs and about 500 chickens. Then there's the plowing and lots of other things.

"That's farm life, and I'm a farmer. But pa's got his ideas, and he's boss. I got my ideas too, but I ain't boss. So we have our spats, and he takes a poke at me once in a while.

"It was after our last trouble, when I was driving the big team and the lead horse grabbed the bit and swung through our ten foot gate, taking off a pole, that I got another of my ideas. Pa smacked me, and that night I told him I wanted to get married and have my own place."

He and Henrietta Keul of Des Moines were that way about each other, John explained. Pa thought Henrietta was all right, too, the one visit she made to the farm. Pa even bought her a dress.

"But pa wanted me to keep on doing the chores, and I said I'd be hog-tied if I would. So I high tailed away from home."

John made the 50 mile trip to Des Moines and saw his girl. "I ain't exactly calling her my fiancée," he added, "but I asked her how she'd like to get married in the spring, and she said yes."

Then John came on to Chicago and stopped at the home of his father's cousin, W. C. Jorgensen, 6537 South Lincoln street. He wrote home and told the folks that he would be here until pa agreed to let him get married.

He Hears from the Family.

"Well, first, ma wrote me," continued John. "She said she had her old diamond ring fixed up and I could have it if I would give it to Henrietta. Then my sisters wrote me. And just the other day I got a letter from pa.

"He said that Fred Bucholtz, a neighbor of ours, had given his daughter, Mildred, $100 for a wedding present. Pa said he knew some one else who could have $100. So I was all set to go back there and get grandpa to give me a piece of his farm for my own and bring Henrietta over. But I guess pa got a little anxious about me coming home, so he sent word to you policemen here to run me in."

John was served with the warant at Jorgensen's home. He will be held here until the arrival of an Iowa deputy sherif to take him home.

"But I never took the $20 worth of corn, like pa said," declared John. "He just had to say something to get that warant."

Judge Floors Wife Beater; He'll Be Good

Vincentown, N. J., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Recorder William H. Grady of this town is a mild man of 175 pounds and the age of 50. But he has the Grady inclinations.

Haled before him today was John Senski, 30 years old, a 190-pound laborer. The warant had been issued on the complaint of Senski's wife, Elizabeth, who complained that her husband had beaten and kicked her and had thrown their son, John Jr., 7, violently against the wall.

"Well, now, what was I to do?" Recorder Grady said. "He had pleaded guilty to the charge. He admitted it was not the first time he had beaten his wife. Out here in the anthracite fields, when these fellows get through work, they say, 'Let's go home and throw the old woman around a bit.'

Had No Good Reason.

"When I asked him why he had done it, he couldn't give an adequate reason except that his wife and child deserved a beating every once in a while. 'Well,' I thought to myself 'should I fine him the $1,000 stipulated by law? He'd never pay that in his lifetime. Then he'd have to go to jail for a year in default of the fine.

"'Well,' I thought, 'I might have him withdraw his guilty plea and then I could hold him in bail for the action of the grand jury and get rid of the whole business like that.' But I knew that Senski couldn't post bail of 5 cents, so he'd have to be locked up until the grand jury meets and that ain't till April.

"'So, your wife and child need a licking now and then, eh?' I asked Senski, and he says, 'Sure.' 'And so do you,' I told him, and then I let him have it.

Just Slapped Him.

"I was easy. I just slapped him."

"How many times did you hit him, judge?" the recorder was asked.

"O, quite a few times."

"Did Senski fall down?"

"Yes, he fell down, but he got right up again; that is, every time except the last time. He sat on the floor a few minutes while I told him he ought to be ashamed of himself. He promised he wouldn't do it again. And, you know, I don't think he will."

Recorder Grady retired from engineering three years ago after assisting soviet Russia with its five year plan. He was expelled from that country in 1931 when his wife, Mrs. Eva Garrette Grady, made some cracks at communism in a series of magazine articles called "See Russia and Die—Laughing."

$250,000 Suit by Architect in Willett Case

As an outgrowth of the lengthy litigation involving Howard Willett, wealthy teaming company executive; his wife, Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett, and Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, a suit for $250,000 damages was filed late yesterday in the Superior court by Edmund R. Harris Jr., young Baltimore architect, formerly of Chicago.

Named as defendants are Willett, Mrs. Hall, Attorney Alice Greenacre, counsel for Mrs. Hall in a $1,000,000 suit for alienation of affections brought against her by Mrs. Willett, and Thomas Marshall, one time attorney for Willett and Mrs. Hall.

Based on Indictment.

A federal indictment charging Harris with attempting to extort $5,000 from Mrs. Hall by sending a threatening letter is the basis of the suit filed yesterday by Charles F. Rathbun of the law firm of Newby, Rathbun & Burditt. The indictment was dismissed Dec. 18 by Federal Judge John P. Barnes on motion of a defense attorney with the concurrence of the district attorney.

Harris charged that the four defendants conspired to damage his reputation after threats failed to coerce him into testifying for Willett and Mrs. Hall in their respective suits. The bill states that Harris was believed by the defendants to possess information which would help their cases.

The name of the young architect first appeared during the taking of depositions in the Willett divorce suit. At that time Dudley Crafts Watson, noted artist, and others testified there had been no misconduct between Harris and Mrs. Willett on a tour Watson conducted through Mexico in 1932. Willett had charged his wife with forcing him to leave home so that she might marry another man.

Charges Pursuit, Threats.

Subsequently, Harris' suit alleges, attorneys and private detectives posing as policemen followed him about the country, pursuing their campaign of "intimidation" to make him testify in both the divorce and the alienation of affections suit.

The latter was dismissed May 14, 1934, and Mrs. Willett was awarded a divorce a week later, after reaching an agreement with her husband.

Harris had been married on July 13, 1933, to the former Louise Lowndes of Baltimore. They left on a honeymoon cruise to the west coast. In October the grand jury returned an indictment alleging that Harris on Feb. 14, 1933, addressed a threatening letter from Melrose Park, Ill., to Mrs. Hall at 5490 South Shore drive. He was arrested as his boat docked in Los Angeles.

Harris has repeatedly denied any knowledge of the letter. At one time he obtained a federal writ protecting him from service in the two pending Willett suits.

TROOPS MOVE TO CRUSH KENTUCKY AUTO THEFT RING

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 31 (Thursday). —(AP)—Forty members of the Kentucky National Guard, Troop B, 123d cavalry, Lexington unit, left here at 12:10 a. m. today for Clay county to crush an auto theft ring.

Gen. Ellerbe B. Carter, in charge of the detail, said additional Guardsmen would be picked up in Richmond and the troops would reach Manchester about daybreak.

Gen. Carter said he had orders from Gov. Ruby Laffoon to declare martial law if necessary to quell a general condition of disorder in that section of southeastern Kentucky.

A man who had aided state police in the recovery of stolen cars has been missing from Clay county for the last three weeks, Gen. Carter told the Lexington Herald.

KEHOE ADMITS HIRING RENNER IN BUS STRIKE

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

For more than five hours yesterday Joseph J. Kehoe, recording secretary of the street car men's union, sat on the witness stand in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers and told a jury his version of his activities in the strike against the Chicago Motor Coach company. Defending himself on a charge of murder, Kehoe insisted that he had never sanctioned the violence in the strike which occurred last August and September.

He admitted that he had hired Earl Renner, who has confessed leading a north side gang in window smashing forays against the buses, but asserted that he did not know of the terrorism and had instructed Renner only to protect the strikers. Kehoe admitted also that he had left town before the murder indictment was returned against him. He said he was justified in doing this because he "didn't want to be pushed around" and was awaiting full developments.

Kehoe's cross-examination will be concluded this morning and he will undergo a brief redirect examination by the defense. William Taber will follow him to the stand. The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

Denies Knowing Killer.

Kehoe and Taber, financial secretary of the street car men's union, are on trial charged with abetting the slaying of James J. Kelly, a bus company dispatcher. Kelly was fatally wounded Sept. 26 in a street car at Cicero and Grand avenues. Kehoe declared that he did not know Albert Semple, a roofer, who has confessed the actual slaying and has testified for the state.

Kehoe's story on direct examination was a recital of his career in the union and his efforts to aid the striking bus drivers, who belong to a union affiliated with his. On cross-examination, First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley hammered at Kehoe's story, attempting to show that the defendant must have known and sanctioned the violence, and therefore was responsible for the resultant murder.

Firm Under Questioning.

Kehoe remained firm under the prosecutor's questioning, categorically denying every action that might implicate him.

At times the cross-examination almost developed into a personal quarrel as Kehoe declared that he had not gone to the state's attorney's office after the murder because he was afraid of Crowley's reported "hostile attitude."

Kehoe, who is 54 years old, lives at 1424 North Mason avenue. He is married and the father of two children. He was calm on the stand and his testimony was given in a low, precise tone. His thinning gray hair and eyeglasses contributed to a scholarly appearance. Of medium height and build, he wore a dark blue suit and tie.

KEHOE'S STORY OF STRIKE

Kehoe's direct examination, which occupied the entire morning session, was conducted by Attorney Michael Ahern. The witness said he was born in Chicago, received a grade school education while living with his aunt on a farm in Michigan, and became a street car conductor in 1904. In 1921 he gave up this position to become recording secretary of the union.

Among Kehoe's new duties were handling grievances of union members, negotiating wage contracts with the street car company, and establishing a relief fund for the members. This fund, made up of 1 per cent of the members' salaries and one-half of 1 per cent of the salaries of all other street car employés, has paid out $700,000, including a donation of $120,000 to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

Denies Renner's Story.

Questioned concerning his relations with Renner, Kehoe said he had known Renner's father, who was a street car employé until his death in 1916. He denied Renner's statement that he [Kehoe] had interceded for Renner when the latter was discharged for irregularities in his accounts while working as a conductor, although he said he might have suggested that

The examination continued, Ahern questioning, Kehoe replying.

Q.—What is the practice of one local of your Amalgamated union assisting another? A.—In the event of trouble all locals assist anywhere in the United States or Canada.

Q.—What were your activities in the bus strike? A.—The strike vote was taken late in July and the strike was called for July 29. At the request of the regional labor board it was agreed to postpone it while the government investigated. All members of the street car union were assessed 50 cents a month to pay benefits to the strikers while they were out of work. The strike was called Aug. 16.

Tells of Picketing.

Q.—Was there any picketing? A.—The strikers and those of my union members out of work picketed.

Q.—Since the strike the Illinois Supreme court has held that picketing is legal, but at that time, did you think any pickets might be arrested? A.—Well, I authorized drawing $5,000 from the Street Car union treasury to provide bonds for those arrested. I was fearful a blanket injunction would be issued against the strikers. It was issued.

Q.—Did you receive reports of the slugging of strikers after Aug. 16? A.—Yes. I heard, too, that the police were protecting the bus sluggers instead of the pickets.

Kehoe then told of Renner coming to his office on Aug. 18, and related conversations that ensued at this time and at later meetings.

Asked to Help Strikers.

"I had not sent for Renner. He came of his own accord. He told me he had heard the strikers were being beaten and said he would like a job to help if he could by protecting the pickets.

"I told Renner I was not in any position to take protective measures, except by taking the matter up with city officials. William Quinlan, president of the street car men's union; Taber, Ralph Stoltzman [president of the union which called the strike], and Al Horan [chief bailiff of the Municipal court] and myself went to see Police Capt. Ira McDowell and told him of the sluggings. McDowell said he didn't think the police were engaging in slugging but would investigate.

"I saw Renner again on Aug. 23. Again he came of his own accord. Our men still were being slugged. I asked Renner what he had in mind to protect them. He said he and John Bretschneider would drive around the boulevards and help out the men if they were being interfered with. I told him I would pay him and his men $100 a week to see our men got a little break. I said I wanted no violence and told him not to start anything.

"Against Our Policy."

"I told Renner it was against mine and the union's policy to employ him, but we had to protect our people some way. I asked him to get the automobile license numbers of bus company sluggers."

Kehoe's next conversation with Renner was on Aug. 30, the witness continued. He gave Renner another $100 at that time. Renner gave him four license numbers, Kehoe stated, and said he had prevented several "trimmings" and assured him there had been no violence. Renner received another $100 on Sept. 7, at which time he declared he had been unable to find James Guangi, a bus company employé who is alleged to have beaten strikers and car union men.

"In the meantime," Kehoe testified, "I had received reports that none of the pickets knew Renner and that he and his men were hanging around saloons and gambling houses with the money I had given him. I asked Renner about this on Sept. 14 and he said he had saved several men from beatings.

Ends "Deal" With Renner.

"I declared that if he had saved only one man the money I had given him was well invested, but I believed he had not done it. He begged for a few dollars and I gave it to him and told him it was the end of our business."

Kehoe then denied categorically that he had ever told Renner to smash bus windows or engage in other violence and that he had aided or abetted in the slaying of Kelly.

"What was your reaction to the breaking of bus windows?" Attorney Ahern inquired.

"It was something I and the union didn't want," Kehoe replied. "We felt any violence would endanger our lives. A strike can't be won unless public sympathy is on our side and violence would lose that sympathy for us. I discussed the violence with all the union officials and told Stoltzmann to discourage it."

Only "Heard" of Slee.

Kehoe denied that he had ever had any conversation with Lloyd Slee, leader of the south side gang of vandals during the terrorism, or that he had introduced Slee to Renner.

"Taber told me early in September that Slee was working for Stoltzmann," the witness stated.

Kehoe said that he was in Pittsburgh when the indictment was returned against him on Oct. 11. He conferred by telephone with Attorney Ahern and, on Ahern's advice, came back by airplane Oct. 18. He surrendered on this day and was in custody until Oct. 24 when he was released on bond.

"When you went to Pittsburg had you intended to come back?" Ahern asked.

"Yes," the witness answered, "but I had made up my mind to stay away until things had developed fully."

13 YEAR OLD MOTHER NEVER TO SEE BABY, HER FAMILY ORDERS

Denver, Colo., Jan. 30.—(AP)—A 13 year old unwed mother is never to see the seven pound baby boy born to her Monday.

Relatives of the child mother gave orders at the hospital today that the girl, "never under any circumstances is to see her child."

The mother of the girl said the baby will be offered for adoption through the Children's Aid society.

The father of the infant, John W. Brewer, 43, is serving a 20 year sentence in prison for assaulting the girl.

QUIZZED ON 'FLIGHT'

Beginning the cross-examination, Prosecutor Crowley wanted to know why Kehoe had left town before the indictment was returned against him on Oct. 11.

"I was afraid of what might happen to me," Kehoe said. "I'd heard of your hostile attitude toward us. I don't remember who told me of it."

"Weren't you afraid after you heard that State's Attorney Courtney had declared that even if you were a good friend of his, you couldn't go around shooting people?" Crowley asked.

"I hadn't heard that," the witness replied. "I had stayed at loop hotels and finally left town because there were threatening telephone messages coming to my home."

The prosecutor then brought out that Kehoe had paid Renner from his own pocket and expected to be reimbursed from the union treasury. Kehoe admitted that the union never had authorized by resolution the hiring of Renner, and he had never informed law enforcing officials of it.

"You state that Renner was employed only to prevent slugging of strikers?" Crowley continued. "How was he to do it? Was he to attack the bus employés that you say were out molesting the strikers?"

"If he was slugged, he might," Kehoe answered.

Street Car Union's Attitude.

Crowley next wanted to know whether William Quinlan, head of the street car men's union, had said he "wanted no part in the strike."

"Quinlan had just as much interest as any of us in wanting to carry the strike to a successful conclusion," the witness asserted.

"Don't you know who broke all the windows in the buses?"

"No, I don't."

"Didn't you tell Renner to use sling shots [to fling stones against the buses] and tell him to help the south side gang, led by Lloyd Slee?"

"I never heard anything about sling shots until months afterwards. I had no contact with Slee."

Kehoe admitted that the union was defraying the expenses of counsel for all of its members indicted in connection with the strike violence.

SURVEY SHOWS NEW SHIFTS IN CITY POPULATION

The depression did not halt the tendency of Chicago citizens to move from the congested districts of the city to the outskirts, it was disclosed yesterday in the report on a survey made by Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt.

Mr. Hewitt had an analysis made, by wards, of the census figures taken last year by relief workers as compared with official census figures for 1930. The analysis is to be used as a basis for more efficient assignment of street cleaning forces.

Although the relief census showed the city's population had dropped 117,910 below the 1930 total, eleven of the city's wards had increases. All of these except one, the Third, in the midst of the densely settled south side, are classed as outlying residential districts. These ten wards which increased their population are the Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Nineteenth, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth, Forty-first, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, and Fiftieth.

HARMONY PLAYS ONE NIGHT STAND AT COUNTY BOARD

But Curtain Rings Down in Last Act.

The county commissioners had a preliminary budget meeting yesterday. Chairman Maurice F. Kavanagh of the finance committee presided, and the newly elected board head, President Clayton F. Smith, sat at his right.

It was a quiet, peaceful meeting—up to the point of adjournment. Everybody spoke in well modulated tones during the session, as Deputy Controller Michael J. O'Connor unfolded the financial aspects of the budget task before them. Some of the commissioners were new. But all were reserved and polite, and some asked intelligent questions of Mr. O'Connor, who is familiarly known as "Kail."

Just a Big, Happy Family.

As President Smith arose and expressed gratification over the friendly atmosphere which was prevailing, reporters were comparing the peaceful session with the stirring board sessions of recent years. Mr. Smith took occasion to remark that there were to be no mysteries or secrets so far as running the county was concerned. It was to be another of those big, happy families.

"There'll be no secrets on this board, and no mysteries so far as I am concerned," said President Smith. "There isn't anything I'm hiding, and I don't intend to put anything over. We want the utmost harmony on the board, and we want everything to see the light of day.

"All meetings will be in the open, and open to everybody. I'll not be a dictator of any kind. I'm just one of the board, and commissioners can talk to me any time."

Peace, Quiet; and Then—!

Facing Chairman Kavanagh and President Smith, from the other end of the long table in the finance committee room, sat Miss Mary McEnerney, a reelected Democratic member of the board. Commissioner McEnerney arose.

It was all well to talk of harmony, she remarked icily, but should like to have some one explain just why the finance committee, which for years had been composed of all the fifteen members of the board, had been surreptitiously reduced to only seven members. And why, she demanded further, are good Democrats excluded and Republicans included.

"There was no good reason at all in cutting down the committee to seven members," said Commissioner McEnerney, the resentment in her rising voice increasing. "No reason at all. I'm told it was cut down because for the last four years we couldn't get quorums.

For 4 Years, a Nice Board.

"That's not so. We had a nice board for four years, and when we had quorums it was because the four women members were on the job. The committee had a quorum most of the time. Mr. Smith was misinformed. If we are to have any feeling of coöperation, we better rearrange the committees, and not have a lot of us sitting around like a bunch of stoughtonbottles."

[Stoughtonbottles, she explained later, was a good old word meaning worthless bottles or dummies.]

"But you were called in on the matter of choosing the committee," broke in Chairman Kavanagh.

"I was," retorted the woman commissioner, "and I was very properly squelched. The committees had been picked a month before I was called in. I'm darn good and sore about it. You even went to work and cut us out of a good committee room and stuck us in here where it's dark and you can't see anything."

"You weren't here half the time in the last four years," Commissioner Dan Ryan chided gently.

"You weren't either," flung back Miss McEnerney.

"I was here save when I was sick," retorted Ryan.

"I was here except when I was sick, too," rejoined Mary. "The gossip around this county building is that you don't want women on the committees. I feel like a little child that's been thoroughly spanked."

Commissioner McEnerney was still talking as Chairman Kavanagh adjourned the session to tomorrow morning.

CORNER DRUG STORE LURES ONE-QUARTER OF THOSE THAT PASS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Fully one-fourth of all pedestrians in large cities drop in at the corner drug store on their way to or from work, the commerce department concluded today on the basis of a survey in St. Louis.

Twenty-six of every 100 pedestrians approaching six stores studied, all but one of which were situated on corners having street car or bus stops, entered during the day. Fluctuations during the day and night ranged from one customer for every 1.9 pedestrians, to one customer for every 7.3 persons who approached the stores.

The survey indicated that people were least likely to buy when intent on other interests. When adults were going to work and children were en route to school, one customer out of every 7.3 pedestrians entered the stores.

PATMAN FIGHTS DELAY ON BONUS; LECTURES LEGION

Says Leaders Turn Toward Vinson Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Resentment over the shelving of inflationary legislation for the payment of the bonus boiled over into the floor of the house today.

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], chief exponent of the plan to start the printing presses for immediate payment of veterans' adjusted service certificates in greenbacks, inveighed against American Legion leaders and the house ways and means committee for the delay.

Bond Sale Is Proposed.

Another bill, sponsored by the Legion leaders and introduced by Representative Fred Vinson [Dem., Ky.], would raise the money to pay the bonus through a sale of bonds. Either way it would cost 2 billion dollars and the administration is opposed to immediate payment.

"The Vinson bill does not represent the feelings of the delegates to the Legion convention at Miami," Patman asserted.

"As I understand it, the Patman bill has been approved by the rank and file of the Legion," said Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.].

"Yes," replied Patman, "the nation has been sold on the bill, and so has the congress. The Patman bill would not create any new debt, while the Vinson bill would add to the debt by the issuance of tax exempt, interest bearing bonds.

Votes Earlier Pay Restoring.

Earlier the house agreed to the senate amendment providing for the restoration of pay cuts to federal employes on April 1 instead of July 1. Chairman James Buchanan [Dem., Tex.] of the house appropriations committee stated that the restoration for the three months would cost the government $22,500,000.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [Dem., Va.], a member of the appropriations committee, suggested that an efficiency staf be created to weed out needless expenditures.

Snell Raises Objection.

"I cannot understand how this committee could bring in a bill providing for the expenditure of nearly five billion dollars and not tell us what it's for," Minority Leader Bertrand Snell said, "and then find it necessary to examine the ordinary functions of government."

"The President asked congress to give him the instruments for putting 3,500,000 people back to work," Representative Woodrum retorted, "and we're going to put his program through despite the monkey wrench throwers."

WRITES 1934 FOR 1935; MAY COST A MAN HIS LIFE

It was an error that almost any one might make early in a new year—but it meant the difference between life and death today for Cecil Short.

An Appeals court had ordered Short electrocuted for the slaying of an aged Negro. Judge Nolan G. Williams, however, had decided to sentence Short to life imprisonment in view of a commutation from Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, former governor.

Today Judge Williams obtained a copy of Mrs. Ferguson's proclamation. He ruled the error in date voided the document.

Short was sentenced to die March 8.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—A plan of the government to use part of the proposed 4 billion dollar work relief fund to go into the gasoline filling station business and rent or sell houses along "self-liquidating" highways was disclosed yesterday as members of the senate appropriations committee continued their scrutiny of the bill.

Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.] revealed on the floor of the senate that the work relief scheme contemplates putting the government in the filling station business. This was borne out by the testimony of Rear Admiral Christian Joy Peoples, treasury procurement officer, before the appropriations committee. Admiral Peoples also told of the plan to buy land along federal highways, so the government could improve it with houses for rent or sale.

See Long Senate Course.

Other developments, including a searching interrogation of the witnesses for the administration, indicated that the bill will have a long and tortuous course through the senate. There was growing sentiment among members of the appropriations committee to separate the bill into two parts, so that the $80 million dollars needed for immediate relief purposes could be passed at once and the senate could take its time with the extraordinary measure giving the President unlimited powers to spend 4 billion dollars as he sees fit.

The first amendment to the bill was introduced in the senate by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.]. His amendment would substitute inflation of the currency up to 4 billion dollars, as needed for the proposed bond selling plan of financing the undertaking. Wheeler, a silver inflationist, said this would save the government the money it will have to pay in interest on the bonds.

Admiral Explains Plan.

When Admiral Peoples was asked before the appropriations committee what kind of self-liquidating projects the government planned to spend the four billion dollars on, he mentioned highways. The senators did not understand how highways would be self-liquidating and the witness told about the filling stations.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [Dem., Wyo.] took up the questioning:

Q.—Is it contemplated that you would derive any income from that? A.—The gasoline could be sold along the highways.

Q.—Would it be sold by the government? A.—By the government, yes, sir.

Q.—The government then would enter into competition with private concerns? A.—No, sir, because the retail distributors would not be located along the highways.

Parries Question.

"There is another angle," said Admiral Peoples. "In connection with the rural projects, the highways could serve real estate which could be bought for the purpose of building homes along certain sections and these homes could be rented or sold to individuals."

Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] said he wondered whether this wouldn't lead to the government's taking over oil as a natural resource and whether the venture wasn't part of a general socialistic scheme for the government to operate all transportation, communications and natural resources, as well as going further and further into housing and other business enterprises.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], chairman of the committee, whose hearings are private, said Admiral Peoples and the other witness of the day, Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell, were "persistently catechised on theories and details."

"They gave answers which apparently were satisfactory to themselves and, I presume, to some members of the committee," added the caustic Virginian.

Questioned on New Powers.

The witnesses were questioned particularly regarding the vast powers which the bill delegates to the President and told to come back with estimated amounts they propose to spend on various classes of projects, such as rural electrification, rivers and harbors, highways, slum clearance, soil erosion, etc. They promised reluctantly, for President Roosevelt has made it clear that he wants no strings attached to the bill.

Senator Glass said he saw little hope of reporting the measure out in time for action by Feb. 10, when the relief funds on hand will expire. The only hope of meeting this emergency, it was said, lies in the possible segregation of the $80 million dollar cash relief provision from the main bill.

The committee discovered for the first time where this strangest New Deal measure ever to reach Capitol hill originated. Mr. Bell, the budget director, said it was prepared under his supervision. The witness thereby made himself a prospect for the "physical hanging" advocated for the author by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

Report Mrs. Coolidge Will Marry

Set for Spring?

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A Washington dispatch to the New York Daily News says that Mrs. Grace Coolidge will be married early next spring to Everett Sanders, one time White House secretary to the late Calvin Coolidge.

After the wedding Mrs. Coolidge will move from her Northampton, Mass., home to preside over the 500 acre Sanders estate in Maryland, says the report. Sanders was once chairman of the National Republican committee.

Mrs. Coolidge, who is now visiting at Slick Rock, Polk county, N. C., has previously denied reports that she will marry again.

Friends Won't Comment.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Friends of Mrs. Grace Coolidge, widow of former President Calvin Coolidge, today declined to comment on a report that Mrs. Coolidge was engaged to marry Everett Sanders, Coolidge's secretary while he was president.

A report that the Beeches, the estate purchased in Northampton by the Coolidges a year before the former president died, was for sale remained unconfirmed.

ORDERS SALE OF EDITH M'CORMICK ART TREASURES

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday entered an order authorizing the sale of a number of ecclesiastical art treasures of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick estate. Under the terms of the order, the items, for which the late Mrs. McCormick paid $25,000, are to be offered for sale for approximately $14,000.

Included in the collection is a Greek manuscript of the New Testament, said to be of 12th or 13th century origin, and more than ninety miniature paintings of the life of Christ and the saints.

The order was entered on the petition of the Chicago Title and Trust company, executor of the estate.

Democrat Revolt Is Called Significant Omen.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Official Washington buzzed today with discussion of the significance of the rebuff suffered by the President in the decisive rejection of the world court by the senate last night despite the overwhelming Democratic majority in that body.

The fact that 22 of the 69 Democrats in the senate deserted Mr. Roosevelt on this issue and that the President, with all his vast influence, was unable to halt the defection was interpreted by numerous Democrats as well as Republicans as the outward manifestation of a state of mind in congress that presages rough sledding for other features of the administration program.

Some even went so far as to suggest that the reverse sustained by the President indicates that the Roosevelt spell on congress and country has been broken at last.

Administration Ridicules Idea.

Administration leaders pooh-poohed such theories, asserting that the world court was an issue that cut across party lines, setting aside all considerations of party loyalty. They declared it no more symptomatic of revolt against the President on the remainder of his program than were the two major reverses met by Mr. Roosevelt in the last congress—the defeat of the St. Lawrence treaty and the overriding of his veto of the increased benefits for veterans.

The first test of these divergent views will be afforded by the action of the senate on the 5 billion dollar work relief bill conferring on the President the powers of a dictator. This measure, now pending in the senate appropriations committee, has drawn fire about equally from Democrats and Republicans.

Mr. Roosevelt himself was far from downhearted over the incident. At his press conference today he was bubbling over with good humor as usual and declined to be drawn into any discussion of his senate defeat. He said he had written a note to Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], majority leader of the senate, expressing his appreciation of the able and honorable fight the senator made in behalf of the court.

Was Pinch Hitter.

Incidentally in this connection it is worth noting that Senator Robinson led the fight for the court because Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, upon whom the responsibility logically devolved, felt unable to put his heart into the undertaking. He voted for the court, but made no argument for it. So the President asked Senator Robinson to take on the task.

That the court issue is dead for the remainder of this congress at least was universally conceded and Senator Robinson opined that it is disposed of indefinitly. Elihu Root, coauthor of the defeated protocol, and former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker asserted, however, that the proponents of the court will be only spurred to greater endeavors.

In many quarters the view was expressed that the vote faithfully reflects the widespread popular reaction against American participation in European affairs that has taken place in this country since the senate by an overwhelming majority approved the world court resolution in 1926 with five reservations.

Public Opinion Changed.

"Foreign nations have not treated us as they should and there is no reason why we should submit to their diplomatic whims," said Representative A. J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.].

Particularly significant of the changed attitude toward the court was the brief speech made by Senator William J. Bulow [Dem., S. D.], just before the vote in the senate last night. It was the first time Mr. Bulow had addressed the senate in his four years in that body.

H. J. HORNE, WAR HERO, ATHLETE, WINS A DIVORCE

Harry J. Horne, 45 years old, 335 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, won yesterday a divorce from Mrs. Ethel Horne, 37 years old, of Austin, Minn. Judge Francis B. Allegretti of the Superior court granted the decree to the former University of Chicago football player on grounds of desertion, but allowed his wife to retain custody of their child, James, 12 years old.

Horne gained three citations during the war for bravery in action. Since his discharge, he has had ten major operations because of war injuries. Adjudged 88 per cent disabled, he received a veteran's pension of $49 a month.

Mrs. Horne's cross bill for divorce was dismissed by Judge Allegretti. He pointed out that her plea that she could not find her husband was absurd, since practically all his time since leaving the army has been spent in hospitals.

INVALID JEWELER SHOT IN HOLDUP DEFENDING WIFE

Frank Jansky, 64 years old, owner of a small jewelry store at 2137 South Pulaski road [Crawford avenue], whose left side is paralyzed, was shot by robbers yesterday while defending his wife from them.

Jansky was showing some February birthstones to a supposed customer when another man entered, flourished a revolver and knocked the invalid storekeeper to the floor. The "customer" then went to the Jansky living quarters in the rear to subdue Jansky's wife, Antonia, 58 years old. Her screams brought the second robber to his companion's aid.

While the two were manhandling Mrs. Jansky her husband managed to draw a revolver from his pocket. He was unable to rise but fired on the assailants. The bullet went wild. One of the robbers promptly shot the fallen man in the cheek. Both fled without loot. At the County hospital Jansky's condition was declared grave.

ICKES FAVORS BUILDING LINK BRIDGE ON DRIVE

Money to Come from Work Relief Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, head of the federal public works administration, was reported today as favoring completion of the outer drive link bridge in Chicago through the proposed four billion dollar work relief program of the administration.

That the $6,878,000 needed to complete the span at the mouth of the Chicago river be obtained from the huge fund was suggested by Mayor Kelly shortly after President Roosevelt's message on the subject was delivered to congress.

The attitude of Ickes toward the plan was described by Michael L. Igoe, congressman at large from Illinois, and James McAndrews, congressman from the Lincoln park district. They conferred at length with Ickes on the bridge proposition.

"Favorable to Project."

"The secretary is favorable to the project," said Igoe, "and he is in hearty accord with the plan to build the bridge from the new work relief funds."

Igoe said that Ickes pointed out two hurdles. They were the passage of the measure in the senate—it already has passed the house—and the offering of adequate collateral by the Chicago park district for the advance of the federal funds.

Passage of the work relief bill is admitted a foregone conclusion because of the overwhelming Democratic majority in congress.

In connection with collateral, Igoe said that the Illinois general assembly could provide ample bonding power for the park district that would be well within the statutory limit of 5 per cent.

Attitude Draws Fire.

The attitude of Ickes toward the Chicago bridge has drawn fire from many sources in the past. Funds to complete the span were allocated by the PWA last winter, but six months later Ickes abruptly withdrew them with the announcement that the security offered by the Lincoln park board was not sufficient.

Another bridge project upon which Ickes has been criticized is the triborough of New York.

26,000 AT PARTY FOR PRESIDENT; RAISE $30,000

Gay Throng Frolics at Ball in Stockyards.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The new International amphitheater at the Union stockyards, a structure large enough for an army corps, was the focus of Chicago's presidential birthday celebration last night. The great arched pavilion and its adjoining halls were well filled with Chicagoans in festive mood who came to look and to listen, to sample the numerous kinds of entertainment that the program offered, to dance to the music of many bands, and to follow President Roosevelt's fifty-third birthday anniversary address as it came through the sound amplifiers.

Advance ticket sales for the ball totaled 40,000, and 26,000 persons attended. The money taken in was estimated at between $30,000 and $35,000. An audit today is expected to give more accurate information on the amount raised for the fight against infantile paralysis.

At any rate, there were happy birthday wishers all over the place last night, all in a sentimental frame of mind, and all pleased by the veritable army of Chicago's professional entertainers rounded up to keep the revelers amused.

The leisurely frolic centered in the main exhibition hall, usually devoted to pedigreed horses and blue-ribbon stock. It was decorated attractively, and its expansive arena was covered with a dancing floor that looked as easy on the feet as any ballroom in town. The balconies and galleries were occupied by the average, regular citizens who turn out for these big jubilees in their everyday clothes. In boxes and tables around the edge of the dancing rink sat the dignitaries of the occasion in evening dress and committee badges; also a scattering of the folk who are rated in the "society" class.

Entertainment Widely Varied.

But while this ballroom assembly which came early, carefully held down its seats and listened to bands and singers, waiting for the important events of the program to begin, the second floor rooms of the building were filled with side-show throngs.

The north hall contained the barn dance troupe familiar to radio listeners, giving before gawking thousands the quaint folk-songs of the professionalized American peasantry. The south room offered a cabaret show that ranged from adagio dancers to vested choirs.

These north and south annexes were the carnival departments of the birthday party. Along the walls were stationed the many games of chance that are used at amusement parks and county fairs to separate amateur sportsmen and sportswomen from their loose change. Wheels were whirling and dice cages were rattling and guessing booths were in action, with barkers in attendance.

Bulk of "Profits" to Stay Here.

The profit from these enterprises, of course, went into the presidential birthday fund, 70 per cent of which stays in Chicago for the aid of infantile paralysis victims.

Often, in walking around this informal palace of patriotic and charitable whoopee, one noted a young woman or lad with a limp—the telltale mark of a childhood attack of paralysis. And why not? This was their party as well as the President's, with whom they have the kinship of a conquered affliction. Many went out on the floor as bravely as any unhandicapped dancer an the place and fox-trotted with the best of them.

The intensive portion of the commemoration began shortly before 10:30 o'clock. A parade and trooping of the colors was led by the Board of Trade post American Legion band, with Armour post and the Stockyards post assisting. Then came a solemn moment of spiritual dedication with the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," by Myron Duncan, tenor of the Chicago grand opera company.

The Happy Birthday Spirit.

After that the great crowd relaxed into birthday hilarity. The inevitable ditty of such occasions, "Happy Birthday to You," was struck up by the band and chanted by every one who thought he could sing. The effect was merry, informal, and spontaneous.

Then came the words of the absent guest of honor, speaking to the nation's birthday parties over a radio network and thanking his hearers not so much for himself as for the many afflicted men, women, and children who will be helped toward physical recovery by the proceeds from the unique event.

Then the party moved on into its lighter phases, which lasted until long after midnight. There was a vast amount of high grade professonal entertainment scattered among the three halls.

Artists of High Rank.

The cabaret bands of Art Jarrett, Jan Garber, Gus Arnheim, Wayne King, and Ferde Grofe played their favorite pieces. Numerous radio stars appeared in the flesh. The late stayers got the best of the show by seeing Earl Carroll's "Vanities" company, vaudeville acts from the Palace, Oriental, and State-Lake theaters, and performers from the French Casino.

At 2 p. m. yesterday in the city hall hundreds crowded about a 2,000 pound cake, eager for a glimpse of pretty Jane Eiszner, 21 years old, of Oak Park, who had been chosen queen of the stockyards ball. Miss Eiszner was selected from 150 typical Chicago working girls to reign last night over the 26,000 dancers.

The cake brought $460 under the hammer of Auctioneer P. A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman. The first slice was bought for $100 by City Controler Robert Upham in behalf of Mayor Kelly, who is in Florida.

The second slice was purchased for $75 by Mr. Nash, the third for $35 by Joseph Gill, city clerk, and the fourth for $25 by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey.

Chicagoans Send Greetings.

Parties with recitations and songs were held by Chicago's 480,000 school children in honor of the President. All the children signed a proclamation of confidence, which will be sent to Washington. They gave small sums to the crippled children's fund.

Various greetings were dispatched from Chicago organizations to the President. Among them was one from the Women's Symphony orchestra in behalf of the babies of the orchestra members. A percentage of the box office receipts of the concert on Feb. 10 in the Studebaker theater was promised the fund.

Warm Springs Children Aided by Parties

ROOSEVELT FORWARDS BIRTHDAY GREETING TO WOMAN REACHING 103

Punxsutawney, Pa., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Michaels, 103 years old today, received congratulations from an illustrious American also observing his birthday—the President of the United States.

To the woman, born in the wooded hills of western Pennsylvania, the President, himself 53 today, wrote:

"I am very happy indeed to join your friends in extending hearty congratulations and best wishes to you."

Mrs. Michaels spent the day cheerfully. Although her eyesight has become dimmed, she enjoys good health.

"I can still get about, and I'm sure I'm stronger and more vigorous at the start of my second century than I was at the first," she said.

Many of her friends visited her, among them some of her 160 living descendants. She has two sisters, Mrs. Amanda Hartnett of Chicago, who is 101, and Mrs. Matilda Michaels of Curwensville, Pa., who is 93.

U. S. DUCHESS SUES FOR LIBEL OVER A CARTOON

Wants Name Cleared, She Tells Court.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The American born Gladys Marie Deacon, duchess of Marlborough, appeared in civil court today to press a suit for alleged libel over a cartoon which appeared in Hooey, an American monthly magazine. After consultation among the lawyers it seemed possible tonight that the suit might be settled out of court with apologies from the defendants, although Lord Chief Justice Hewart hinted that criminal action might be advisable.

The cartoon, which the duchess said "worried me to death," showed two roses in a garden bending toward each other, with a castle terrace in the background. Under it was the caption: "I guess we should not have planted the duchess of Marlborough and the Rev. H. Robertson Page in the same bed."

Recall Dispute with Mate.

It appeared in the November, 1933, issue after there had been certain differences of opinion between the duke, who died last June, and the duchess. These differences were settled after receiving publicity, as her counsel pointed out in court.

The duchess is the daughter of Edward Parker Deacon of Boston, Mass. She married the duke of Marlborough, whose name is pronounced "Maulbro," in 1921 after his first wife, who was Consuelo Vanderbilt, daughter of William K. Vanderbilt of New York, and who is now Mrs. Jacques Balsan, obtained a divorce.

The defendants are Gorringes Travel and News agency, sole distributors in England for Hooey, and three other firms alleged to have sold the magazine.

Duchess Demanded Apologies.

The duchess' counsel said that apologies had been demanded, but none had been made. The defense seemed to be, according to her counsel:

"We do not agree that these words and illustrations constitute libel, but if they do we were merely innocent disseminators of it and therefore in any event we are not liable."

Nattily dressed in a black coat with a rich fur collar, the duchess testified that she had led an exclusive, secluded life and had been brought up with strong religious views. As a result of the cartoon, she said, she heard comments from people she was accustomed to meet.

"They wondered what I had done,' she said. "The comments were going on for months afterward. I was worried to death by it."

Counsel for Gorringes produced a letter which her lawyers had written the defendants saying that she had no desire to make money out of a "scurrilous lampoon," and asked if her intention remained the same—that is, simply to clear her name.

"I have come here to ask for justice," the duchess replied.

She said the fact that Gorringes had apologized and undertaken to withdraw all copies of Hooey never was brought to her attention, but that it would not have changed her decision to sue.

"The circumstances necessitated full publicity because I had to clear my name," she added.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy drove to Chicago yesterday from Omaha, where he has been in command of the 7th corps area. He will command here the 6th corps area, of which he was assistant chief of staf in 1920 and 1921.

The general expressed pleasure at his return to Chicago and said his first tasks were to arrange living quarters and to acquaint himself with the problems of this army area. He went to the home of friends.

Gen. McCoy is known as the army's diplomat. While Gen. Leonard Wood was governor general of the Philippine Islands Frank McCoy was his aid. President Coolidge assigned Gen. McCoy to supervise a Nicaraguan election. In 1929 he was a member of the Pan-American conciliation commission on the Chaco dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay. He served also in the group which investigated Japan's occupation of Manchuria.

A West Point graduate, McCoy was appointed a second lieutenant in 1897. He served on the Mexican border and in France. He was married to Miss Frances Field Judson of New York in 1924.

ROOSEVELT, 53, THANKS U. S. FOR HAPPY BIRTHDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the close of a pleasant and busy day, tonight thanked the American people for giving him a happy birthday in furthering a campaign against infantile paralysis.

It was the second of his 53 anniversaries that he spent in the White House. It was also the second on which his fellow citizens joined in 7,000 birthday balls throughout the American commonwealth for victims of the disease which visited him.

In a radio talk during the balls he recalled the practical factors that have been built up in the fight against the disease. The first he described as the Georgia Warm Springs foundation.

Tells Other Objective.

"The other objective, long dreamed of, receives tonight, its greatest incentive," he continued. "In every part of the nation funds are being raised to give better care to crippled children within or near to their own community.

"Seventy per cent of your generous contributions go to these local needs. The other thirty per cent go, not to the Warm Springs Foundation, but to a distinguished committee to be allocated by this committee for the furtherance of research into the cause, the prevention and the treatment of infantile paralysis.

"I need not tell you of my own deep personal happiness that my birthday is being made the occasion for aiding this splendid work. I wish that I might be with each and every one of these parties and entertainments in every state in the country."

The President said he was also made happy by thousands of letters and telegrams received during the day. To the senders he extended his gratitude and to all helping crippled children his "thanks and best wishes."

He concluded with: "I like this kind of a birthday."

Gifts Deluge White House.

During the day tens of thousands of gifts, letters, cards, and telegrams showered into the White House. They came from crowned heads, dictators, other rulers, and humble citizens. So rapidly did bulging mail sacks disgorge gifts and greetings that the White House staf was swamped. It was estimated that the total for the week exceeded the record breaking 250,000 of last year.

Gifts were examined by secret service men in the basement of the executive offices before being carried up to the President. There were dozens of birthday cakes, the largest one being 125 pounds. The gifts varied from freaks of nature to personal adornments.

The birthday began with the receiving of greetings from White House newspaper men at his semi-weekly press conference at the beginning of the presidential day at 10:30 a. m. At the conference the President wore a new suit of gray tweed, with which he said he was marking the occasion.

With his characteristic smile he said that it was a good thing his birthday rolled around because he needed a new suit. The cloth was woven at Hyde Park, he added, so that by wearing it he patronizes local industry. A white rose in his buttonhole he ascribed to his assistant secretary, Stephen Early.

Confers with Aids.

After the press conference the President went on with a routine White House day. He conferred with Postmaster General Farley, No. 1 Brain Truster Rexford Guy Tugwell, Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of Labor Perkins, and various congressmen and department heads. All extended birthday greetings.

In the evening a family dinner marked the day. The President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, was absent as she attended three of the birthday balls in New York.

Shoulders Stick to Engine Fire Box, Worker Killed

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.—(AP)—John A. Capone, 25, whose job it was to kindle fires in locomotives at the repair shops of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, started a fire today and then opened the door to see how it was progressing. His head and shoulders stuck in the opening and when fellow workers found him he was dead.

Quiz Husband After Wife Dies in Burning Cabin

Arthur Rasmussen, 41 years old, was being held in Elgin yesterday for questioning in connection with a fire early in the day that destroyed his cabin just north of that city and burned to death his wife, Bessie, 43. Chief of Police Joseph Huber of Elgin said Rasmussen told him he had tried to carry out his wife, a semi-invalid, but was forced to flee from the flames.

700 GUARDSMEN AWAIT RETURN OF HUEY LONG

Legislative Puppets Are Ready to Act.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Louisiana awaits the return of its dictator tomorrow or next day with mingled emotions of fear, wonderment, and satisfaction. With the opposition forces driven underground and rumors of plots abroad, the next turn of events is a matter of speculation. Senator Huey Long is in complete control of the situation, with 700 troops waiting to protect him upon his reappearance in the capital.

The senator-king is reported on his way here from Washington for the reopening of the war upon his political enemies. His next move, it is considered highly probable, will be a drastic and thorough one, and legislators already are assembling in the capital to do the bidding of their chief. His safe arrival here is the first consideration. The senator's travels these days are attended with hazards and it may be necessary to patrol the streets and highways that he passes.

Reopen "Plot" Inquiry.

The first episode of the Long serial this week-end is to be the reopening of the hearing into the "murder plot" before Judge J. D. Womack, a Long appointee, which was postponed from last Saturday after the testimony of one Sidney P. Songy, a professional informer, had neatly caught Long's enemies in a conspiracy net. It is not certain that any more evidence will be adduced along this line, but the persons named by Songy, including prominent officials here, may be put on the pan and given a chance to explain. Then the whole record would go to the special session of the legislature, the fifth of the last few months.

This would be sufficient, according to all these legislative precedents, to give Long power to remove the offending officials from this and the adjoining parishes. When this order is attempted to be carried out, however, it will probably necessitate troop movements into these other towns, as the recalcitrant officials are sitting back in the country byways issuing threats, or saying nothing, which may be worse. A continued occupation by troops appears a strong likelihood.

May Call Convention.

The next step for the legislature, according to the program outlined here, is for the calling of a constitutional convention. This merely means that the legislators would call themselves by another name. They would become delegates. The same red and blue push buttons would be on their desks. They would adopt, it is predicted, some carefully contrived laws to give the Long machine greater political control over New Orleans, Shreveport, Alexandria and Monroe.

The cutting down of the number of parishes to about ten is said to be considered as one method of getting unwanted officials out of the way. This as a matter of economy already has been proposed by anti-Long groups and therefore could not be much in doubt.

Modification of the occupational license tax on oil refining, in accordance with the terms of a recent compromise reached between the senator and the Standard Oil company, would be another purpose of the legislative call.

HELPS WIFE GET DATES; SHE FINDS OUT ABOUT HIS

Charging that her husband, Alfred O. Till, apartment house manager, practiced what he preached, Mrs. Thelma G. Till, 4110 North Keystone avenue, was granted a divorce by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday.

Under questioning of her attorney, L. S. Arkema, Mrs. Till said her husband encouraged her to seek the companionship of other men. He even offered to provide the necessary money and to make dates for her if she was unable to find male companionship, she said.

"He was so liberal about it," she said, "that I investigated and found that he was going out with other women." She contended that her husband's liberality constituted cruelty and the court agreed with her. The couple were married in July, 1926, and have no children.

SECRETARY DERN EVADES QUERIES FROM LOUISIANA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Secretary of War George H. Dern today decided not to commit himself on a telegram from Charles Kilbourne of Baton Rouge, La., asking if anti-Long forces in Louisiana faced conflict with federal troops in the event the opponents of Senator Huey Long clashed with the Long dictated national guard.

Secretary Dern declined to comment on the telegram, but indicated he will refer it to the judge advocate general of the army for study. Officials of the war department said that their attitude is that the matter is one involving the Louisiana state government alone.

LONG REGISTERS COLORED VOTERS IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The number of colored residents being registered as voters in the parish of Orleans by R. J. Gregory, named by Senator Long as register of voters, is increasing at a tremendous rate. There was a big rush today. Heretofore it has been the practice so to examine colored citizens along educational lines that they were denied the right to vote. Now they are being registered with comparative ease.

Mr. Gregory said that the reason for so many registering is the abolishment of the $1 poll tax authorized at a recent special session of the legislature and recommended by Senator Long.

A marked change in political designation has also manifested itself in those registering, for the majority have declared themselves Democrats. When questioned by a reporter this morning concerning the change, several colored men attributed it to the fact that "the Democrats are trying to do more for us than the Republicans."

URUGUAY FINDS GENERAL, 80, IS REVOLT TARTAR

Veteran Rebel Leads Forces South.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Basilio Munoz, octogenarian veteran of Uruguayan guerilla warfare, emerged tonight as the chief obstacle in the way of President Gabriel Terra's efforts to quench the flames of revolt in South America's smallest republic.

Although the government claimed its troops were systematically squelching rebel bands active over the country in the last four days, Munoz, who has been fighting in political conflicts since he was 14, was reported moving southward in the Cerro Chato department.

Army scouting planes roaring over that region kept the government posted as to the movement of the insurgents under the grizzled Munoz, who has the title of general and is regarded as the military head of the movement.

One report reaching the capital said the forces under Munoz, variously reported to number from several hundred to 3,000, already had engaged in sharp skirmishes with troops in the Cerro Chato department.

Another rumor said insurgents headed by the guerilla veteran Irureta Guyena defeated government troops at Casupo, in the Florida department. There were no details of the reported action.

Sharp skirmishing was reported in the Colonia department, this in the face of the government's assertion that most of the country had been quieted and sections along the Brazilian frontier were in complete control of the army with the rebels in flight toward Brazil. Strict censorship continued.

Many oppositionists were arrested to swell the numbers already in custody. The government commandeered horses and automobiles in many sections to prevent their falling into the hands of the insurrectionists.

With casualties in the fighting at Cosia de Colla, the first major engagement between rebels and federal troops, set at seven dead and seven wounded, reports reaching the capital said the revolutionists sustained other heavy losses when planes bombed their strongholds in Tacuarembo and Cerro Largo provinces.

SOL GOLDBERG DROPS OUT OF MAYORAL RACE

Republican, on Retiring, Praises Democrat Kelly

BY PARKE BROWN.

Sol H. Goldberg announced yesterday his withdrawal from the so-called contest for the Republican mayoral nomination. In effect it was a withdrawal in favor of Mayor Kelly—an unprecedented event—the withdrawal of a Republican with a declaration praising the administration of a Democratic incumbent.

"I have come to the conclusion," said Mr. Goldberg in an interview, "that in view of the improved conditions that have been established here recently we do not need a new city administration. Mayor Kelly is a fine man and deserves to be reelected. State's Attorney Courtney and some of the other Democratic leaders also are good men and deserve the gratitude of the community."

G. O. P. High Command Lies Low.

In the meantime there were other developments among the Republicans, the chief one of which is a fairly definite indication that the city central committee will not indorse a candidate before the primary.

George F. Harding, one of the untitled powers of the Republican organization, has invited to supper at his home tonight the committeemen from the nineteen south side wards. There, it is predicted, will develop some sort of agreement opposed to the indorsement of any candidate before the primary and a decision that each committeeman make his own choice for the nomination, all uniting behind the nominee for the April election.

This was considered something of a setback to plans of a group of committeemen, numbering as high as thirty-eight, according to some accounts, who have considered calling a meeting of the city central committee and indorsing Mortimer B. Flynn, considered the strongest candidate in the field.

Talk of Wetten's Quitting.

This Harding movement, it was said, was not an anti-Flynn maneuver nor a maneuver to aid Emil C. Wetten, the only male opponent left against him.

In fact, there was a sudden crop of rumors that, following Mr. Goldberg's example, Mr. Wetten might withdraw from the race. He has been laid up with influenza for about a week. With the primary only three weeks from next Tuesday, it is believed he would be handicapped by the late start in comparison with Mr. Flynn, who has been extremely active for two weeks.

Tomorrow is the first day for filing petitions of independent or "new party" candidates for the April election. So far as is known the only one who may file is Newton Jenkins, who now asserts a proprietary right to the age old expression "third party" through his shadowy organization, though the record shows there were six other parties on the ballot last November. They were the Democratic, Republican, National Progressive, Prohibition, Socialist-Labor, and Socialist parties. This list would indicate that he is the candidate of the "seventh party."

Record of Jenkins' Candidacies.

In 1930 Jenkins received 51,723 Cook county votes as a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, or less than one-twelfth of the total Republican vote in the county, 637,447. Running for the same nomination in 1932, in a smaller field, he drew 151,558 votes, or less than 32 per cent of the Republican total. It is said his strength is less relatively in Chicago than in the country towns.

Experts agreed that in his previous two races Jenkins drew almost all of his votes from the Republicans. If he runs on April 2 and the same thing is true the result would be to weaken the Republican nominee.

'ASKS ANNULMENT SAYING SHE WAS TIPSY WHEN WED

Mrs. Ethel Lampert, 1224 South Lawndale avenue, seeking annulment of her marriage on Nov. 12, 1933, to Samuel Lampert, 3528 Grenshaw street, testified in Judge Philip J. Finnegan's court yesterday that she was so intoxicated that she could remember few details of the ceremony.

With another couple, she said, she and Lampert went to a tavern on Cottage Grove avenue and early next morning drew up before a house in Summit. Her father, David Dolinsky, testified that, soon after the marriage, he had to help his daughter into the house.

Mrs. Lampert's attorney, Albert J. Gilson, was directed to find the justice of the peace who performed the ceremony and produce him in court. After leaving court Attorney Gilson said the Lamperts were married by Justice of the Peace Ira P. Lambert, 7337 West 55th place, Summit.

AVOIDABLE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile accidents are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

DRIVER CALLS AID IN FATAL MISHAP; SPEEDS AWAY

Matthew Blouin, 77 years old, 31 East 117th place, a retired brickmaker, was fatally injured yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile in front of 11724 South Michigan avenue. The driver of the car carried the injured man into a gasoline filling station and obtained help to start his stalled car, promising to drive Blouin to a hospital.

When the station attendant and others pushed the car and the motor started the driver sped away. The car was abandoned in Riverdale shortly afterward and was found to be carrying license plates which had been stolen in Aurora last fall. The automobile also is believed to have been stolen.

An unidentified man, about 50 years old, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile as he crossed East 95th street, near the Calumet river bridge. The driver of the car, Bernard J. Obarski, 34 years old, of 11222 Green Bay avenue, was held by police.

Yesterday's two deaths brought the 1935 Cook county automobile toll to 64. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday the 1935 fatalities within the Chicago city limits totaled 52, and the number of injured in trafic accidents 1,177.

BLAZE DESTROYS THEATER, TAVERN AT TAYLORVILLE

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin tonight destroyed two buildings in Taylorville with damage estimated by officials at $100,000.

Fire departments from Springfield, Decatur, Stonington, and Pana rushed to assist local firemen in curbing the blaze, which for a time threatened to spread throughout the business district in this city of about 8,000.

The blaze broke out in the basement of the Ritz theater and quickly spread into a tavern nearby. Both buildings were razed.

A shoe shop and a coffee shop in the theater building also were destroyed, along with the Elks clubrooms over the amusement house. The theater had not opened for the usual evening show at the time the flames first were discovered.

4 DIE AS PLANE IS WRECKED ON CLIFF IN ALASKA

JUNEAU, Alaska, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Four men were killed today when an International Airways Buhl plane in which they were flying from Skagway to Dawson smashed against a high rock cliff near the White Pass summit.

The dead: Pilot Lawrence Muehleisen; John R. Muralt, Vancouver; Archie King, Dawson, and C. C. Larsen, residence undetermined.

The bodies were recovered by a White Pass and Yukon railroad rotary snowplow crew and were taken to Skagway. The rescuers said the plane hit the cliff about 150 feet north of the south end of the American snowshed. One wheel of the plane still lay high up on the cliff.

Jean MacGregor to Wed Hollander; Engaged 4 Yrs.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Miss Jean MacGregor, daughter of John R. MacGregor, 10206 Longwood drive, and Albertus Nico Vinke of Doorn and Amsterdam, Holland. The two have been engaged since 1931, and the wedding, according to Miss MacGregor will take place Feb. 23, at the home of her parents. The couple will then make their home for a time at Estoril, Portugal. The prospective bride's father is vice president of the Eagle Picher Lead company.

Rob Insurance Collector of $2,000 and Automobile

Julius Rosenbaum of 5217 Kenmore avenue, an insurance collector, was robbed of $2,000 yesterday while sitting in his automobile at 2532 Cottage Grove avenue, waiting for a client. Two men entered the car. With pistols, they forced Rosenbaum to drive to 29th street and Prairie avenue, where they searched him and put him out of the machine. The money taken had just been collected by Rosenbaum from Mrs. Velma Robbillitti of 4748 Greenwood avenue.

DEADLINE TODAY ON CAR LICENSES; POLICE PREPARED

Summonses to Be Issued Beginning Tomorrow.

Today is the last chance for motorists still driving cars with 1934 licenses to escape a court summons by applying for new state plates and city windshield stickers, City Controler Robert Upham warned yesterday. Tomorrow morning police will serve slips on all motorists who cannot at least show evidence that they have mailed money for licenses.

"After midnight, Jan. 31, all those without 1935 licenses will have to tell it to a judge," Controler Upham said. "There will be no further extension of the grace period. A full month of extra time has been allowed and that is enough."

Police Ready for Action.

Police Commissioner Allman said that all uniformed policemen will be prepared to issue the summonses that mean inconvenience and loss of time to car owners who have not yet complied with the license laws. Arrangements are being worked out to facilitate the handling of license cases in the Municipal courts.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby said he would suggest that the dates for court appearances be staggered so that the flood of license cases does not hinder the regular business of the courts. Only a few hundred summonses, he said, should be marked for any one court on one day, so that the total for all Municipal court branches will be about 2,000 daily.

Courts are Assigned.

He announced that the following courts would be assigned to handle the cases resulting from the license drive: Room 805, city hall; Town Hall, Racine avenue, Shakespeare, Fillmore street, Stockyards, 48th street and Wabash avenue, South Chicago, and 1121 South State street.

Half of the automobiles in the city, including trucks as well as passenger cars, are still without city licenses. There are about 369,000 motor vehicles in Chicago and the number of windshield stickers sold thus far is 184,000.

WALTER E. WOLF OPENS NEW FIGHT TO CUT SENTENCE

Walter E. Wolf, who is serving ten consecutive sentences of one to ten years each in the penitentiary for his embezzlement of $3,666,929 from the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, yesterday made a new attempt to evade the long term. Attorney Ross Lee Laird filed a petition for a writ of error in his behalf before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

Wolf entered pleas of guilty to the embezzlement charges in 1931 under "duress and fraudulent representations," the petition declares. Wolf believed when he pleaded guilty that the sentences were to run concurrently, according to the writ, and under the circumstances the then Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher was without authority to make the ten sentences run consecutively.

Assistant State's Attorneys Frank Donoghue and Francis McCurrie said they would oppose the petition on the ground that the matter was one for appeal to the Supreme court. Judge Sullivan set Feb. 13 for a complete hearing.

5 Robbers Get $1,050 in Highwood Tavern Holdup

Five men, armed with submachine guns and sawed-off shotguns, entered the Milani restaurant, a tavern at 324 Railway avenue, Highwood, last night. "We," announced the leader to Dean Milani, the owner, "do not like the Highwood police, so we decided to stage a holdup in the town." While Milani, his wife, and one customer were held at bay, the bandits obtained $1,050 and escaped.

Alice White's Mate Cut Trying to Nab 'Peeping Tom'

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 30.—(AP)—In trying to nab by the neck a "Peeping Tom" who was peering through the bathroom window at his wife, Alice White, screen actress, Cy Bartlett reported to police today he smashed the glass with his hand. The intruder escaped, but Bartlett, a scenario writer, received painful cuts on the right arm and hand.

BELIEVE TRAIN VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

The name of a man killed Tuesday by a train on the bridge over the drainage canal at 33d street and Albany avenue, is believed to have been John Jelinski, 53 years old, who lived in a relief shelter at 1210 South Morgan street.

'WE ARE RECONCILED,' FIERMONTE WIRES FROM OCEAN LINER

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Enzo Fiermonte, the Italian boxer who married Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor Dick, widow of John Jacob Astor, lost on the Titanic, wirelessed the Associated Press tonight from the steamer Roma en route to Europe that he and his wife have effected a reconciliation.

"In spite of previous statements in the papers I am glad to say that Mrs. Fiermonte and I are reconciled," said a message which was signed "Enzo Fiermonte."

Fiermonte was one of the Apollos of the Lido beach in Venice, Italy, wher. Mrs. Dick and a group of relatives arrived in midsummer of 1932.

Mrs. Fiermonte, whose maiden name was Madeleine Talmadge Force, was married to John Jacob Astor in 1911. She received the income from a $5,500,000 trust, the Astor Fifth avenue home and most of Mr. Astor's personal property, but the income from the trust fund was to cease if she remarried.

A LOVE MOTIVE TOLD IN SLAYING TRIAL OF MAJOR

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The efforts of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, on trial for his life on a charge of fatally poisoning his second wife, to be transferred to San Antonio, Tex., where his alleged inamorato lived, were described today to a jury in the federal court here.

Mrs. Kathryn McCoskey, sister-in-law of the retired army major's second wife, Zenana, testified that before Mrs. Shepard's death the defendant had asked her to write a letter seeking his transfer to San Antonio.

The government charges that the 63 year old major's love for Miss Grace Brandon, pretty, young army stenographer at San Antonio, was the motive for the alleged poison murder.

Mrs. Clara Brown Wax, the nurse who cared for Mrs. Shepard in her fatal illness, told the jury that Shepard prescribed capsules, a mouth wash, and whisky for his wife shortly before her death. The mouth wash allegedly contained a poison from which Mrs. Shepard was later found to have died.

Mrs. Wax testified under the restraint of a Supreme court ruling which prohibited her from repeating her statement at Shepard's first trial that twenty-four days before her death Mrs. Shepard told her: "Maj. Shepard has poisoned me—I'm going to die."

Knott, Electrical Union Chief, Is Seriously Ill

Irwin V. Knott, business agent of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, local No. 9, was reported seriously ill of pneumonia last night at the Methodist hospital in Indianapolis. Mr. Knott, whose home is at 3265 Warren boulevard, has been in ill health since last Sept. 10, but only since the pneumonia set in has his condition been regarded as serious.

SGT. H. L. BURNS TO HEAD COUNTY HIGHWAY POLICE

Toman to Confirm New Chief Tomorrow.

Sergt. Herbert L. Burns of the Chicago police force will become county highway police chief tomorrow when his appointment is to be affirmed by Sherif Toman, it was learned last evening. He will succeed Chief William Collins, who was head of the highway force under former Sherif William D. Meyering.

The new chief has been a member of the Chicago force 15 years. He has received nine creditable mention citations for meritorious service, he was one of the first policemen to win THE TRIBUNE's hero award, and he was a personal bodyguard for former Mayor Anton J. Cermak for several months immediately after the latter became head of the city government.

Old Friend of Sherif.

Sergt. Burns for years has been a close friend of Sherif Toman and of Edward J. Denemark, superintendent of the House of Correction. The sherif indicated a few days after election that he would appoint Sergt. Burns to the post.

During his years on the Chicago force Burns rose from the rank of patrolman to that of police lieutenant, although his present rating is that of sergeant. He passed the civil service examinations for his lieutenancy in 1933, and he was promoted to that rank at the direction of the courts after bringing a mandamus petition in February, 1934.

Victim of Depleted Budget.

Because of the lack of funds available for police salaries in the 1934 city budget, however, he was dropped back to the rank of sergeant on last May 3.

Sergt. Burns is a trafic expert, having spent nearly ten years of his service with that branch of the police department, much of it as a motorcycle policeman. It was while detailed with this branch that he won THE TRIBUNE hero award on the night of Oct. 26, 1922.

Burns was off duty when he went to the aid of a fellow officer shot down by a bandit, and captured the gunman. He was transferred to the detective bureau for this bravery.

Chief Collins, on leave from the Chicago police force, will return to duty in his old rank of lieutenant on Saturday.

CENTRAL EUROPE FLOURISHES ON WAR SCARE BOOM

British Banker Reports Big Arms Business.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—War scares all over the world have returned a measure of prosperity to central Europe, according to a British international banker who returned today from his annual continental trip.

A most amazing revival of prosperity has occurred, he said, and may be attributed to the manufacture of armaments and other military materials. In the last few months 12 new Austrian factories have started making military cloth which is being sold to France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, and Japan in addition to the small Austrian army.

In what is known as the armaments valley of lower Austria, chimneys which have been idle for several years are now smoking and arms factories are working 24 hours a day, the banker asserted. He said the Austrians have a new machine gun which fires 2,000 shots a minute and that with true commercial altruism they are making this for every one who will buy and every one is buying.

Skoda Works Busy.

The Steuer works in Austria are operating long hours on Japanese and French orders for this gun and other armaments, while the Skoda plant in Czechoslovakia, which was idle a few months ago, is now working around the clock, according to the financier. Skoda shares which a year ago were quoted at 400 Czech kroner are now 1,000 kroner.

Despite all this the banker declared that nobody wants a war and that no one is so frightened as a year ago. He explained that they are paying insurance premiums against war by building up armaments and at the same time taking care of the unemployed who they believe are much better off making guns and tanks than living on doles.

British opinion meanwhile continues to harden against the French demand for permanent superiority in armaments over Germany, and when Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval arrive tomorrow night they will probably find Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon in anything but an accommodating mood.

Peeved at French Press.

Britons are distinctly peeved over the anti-British campaign in the French government controled press which they regard as an attempt by France to bully them in advance of the negotiations.

Britain is now determined, it was learned, to insist on Germany's right to real equality subject to reasonable safeguards which they believe can be obtained by Germany's return to the league of nations and an all around reduction in armaments.

The British believe in Germany's good faith in her expressed desire to save money on armaments and her professed devotion to peace. This is based on the view that Germany's interests lie in the direction of peace for several years to come.

British Position Difficult.

The British position is regarded as very difficult. There is still a fairly large body of opinion here which holds that Britain as France's ally in the war is bound to fight her battles, but a great majority regard France as a trouble maker and hope their own government will find a way to disentangle Britain from any commitments she may have incurred.

There is also a widespread feeling here that Germany has been unfairly theater and, while few Britons like Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler or his Nazi régime, many regard Naziism as the inevitable effect of French oppression of Germany.

British liberals are swinging around to the opinion that the best way to end Hitlerism is to support Hitler's present demands for German equality. It is outside pressure, they believe, which united Germany behind Hitler. When that is removed, they hold, a return to healthy politics with the clash of views and opinions inside the framework of the state may be expected.

END TESTIMONY IN CAPONE TAX EVASION PROBE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Depositions of government witnesses here in appeals by Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader; his brother, Ralph, and his aid, Jack Guzik, from federal income tax assessments totaling $1,212,698.64 were completed today after a two day hearing.

They will be reviewed by the federal board of tax appeals in Chicago March 11.

Al Capone, who is in Alcatraz prison in California serving a sentence for income tax evasion, is protesting assessments totaling $68,644.08 for the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive.

Ralph Capone is protesting assessments totaling $311,282.53 for the years 1926 to 1928, and Guzik, $832,752 for the years 1924 to 1929.

HITLER CLAIMS TWO-THIRDS OF PROMISES FILLED

Nazis Observe Second Anniversary of Rule.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The golden goddess atop the Column of Victory in Berlin was lighted brilliantly tonight on the second anniversary of the day on which Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler became the master of Germany.

All day Berliners packed the square opposite Hitler's headquarters, hoping for a chance to extend the Nazi salute to the fuehrer. He showed himself occasionally at a window to acknowledge the "Heils." Several Hitler youth groups, both boys and girls, were allowed to enter the building and shake hands with their idol.

In his anniversary proclamation Hitler assured his countrymen that in the two years of the Nazi régime he has "fulfilled more than two-thirds of the program which I promised to complete in four years."

Hindenburg Mourned.

He explained that no big festivities were planned for today because of the death last year of President Paul von Hindenburg, "the man who two years ago entrusted me, and through me, the Nazi movement, with the leadership of Germany." A real festival of joy was promised, however, for the day when the Saar territory is returned to Germany by the league of nations.

Nearly $10,000,000 worth of food, coal, and cash was doled out to families on relief today as special anniversary gifts.

Churches celebrated with special services. The primate of the Protestant church, Ludwig Mueller, who keeps his job by the grace of Hitler despite the frantic protest of the majority of German Protestants, officiated in the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial church.

Hitler "Sent by God."

In his sermon, which resembled a political oration, Reichbishop Mueller spoke of the "miracles achieved by the fuehrer, sent to the German people by God."

In 50,000 factories roll calls were held to pay tribute to Hitler. In many plants feasts of hot dogs, sausage, and beer glorified the day.

Kurt Schmidt, who has been on sick leave, formally resigned today as economics minister and was succeeded by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank. Dr. Schacht has been acting minister of economics during the last eight months.

Minister of Labor Franz Seldte, Minister of Finance Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk, and Farm Minister Walter Darre have agreed to take no important steps without the approval of Dr. Schacht, indicating the increasing influence the latter has acquired in the Nazi régime.

Sees Treaty Revision.

That Germany no longer seeks to conceal her rearmament is indicated in a book just published by the official state publisher: "Versailles After Fifteen Years." It was written by a member of the foreign office, Dr. Karl Schwendemann.

The most interesting chapter outlines the "present status of the revision of the Versailles treaty."

"Important successes," Dr. Schwendemann writes, "have been achieved in the fifteen year struggle for the revision of the treaty. We won the liberation of the Rhineland, defeated all attacks against the unity of Germany and succeeded in freeing ourselves from the payment of war tributes.

"One sided disarmament of Germany has been abolished, and the restoration of German security is in full swing. It will be impossible to maintain the internationalization of German rivers against the will of Germany. Finally, the present borders of Germany are not laid down for eternity."

Arraigned in N. Y.

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Ivan Poderjay was arraigned today in General Sessions charged with having contracted a bigamous marriage with Miss Agnes Tufverson, New York lawyer, who vanished shortly after their wedding in 1932.

Poderjay tried to plead guilty to the bigamy indictment on which he was extradited from Vienna, but consented to accept the services of a lawyer appointed by the court.

Poderjay was remanded to the Tombs, Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, in charge of the indictment bureau, having stated that he would oppose bail as Poderjay was "suspected of homicide."

Poderjay said he was guilty of the bigamy charge, but had not intended to do wrong. He said he had "every confidence in the court."

HITLER RECOGNIZES CLAIM OF AUSTRIA TO ISLAND IN DANUBE

(Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.)

VIENNA, Jan. 30.—Where until Monday swastika banners flew and the brown uniforms of Adolf Hitler's Storm Troopers were in evidence, today the Austrian flag waves and Fascist heimwehrmen in gray-green uniforms keep guard.

The territory gained by Austria is not large, but it is important. It is an island in the upper Danube, near Schaerding, not 100 square yards in area, and too small to be deemed worthy of a name. But during the height of the Nazi activities it was virtually annexed to Germany and it attained considerable strategic value, for it was within easy swimming distance of the Austrian bank. Once on the island, hundreds of Nazi political refugees felt safe from Austrian pursuit.

Austria's production of many maps and a treaty with Bavaria dating from 1820 caused Germany to recognize its claim and to restore the island, withdrawing the Storm Troopers.

Son Born to Daughter of L. W. Hill, Rail Magnate

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 30.—(AP)—A son has been born here to Mrs. Lawrence Holmes Dorcy, the former Maude Hill, daughter of Louis W. Hill, St. Paul, Minn., railroad magnate, it was disclosed tonight. Stanford hospital authorities said the child, an eight and a half pound boy, was born yesterday.

U. S. REJECTION OF WORLD COURT GRIEVES GENEVA

Sees a Severe Blow to Promotion of Peace.

GENEVA, Jan. 30.—(AP)—League of nations circles learned with keen disappointment today of the United States senate's rejection of American adherence to the world court. The opinion had been held generally that ratification of the protocol was certain.

The news brought from representatives of the powers expressions of belief that the senate's action constitutes a severe blow to the building up of international law and promotion of peace through the policy of settling disputes by judicial process.

It was pointed out that the world powers at a special conference offered the United States a privileged form of membership in the court which no other member enjoys.

Some spokesmen declared the results should be a lesson to Europe to discontinue offering special privileges to the United States as the price of American participation in international organisms.

Britain to Keep Active.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Britain will not be influenced to withdraw from its present commitments or any of its future undertakings in connection with European affairs as a result of the rejection by the United States senate of adherence to the world court, it was stated in official circles today.

These quarters, nevertheless, were still hopeful that the day will come when the United States will take a more active part in European affairs.

Keen disappointment was expressed here when the senate action became known, since previous reports had indicated sentiment was favorable toward joining the international body.

Deplorable, Says France.

(Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.)

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Deplorable—serious in consequence for the world, for America and for the New Deal, are some of the phrases used in today's Paris press commenting on yesterday's rejection by the senate of United States adhesion to the world court.

"Yesterday's vote," says Temps, "has served only to show that the partisans' policy of isolation is still very powerful on the other side of the Atlantic and that there is a long way to go before Americans arrive at a sane conception of coöperation and international solidarity."

AMERICAN HELD FOR NAZI TRIAL IS EX-CHICAGOAN

Friend Recalls Roiderer as Dreamer and Poet.

Richard Roiderer, naturalized American citizen who will be arraigned before the German People's court in Berlin in March on a charge of treason, was a resident of Chicago for the two years preceding his return to Germany late in 1932.

This was learned yesterday when M. B. Silverman and Carl Sachs, who have an advertising and art agency at 168 North Michigan avenue, identified Roiderer [of whose plight they had read in European dispatches] as their office tenant and friend from 1930 to 1932.

"He came here from Cleveland," Sachs said, "and rented part of our office space for his work as district manager of a Cleveland art products company."

Described as a Dreamer.

Sachs described Roiderer as a "dreamer, an artist and a poet at heart," who used to wander down Michigan avenue making notations which he later wrote into verse. Similar notations, Sachs believes, were the cause of Roiderer's arrest in Germany.

Sachs has several letters written by Roiderer after the latter's return to Germany with his mother. The first, dated Nov. 15, 1932 [a few weeks after Roiderer's arrival in Munich], said that he was planning to study industrial art. A later letter, dated March 4, 1933, informed Sachs that his friend was teaching English, lecturing on America, and dabbling in water colors.

In his letters Roiderer made only one mention of the political situation in Germany: "As you have already read, Mr. Hitler is at present at the head of the German nation. It looks like a dictatorship is next. One does not know where it all will end."

For Roiderer it ended last June 22 when he was imprisoned at Munich after Nazi authorities found notes about government affairs in his possession as he was crossing the German border into Switzerland.

STILL HELD IN MUNICH

(Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.)

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 30.—Notes he jotted down about the famed Dachau concentration camp led to the high treason charges against Richard Roiderer, his friends said today.

The note book found in Roiderer's possession when he was arrested at Lindau on the Swiss border last June also contained "a few remarks" about the Nazi régime and several lines about the Nazi organization, the friends said.

Roiderer has been in jail here since his arrest, although the ministry of justice at Berlin yesterday announced he had been removed to Berlin to await an indictment before the people's court. This court has the power to inflict the death penalty after a conviction for treason.

A misunderstanding between departments of the government was responsible for the announcement that Roiderer had been transferred, the American consulate was informed.

FOUND MURDERED IN HOTEL.

A man, believed to be John Moffet, 60 years old, was found murdered last night under a cot on the third floor of the Dime hotel, 616 Adams street. His throat had been slashed, apparently by a pocket knife.

MICHIGAN TO ASK INDICTMENT OF BABY FARM CHIEF

Report Discovery of Perjury Evidence.

An indictment charging perjury will be sought against Dr. Edward L. Brooks, operator of the Beulah home for babies in Chicago at 2144 North Clark street, and in Beulah, Mich. This announcement was made yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Albert T. Washburne of Lansing, Mich., after two days' investigation in Chicago.

Mr. Washburne said he will ask that a warant be issued on the perjury charge when Circuit Judge Fred S. Lamb resumes his one man grand jury investigation at Beulah next week.

Call Statements Untrue.

"Our investigation of the deaths of a score of babies on Dr. Brooks' Michigan farm has been balked by the long lapse of time, but our search for records here has shown that Dr. Brooks made several untrue statements before the Michigan grand jury," said the assistant attorney general.

He added that minor charges may also be placed against Dr. Brooks in connection with his operation of the farm. One of these will concern burial of bodies in an unlicensed cemetery. During the inquiry last week the former minister said he had planned to remove the bodies to the licensed village cemetery.

Question Unwed Mother.

Mr. Washburne and Sergt. William Watkins of the Michigan state police spent yesterday questioning witnesses. Several unwed mothers who were questioned objected to giving their statements until they were assured that their names would not be made public.

State's Attorney Courtney said that he will wait until after the Michigan inquiry before he takes steps to have Dr. Brooks returned here to face a charge of operating a maternity home without a license.

MEXICO SEIZES CARDENAS' FOES; PLOTTED REVOLT

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A widespread roundup of opponents of President Lazaro Cardenas' government was believed imminent tonight as federal agents laid bare plans for an uprising they said was financed with United States money.

Two agents who won the confidence of the alleged conspirators said they had information that Gen. Antonio Villarreal, defeated candidate in the November presidential elections who is now in the United States, offered to assume the military leadership of the movement "without demanding complete control."

Documents found in the homes and offices of the alleged plotters were said to implicate many persons whose arrest was believed imminent. Already in custody were 18 persons implicated, the government said, by documents which revealed that the plot was hatched in the United States. A fund of $300,000, contributed by persons in the United States, was behind the movement, the federal agents charged, and recruits were sought in Durango province. The uprising was scheduled for February.

MRS. HAUPTMANN BACKS ALIBI FOR KIDNAPING NIGHT

But 2d Witness Becomes Badly Twisted.

his birthday and he wanted to celebrate. He went to Plainfield, N. J., to see a movie. There a man driving an automobile stopped him and asked him the route to New York. As a reward, the man offered him a ride to New York and he accepted.

Carlstrom had formerly lived in the Bronx and been a constant patron at the restaurant, he said, so he went up there for a meal. He arrived in the place about 8 p. m., he declared, and saw Mrs. Hauptmann, whom he knew as the waitress.

"There was also a man sitting at a front table reading a newspaper," he asserted.

IDENTIFIES HAUPTMANN

"Who was that?" inquired Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly.

"That man down there," said Carlstrom, pointing to Hauptmann. The defendant stood up so that Carlstrom might see him better.

The 27 year old carpenter said he had not recognized Hauptmann's picture until December, 1934, three months after Hauptmann's arrest.

Tears Up Testimony.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz leaped gladly into the fray. Within fifteen minutes he had the witness completely confused.

Carlstrom could not describe any other patrons that night and he had difficulty describing Hauptmann himself. He wouldn't admit that he had ever read anything of the Lindbergh case before he finally saw the picture which convinced him he remembered Hauptmann as being in the restaurant.

He denied that he had ever worked at the Majestic apartments in New York where Hauptmann worked in March, 1932, then broke down and admitted that he had worked there.

He was questioned about places where he said he had lived in the Bronx and could not give street numbers or descriptions of the buildings. He was asked for names of persons he had known in the Bronx and gave the name of a man named Larson and another named Christiansen.

"Where are they?" Wilentz asked.

Both Now in Europe.

One was in Norway, the other in Sweden, Carlstrom said.

He said he had eaten in the restaurant four or five nights a week and had seen Mrs. Hauptmann there every night. Mrs. Hauptmann had just finished testifying that her hours were from 7 to 5 o'clock except on Tuesdays and Fridays when she worked until 8 o'clock in the evening.

The witness at first insisted that he couldn't identify Hauptmann until seven weeks ago, then changed his story to declare that he had told friends after Hauptmann's arrest that he believed he had seen Hauptmann on the night of the kidnaping. He reluctantly gave the names of a Mr. and Mrs. Strauss to whom, he said, he had told this story.

"Was it Bruno Hauptmann who drove you into New York from New Jersey that night?" Wilentz asked.

Carlstrom muttered a negative.

Reilly Finally Objects.

Attorney Reilly finally objected.

"If he's being trapped it's by his own conduct," shot back Wilentz.

The worried and nervous Carlstrom was still on the witness stand under cross-examination when court was adjourned until tomorrow.

Hauptmann completed his testimony at the morning session. He denied he had ever been intimate with Mrs. Henkel and Attorney Reilly brought out that he, in the month before his arrest, had passed twelve or fifteen of the ransom bills with no attempt at concealment. This, the defense contends, would be the attitude of a man who did not know the gold certificates were Lindbergh ransom notes.

Bruno on Stand Twenty Hours.

Hauptmann was on the witness stand a total of nearly twenty hours. He first began testifying last Thursday afternoon. Throughout Friday, Monday, and Tuesday he was subjected to the questions of defense and prosecution, the cross-examination alone extending over more than twelve court hours.

Special Prosecutor George K. Large announced tonight that Carlstrom's story would be checked with a view toward ascertaining if perjury was committed.

"His entire testimony will be checked to determine if anything he said on cross-examination is in conflict with statements made on direct examination," Large declared.

QUIZZED ON MRS. HENKEL

When she resumed the witness stand at the beginning of the afternoon session Mrs. Hauptmann was immediately cross-examined about what she had termed her "friendship" with Mrs. Henkel.

"Just how close was that friendship?" Wilentz was curious to know.

"Well, we saw each other frequently," she declared.

Q.—Didn't you refuse to go to her house? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you tell the police that you stopped going to her house? A.—Well, I had reason for not going, but no fights with her.

Q.—What was that reason? A.—I don't say that here.

She said she had first known about Mrs. Henkel when, upon her return from Germany late in 1932, she noticed snapshots of her husband and Mrs. Henkel together.

Wilentz dropped the subject for the moment.

Q.—You remember the time you visited your husband in jail and you said: "I'm going to ask Richard if he's innocent." A.—I didn't say that to anybody.

Quit Work Late in 1932.

Q.—When did you stop working? A.—In December, 1932.

Q.—Did your husband suggest it? A.—I thought I had worked long enough.

Q.—I think so, too. Was your husband working then? A.—He was working in Wall street.

The attorney general returned to Mrs. Hauptmann's questioning at the time of her husband's arrest.

"Weren't you asked, 'Were you with your husband the night of March 1?' and did you answer, 'I don't remember"?

Mrs. Hauptmann seemed confused. She mumbled that she didn't know at the time that March 1 was the time of the kidnaping.

Q.—You knew that you were being questioned about the Lindbergh kidnaping? A.—Yes.

Q.—And he told you March 1 was the night of the kidnaping? A.—I was asked so many questions.

Q.—Did he tell you? A.—I can't remember.

Present When Cash Was Found.

Swiftly the prosecutor switched to another phase.

Q.—You were present when they found the money in the garage? A.—Yes.

Q.—What happened? A.—One man said, "Look, here's money," when he tore away a board.

Q.—More money was also found in a can? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't know that your husband had hidden that money there? A.—No.

Q.—And when it was found it was a surprise to you? A.—Yes, sir.

"That's all," said Wilentz. But Reilly had a few more queries to put to the defendant's wife.

"Didn't you tell police that when you found that March 1 was a Tuesday that you then remembered that your husband had been with you that evening?"

"Yes."

Q.—How long before Fisch's departure was your baby born? A.—Just a few weeks.

Q.—And you had been told by the doctor not to do any stretching? A.—Yes.

Q.—So that you didn't stretch to see what was on that top shelf? A.—Yes.

WITH BRUNO MARCH 1

"And there isn't any doubt in your mind that you were with your husband the night of March 1?" concluded Reilly.

"None at all," was the emphatic reply.

The defense then offered in evidence a weather bureau report that there had been a rainfall of .77 of an inch on Sunday, Aug. 12, 1934. Hauptmann had testified that he discovered the ransom money in the shoe box on a rainy Sunday in the middle of August and the report was submitted as corroborative of his testimony. It was admitted into evidence.

Reilly called for a "Mr. Manly" as his next witness, but Mr. Manly couldn't be found, so Elbert Carlstrom was summoned to the witness stand.

Carlstrom, a young man with a carefully brushed pompadour, identified himself as a carpenter. He spoke with strong Swedish accent and said he had been in the United States only six years. He had lived at various addresses in the Bronx, he said.

March 1 His Birthday.

"March 1, 1932 is a day you can remember?" Reilly asked. "Yes, that's my birthday." Carlstrom testified and produced a United States department of labor immigration certificate which gave his birthday as March 1.

Q.—Where were you working that day? A.—New Jersey.

Q.—What doing? A.—Taking care of Mr. Christianson's house at Dunellen.

Q.—What time did you leave there that day? A.—About a quarter to 6 that evening.

Q.—What was your route? A.—I was in Plainfield, N. J., when a man in a car stopped me and asked me the way to New York. He gave me a ride to New York.

Carlstrom called on friends, he said, who were not home. Then he went up into the Bronx and stopped at the Frederickson's bakery.

Q.—Were you in the habit of eating there when you lived in that neighborhood? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time did you get there? A.—About half past 8.

Q.—Whom did you see? A.—I saw Mrs. Hauptmann waiting on counter.

Saw Hauptmann There.

Q.—Who else did you see? A.—I saw that fellow sitting down there [looking at Hauptmann].

Hauptmann stood up so that he might be seen easier and the witness nodded.

He added that he was a voluntary witness who had been persuaded by his friends to come forward and tell his story.

"What did Hauptmann appear to be doing?" Reilly asked.

"It looked to me like he was sitting at a front table reading a newspaper," said Carlstrom.

Wilentz, who had been very quiet and polite with Mrs. Hauptmann, immediately went after the alibi witness with the same savagery he displayed with Hauptmann.

"Why did you say "that man" instead of Hauptmann? he demanded. Was that an act?"

"No."

Q.—You've seen many pictures of Hauptmann. A.—Yes.

Q.—How many others were present that night? A.—About five or six people.

The witness could not describe any of the other persons in the bakery.

Remembers His Laughs.

"I remembered him because he was laughing at me and that made me angry," he explained.

"And I suppose you would never forget that face as long as you live?"

"Never."

Carlstrom was asked to describe Hauptmann's face. He had difficulty doing so. He said he had never seen Hauptmann before that night or since then until he saw him in the courtroom.

Q.—You saw pictures of the man arrested last September? A.—Yes.

Q.—You saw many of them. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you think then that that man was the man you saw in the bakery? A.—I didn't look at the pictures very closely.

Q.—You didn't recognize those pictures then? A.—No.

It was only after the date of March 1, 1932, began to be stressed in newspaper accounts and the name of Frederickson's bakery brought out that Carlstrom remembered seeing Hauptmann that night, he admitted.

ADMITS CHANGING NAME

Carlstrom smiled when Wilentz asked if he had not changed his name from Karlstrom.

"Yes," he replied. "In Sweden we use the 'K'."

The witness became confused when Wilentz subjected him to a rapid fire of questions about his various places of residence during the six years he has lived in this country.

He could not remember the street number of one place in which he had lived for five months near the Frederickson's bakery. Nor could he remember how many stories there were to the house.

So tangled did Carlstrom become that he mentioned walking up to the fourth story of a rooming house which he had just described as having only two stories.

Judge Lets It Continue.

"I see nothing irregular in this cross-examination," remarked the judge. And Wilentz went on battering Carlstrom with query after query, intended to show that the witness' memory was, to put it charitably, uncertain.

The witness could not remember whether the place he had lived was a brick or frame structure, the names of other persons living there, or other details.

"You're a union carpenter?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes."

"Did you ever work at the Majestic apartments where Hauptmann worked?"

"No."

Q.—You're sure about that? A.—Where is the Majestic apartments?

Q.—72d street and Central Park West. A.—Maybe.

Remembers Working There.

Q.—Look at this pay roll, did you work there? A.—I guess I did.

Q.—When did you work there? A.—Winter, 1931.

Q.—How long? A.—I'm mistaken, it was summer, 1931.

Q.—How long? A.—Two or three days.

"Were you Hauptmann's helper there?" demanded Wilentz.

"O, no," said Carlstrom.

Q.—When did you first see a picture of Hauptmann that you recognized? A.—A few weeks ago.

Q.—How many weeks? A.—About seven.

Q.—Did you see a picture of Reilly with Hauptmann when he was first arrested? A.—Yes. [Reilly did not enter the case for several months after Hauptmann's arrest.]

He had lived for many months with a man named Larson, Carlstrom testified, but he could not reveal Larson's whereabouts at present nor could he give Larson's first name.

"Why did you go to Frederickson's bakery that night?"

"There was a girl lived near there I was going to see."

Q.—What was her name? A.—Esther.

Late tonight it was learned state authorities had discovered the identity of "Esther," the youth's mysterious girl friend. Her name, it was disclosed, is Esther Ellerson, niece of the superintendent of an apartment situated near the Frederickson bakery in the Bronx, and she was reported to have been questioned by police this evening.

Woman Juror Smiles at Bruno

BRUNO STARTS DAY

Hauptmann was taken over his testimony at the extradition proceedings in the Bronx when he resumed the stand for redirect examination at the opening of the morning session.

"Are you right handed or left handed?" Reilly demanded suddenly, breaking off this line of inquiry. "Right handed," was the reply.

Quickly the lawyer jumped to another subject.

"Was there ever anything improper between you and Mrs. Henkel?" he asked.

"No, sir," answered Hauptmann, emphatically.

Mrs. Henkel was the woman with whom Hauptmann became acquainted in 1933, while his wife was in Europe.

Hauptmann was asked what reading he had done since he had been in jail. He recalled reading a life of Lincoln, some American history and some books on explorations.

Reilly asked him how many letters from Fisch had been in his home when he was arrested. There had been several letters and a number of cards, he declared.

State Has Only a Card.

"The state is able to produce only one postcard," Wilentz announced when Reilly requested that these letters and cards be given him.

Hauptmann translated this card from his partner. It contained only the usual greetings and expressions of friendship.

"Tell us the contents of other letters you received," Really commanded the witness.

Wilentz objected.

"There's no proof that any such letters were received," he declared. "It seems to me a way of taking from the lips of a dead man statements which neither he nor any one else can answer."

"You'd better tell me what you're planning to bring out," said the judge.

Reilly whispered to him so that the jury might not hear. The judge allowed him to pursue his questioning under restrictions.

"The letter from Mr. Fisch was mostly about the furs," Hauptmann said.

Stocks "in Every Letter."

"Was anything said by Fisch about stocks?"

"In every letter he mentioned stocks," was the reply.

Hauptmann turned to the judge.

"May I speak about other letters I received?" he asked.

"No, just answer the questions put to you by your lawyer," the judge instructed him.

Reilly went into the spelling of the word "boat" as "boad," a habit shared by Hauptmann and the writer of the ransom notes.

"A German 't' looks like an English 'd,'" Hauptmann explained.

Q.—How long were you passing those notes? A.—About a month before my arrest.

Q.—How many? A.—Twelve or fifteen.

Denies Changing Plates.

Q.—You never changed license plates on your car? A.—No.

Q.—You never changed your place of residence? A.—No.

Q.—You weren't in disguise? A.—No.

Q.—You did it all openly? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did one dollar of Lindbergh ransom money ever go into your brokerage account? A.—It did not.

Again, Hauptmann explained his assertion in a letter that he had withdrawn $5,500 from a "private bank account" as a "shorter and clearer" way of outlining the transaction. He had no such private banking account, he declared.

The defendant was asked to examine the plane found in his garage. The plane was used in a demonstration by Arthur Koehler, the wood expert, to support his contention that Hauptmann built the kidnap ladder.

"That plane was not used since 1928," declared Hauptmann, firmly. "If you will look in my chest you will see two iron planes which I have used since then. That old plane was not sharpened.

Can't Remember Last Time.

"I can't even remember when I saw that old plane last," he added.

"It's a very cheap plane?"

He was asked if any chisels were missing from his set of tools. He looked the contents of the chest over thoroughly while the guards stood over him, watchful against any attempt by the defendant to pocket any implements.

"There are three chisels missing," Hauptmann announced finally. "They have disappeared."

He said he saw the chisels in the chest only two days before his arrest, leaving the inference that the police had removed them.

BEGINS CROSS QUIZ

"You live on 222d street, but you bought vegetables down at 89th street?" the prosecutor asked.

"It was cheaper," retorted Hauptmann.

"You did the shopping for your wife?"

"Since we have a child, yes," was the answer.

This was the first official notification given the jury that Hauptmann was a father.

"How far was Jacobson's shoe store from your home?"

"Seven or eight miles."

"You gave them a $20 gold certificate?"

"Yes."

"How many shoe stores were there nearer to your home?"

"O, plenty of shoe stores," Hauptmann admitted.

Reads Pay Roll Records.

Wilentz made the defendant read the pay roll records at the Majestic apartments for the last half of March, 1932.

The records showed that Hauptmann worked only eleven days in this period instead of every day, as he contends.

"I don't know how they keep those records," remarked Hauptmann defensively. He pointed out that his name was misspelled, with only one "n," as an indication that the records might be faulty.

"Is there anything in the record to show that you worked April 2 [date of the ransom payment]? Wilentz asked.

"No," admitted the defendant.

"It shows two days in April I worked and my memory is that I worked April 1 and 2."

The board with Dr. Condon's telephone number and address was again shown the defendant.

"You said this was your lumber?" Wilentz remarked.

"It's just like any other board," returned the defendant.

"Every board hasn't got Dr. Condon's address on it!" shouted the prosecutor.

"I don't know."

"Why did you say in the Bronx that this was your handwriting and now deny it?"

"I said it there without thinking. My physical condition was so bad then."

"You didn't think? As a matter of fact you have a very good mind, haven't you?" demanded Wilentz.

"No, I don't think so," returned Hauptmann.

"O, yes, you do think so," concluded Wilentz and turned away. Hauptmann stepped down from the stand which he first ascended last Thursday.

WIFE TAKES STAND

"Mrs. Hauptmann to the stand!" directed Reilly, who uses this formula in a tone which stirs the courtroom crowd to its emotional depths.

The wife of the defendant arose and walked slowly forward; after taking the oath, she settled nervously in the witness chair.

She was dressed in a blue silk dress with a large, round silver ornament decorating the breast. A small hat perched incongruously on the side of her faded blond locks. Her complexion, as usual, sallow, her eyes red rimmed.

Much has been written about this woman and an attempt made to depict her as a colorful character, but bewilderment remains the keynote of her general demeanor.

She answered Reilly's queries in a faint voice, and the attorney asked that the crowd be warned to remain quiet. The judge made his usual talk about order in the courtroom.

Mrs. Hauptmann admitted that she was the wife of the defendant. She came to the United States from Germany on New Year's day, 1924, she told the jury. Her first employment was as a domestic in the home of a Mrs. Rosenbaum on Riverside drive, New York.

Met Bruno in 1925.

She met Hauptmann in 1925, she said, and they were married Oct. 10, 1925, in the city hall in New York. They had planned a honeymoon to California, but decided frugally against it.

Hauptmann told her, she said, that he had entered the country illegally. During their courtship he gave her money to deposit in her name and the account remained in her name for several years after their marriage.

"We did go to California in 1931," she testified. "Hans Kloppenberg was with us."

Q.—In 1928 you worked for a Mrs. Achenbach, the woman who was on the stand here? A.—Yes.

Q.—After you came back from California, you called on Mrs. Achenbach? A.—Yes.

Q.—That was when? A.—1931.

Q.—She testified that it was in March, 1932, that you and your husband called upon her after a trip? A.—Yes, but it was in 1931.

Blames Quarrel for Story.

Mrs. Hauptmann declared that Mrs. Achenbach and she had quarreled and that was the reason for the latter's testimony that the Hauptmanns had visited her a day or two after the kidnaping in March, 1932, and had spoken of being away on a trip. Hauptmann also had an injured ankle at that time, Mrs. Achenbach had asserted.

She had taken Mrs. Achenbach's 9 year old daughter to Germany with her in 1928, she said. On the return trip, because the child had passed its tenth birthday in the meantime, there was an extra charge of $30 or $35 which Mrs. Hauptmann paid, she testified.

"Have you ever been paid back that money?" the lawyer asked.

"I did not get a dollar back yet!" said Mrs. Hauptmann with some vehemence.

"You have had words with Mrs. Achenbach about it?"

"Yes, she still owes me. I never got a dollar back." [Mrs. Achenbach had testified that she paid the money soon after Mrs. Hauptmann's return.]

Both Saving All Possible.

In June, 1929, she went to work as a counter girl in the Frederickson's bakery, Mrs. Hauptmann told the jury. All this time, both she and her husband were saving most of their salaries, she said.

On her next trip to Germany, in July, 1932, she visited her husband's mother and the two went to an attorney to consult him about Hauptmann's possible return to his homeland.

"My husband's mother was always longing to see her son again," said the witness.

Hauptmann was observed to brush his eyes hastily with the back of his hand. A newspaper artist who was sketching him at the time insisted there were tears in the defendant's eyes.

"But the lawyer told us we would have to wait two more years," Mrs. Hauptmann continued.

Q.—Mrs. Frederickson had Tuesdays and Fridays off? A.—Yes.

Q.—That was her regular custom? A.—Yes.

Q.—On a Monday, what would your hours be? A.—Seven to 5.

Big Business on March 1.

Q.—March 1, 1932, was a Tuesday? A.—Yes.

Q.—There was quite a supper trade? What you call the supper trade and we call the dinner trade? A.—Yes.

Q.—Mr. Frederickson was a Dane who specialized in Danish pastry? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were the only waitress? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did your husband call for you that night? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time? A.—Maybe it was 7 or even before 7.

Q.—How long did he remain there? A.—He was there till we went home together about a quarter to nine.

Q.—You went right home? A.—Yes.

Q.—You remained there? A.—Yes.

"Now, do you remember another date spoken of here, April 2, 1932 [date of ransom payment]?" asked Reilly.

"Yes, I remember that," said Mrs. Hauptmann. "It was a Saturday night."

Q.—Who was there? A.—Hans Kloppenberg, my husband and myself.

Q.—What were you doing? A.—My husband and Hans make music. After that we play cards all night.

She described the scene already pictured by her husband. She played the guitar, Kloppenberg the zither and her husband the mandolin, she said.

Q.—That was your habit the first Saturday of every month? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know your husband's birthday? A.—Yes, Nov. 26.

Q.—What night was that in 1933? A.—Sunday. [On this date, according to Cecelia Barr, theater cashier, Bruno cashed a $5 ransom bill.]

SIX THERE THAT NIGHT

Q.—Who was at your house that night? A.—My niece, Mrs. Miller; Paul Betterle, Isador Fisch, my husband, and myself.

"When was your baby boy born?" asked Reilly with his celebrated tremolo working to perfection.

"Nov. 3, 1933," said Mrs. Hauptmann.

Q.—Who named him Mannfried? A.—My niece, Mrs. Miller.

"When did you first meet Mrs. Henkel?"

Mrs. Hauptmann stiffened a little at this reference to the woman whom Hauptmann met while his wife was in Europe in 1932.

"It was in October, 1932," she said, "after I got back from Germany."

Q.—Where? A.—At her house. My husband took me there.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Henkel often? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is she here in court today? Reilly turned around and called, "Is Mrs. Henkel here?" There was no answer, and the attorney remarked to the witness, "Well, she has been here?" and received an affirmative answer.

Never Questioned Fidelity.

"From the things you saw or heard, did you ever entertain the slightest suspicion concerning your husband's fidelity to you?" he asked Mrs. Hauptmann loudly.

"She was not only my husband's friend but my friend," said the woman in the witness chair firmly.

Q.—Did you ever suspect him of being untrue to you? A.—Never!

She had first met Fisch, she testified, at the Henkels' house. She also met Henry Uhlig there, she said, and identified him as the friend of Fisch who accompanied the furrier when Fisch went home to die in Germany.

"There was a party for Fisch the Saturday before he left," she recalled, listing several friends who had been present. Fisch left several pieces of baggage with the Hauptmanns, she said.

She described the broom closet in which, according to her husband, he had placed the shoe box left by Fisch which he later found to be full of Lindbergh ransom money.

Too Short to Use Shelf.

She gave her height as 5 feet 4 inches and described to the jury how she had to stretch to reach anything on the top shelf in the closet upon which the shoe box was supposed to have rested from November, 1933, until August, 1934, when Hauptmann accidentally discovered that it contained currency, according to his testimony.

"I never used the top shelf," she testified.

"I kept my soap and powderr and cleaning things on the first shelf, my electric iron on the second. There were pipes over the top shelf, and water leaked in from the roof, making it very damp."

She estimated that she and her husband had saved about $7,000 before he began to speculate in the stock market in 1932.

"You trusted your husband, didn't you?" Reilly concluded his questioning.

"You should trust your husband," responded Mrs. Hauptmann with emphasis, an old fashioned sentiment which made even the four woman jurors snicker.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

The cross-examination by Wilentz centered mainly about the alleged shoe box in the broom closet.

Q.—You saw this broom closet every day? A.—Yes.

Q.—You never saw any shoe box? A.—I didn't know what was on the top shelf.

Q.—From November, 1933, until September, 1934, you never saw a strange shoe box up there? A.—No.

Q.—You had no trouble hanging up that apron, did you? A.—No.

Q.—Isn't that hook higher than the top shelf? A.—Yes, it is.

Q.—You know if you stood a few feet away, you could see everything on the top shelf? A.—No, the shelves were to one side.

Q.—The closet isn't very high? A.—Yes, it is.

Q.—You do your own cleaning? A.—Yes.

Cleaned It Every Week.

Q.—How often did you clean the closet? A.—Every week.

Q.—Did you ever clean the top shelf? A.—I didn't need to.

Q.—You don't really mean that you never cleaned that top shelf for all those months, do you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You let dirt and dust accumulate up there? A.—I didn't use the shelf.

Mrs. Hauptmann was obviously embarrassed at these admissions, but she clung stoutly to her statement.

Q.—Did you keep a tin tobacco box up there to keep coupons in? A.—Yes.

Q.—When you put the box up there or took it down did you see a shoe box? A.—No.

Wilentz shifted to another subject. He asked Mrs. Hauptmann if she had not complained to her husband about his quitting his carpentery work in order to dabble in the stock market.

"I did say I didn't like the stock market," she admitted. "I said he shouldn't put any more money in the market."

She was asked if she didn't recall that in a statement to Inspector Henry Bruckman of the New York police she had said that she could not remember the date of March 1, 1932.

"I couldn't remember it then," she said. "But later on I found out it was a Tuesday and I knew Richard always was with me on Tuesdays."

HERE ARE 4 RESULTS POSSIBLE AS TRIAL OF HAUPTMANN ENDS

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 30.—(AP)—One of four things can happen to Bruno Richard Hauptmann when his trial for the Lindbergh kidnaping-murder closes. They are:

1. The jury can acquit him.
2. The jury can convict him of first degree murder, which carries the death penalty.
3. The jury can convict him of murder with a recommendation for mercy, in which event the penalty would be life imprisonment.
4. The jury can disagree, necessitating a new trial.

Bruno Shakes Finger at Wife, Displeased at Her Testimony

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—There was a lively interchange of comment between Hauptmann and his wife Anna during the noon recess of his trial today, after part of her testimony.

What they said to each other could not be learned, but several times Hauptmann leaned forward and shook his finger at his wife. His expression indicated that he was not pleased by her statements on the stand.

Before taking the stand Mrs. Hauptmann chatted amiably with her husband, sitting close to him, smiling often and was apparently composed. She showed few signs of nervousness on the stand until Attorney General David T. Wilentz speeded up the tempo of his cross-examination. Then she blinked very often and her face assumed an expression of weariness.

She wore beige hose, black shoes, a small black hat with lace trim, and on her wedding finger was a white gold diamond engagement ring and a plain, yellow gold wedding ring.

Authorities as well as attorneys for both the defense and state tonight branded a report that there had been attempts to tamper with the jury as ridiculous.

Capt. John J. Lamb of the New Jersey state police and local constables headed by Sheriff John H. Curtiss of Hunterdon county all declared that they were "not interested in such reports" and that no investigation of them had been ordered.

Unlike Bruno, Mrs. Hauptmann today looked straight at Col. Lindbergh today when the kidnaping was mentioned. The defendant, as he denied the crime, had turned his head carefully away.

Mrs. Verna Snyder, one of the jurors, is said to be not only an excellent housewife, but a good blacksmith as well. Her friends say she often assists her husband at the flaming forge. During the summer she accompanies Snyder, an itinerant mechanic, around the countryside when he has horseshoeing to do.

The relatives of Fisch, who have been immured in a Trenton hotel ever since they arrived from Germany, were all of a dither today. Each night they have all placed their shoes, continental fashion, outside their rooms to be shined. And shined they have been—until today.

Last night a detective, said to have been in a festive mood, noticed the parked shoes and distributed them inside a dozen rooms on the floor. There was a near riot this morning.

Flemington has become sophisticated. The natives down from the New Jersey hills no longer stare at the strangers in town. Boys and girls from the high school have got past the stage of crowding before the courthouse, hoping for a chance to slip inside or appear in a newsreel or newspaper crowd shot.

Parking lot pullers-in make the scene reminiscent of a county fair or the neighborhood of a big league ball park. They are out hours before court convenes trying to persuade out-of-town motorists to pay for auto space.

Defense Chief Reilly tonight was irate. He threatens to introduce every witness he can get hold of and "carry this trial on till April," in retaliation for the vicious cross-examination to which Wilentz subjected Carlstrom, the surprise alibi witness.

"I am going to turn the witness stand over to the attorney general," he grated, "but I'm going to give him plenty to do. Instead of the few witnesses I had planned to put on, I'll have between 50 and 75. Carlstrom is a fine witness and we have several more. Wilentz seems to like them, so we'll give him plenty."

TELLS WITNESS' IDENTIFICATION OF BRUNO PHOTO

Cedarhurst, N. Y., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Strauss, who runs a rooming house here, recalled tonight the occasion last fall when Elbert Carlstrom identified a newspaper photograph of Bruno Hauptmann and told of seeing him in a Bronx restaurant the night of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

"I know that fellow," he said, and told then his testimony of today.

"Why don't you get in touch with the lawyers?" Mrs. Strauss said she asked her reticent boarder.

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

BURNS STARTS ECONOMY FIGHT IN LEGISLATURE

Offers Nine Bills to Cut State Cost.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Another comprehensive attempt to reduce the costs of government in Illinois was started today by Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] to augment the start he made in this direction during the 1933 session of the legislature.

In the face of considerable opposition, former Judge Burns succeeded in passing bills two years ago which reduced the salaries of many elective and appointive officials and judges. It was almost a one man battle, but Burns persisted.

Today the exponent of economy presented nine bills in the house and announced that they form only the first section of his program. Others may be ready for submission next week and all will be shepherded in committee by the sponsor. Burns was renamed chairman of the committee on efficiency and economy by Speaker Devine yesterday.

Hits Athletic Body.

First among the Burns bills is one to abolish the Illinois athletic commission and provide in its stead a superintendent of athletic exhibitions at a salary of $4,300 annually. Three commissioners function at present, each at a salary of $4,050. "As near as I can find out," Burns explained, "the commission holds about one meeting a week, and it doesn't last very long. One man could do all the work."

The second bill would abolish downstate city courts. The offices of county surveyors and county veterinarian also were marked for slaughter by Burns. Only one salary reduction bill was included in the series. This would cut the pay of the lieutenant governor from $5,000 to $4,500 annually.

IERC Quiz Today.

What promises to be a field day in the house with the Illinois Emergency Relief commission on the receiving end was set today with passage of a resolution presented by Majority Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] calling for a joint session of house and senate on Feb 19, to question the commission.

Members who have stored up grievances against the commission, for one reason or another, will have an opportunity to air them that day. The membership of the commission and Secretary Wilfred Reynolds will be asked to appear. The senate is expected to adopt the resolution next week.

Gov. Horner already has expressed opposition to ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada, but Representative W. O. Edwards [Dem., Danville] decided today that the legislature should also back the governor's stand.

Among the bills introduced in the house today was one by Edward P. Saltiel [Rep., Chicago] which would require that men applying for a marriage license would have to present a certificate from a physician showing that within the previous fifteen days they had been examined by a physician and found free of venereal diseases.

Both houses adjourned late today until Tuesday.

James Blakely, 35 years old, was held by Blue Island police after a shooting yesterday morning in which his wife Marie, 30 years old, was wounded in both legs. The shooting occurred before their home at 2104 West 119th place, Blue Island. Blakely, according to Chicago police, is an associate of Danny Stanton, south side gangster, and is business agent for a hotel and restaurant employes' union.

Neighbors told police it appeared that Mrs. Blakely ran from the house and that her husband fired three shots at her from the door. When she fell, witnesses related, Blakely put her in his automobile and drove away.

Blakely asserted that when he entered the house after having been away all night Mrs. Blakely went out on the porch to get the mail. He heard shouts and shooting, he said. Then Mrs. Blakely staggered in wounded. He took her to the Gresham police station, he recounted, then to the Evangelical Deaconess hospital, 408 Wisconsin street, where Chicago police arrested him.

EDWARD QUINN IS HEAP O' GRIEF TO EDWARD QUINLAN

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 13; recovered, 22; stripped, 1 [from police records for the 24 hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

As far as Edward Quinlan, 23 years old, 7210 South Carpenter street, is concerned, Policeman Edward Quinn is a jinx. In 1931 the policeman arrested "Eddie" for tampering with an automobile, and Quinlan was jailed. He was paroled last September.

On the night of Jan. 23, the policeman saw someone trying to start his automobile in front of 6600 Harvard avenue. The man fled, but not before the policeman recognized him as Quinlan. He was arrested at his home. Yesterday Judge Joseph Graber in the Automobile court sentenced Quinlan to a year in the Bridewell and fined him $200.

Jury Is Selected

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 30.—A jury of ten farmers, a jeweler and a painter was chosen in 26 minutes today to try David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker, on three charges of kidnaping, imprisoning and robbing John S. Labatt, wealthy London brewer, last Aug. 14, near Sarnia.

A Toronto expert testified that no fingerprints were found at the Lake Muskoka hideout where Labatt was held, nor on the car used for the kidnaping which was effected near Sarnia. He ventured that the abductors, believed to have numbered three, were "experienced criminals." The prosecutor went to great length to prove that the identification of Meisner was made by fair means in the showups at Middlesex county jail.

Though the kidnaping is the first ever brought to court in Canada, objections to the showup identifications disclosed that Charles Burns, president of Carling Breweries here, was a victim in prohibition days. Gordon Erskine and Harvey Taylor, who are in Kingston penitentiary for blackmail, were put in one of the lineups with Meisner. Their use of the signature "Four X Spike," linked them with the Labatt kidnap notes. Burns is said to have been seized three times and on one occasion paid $35,000 without reporting the crime to the police.

SUPREME COURT REMAPPING BILL FILED IN SENATE

Cuts 3 Counties from Chicago District.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago], took another step today in his program for congressional, senatorial and judicial reapportionment by introducing in the senate a bill which would decrease the size of the Seventh Supreme court district, which includes Chicago.

This district is the largest in the state, comprising the counties of Cook, Lake, Will, Du Page and Kankakee, with a total population of 4,399,335, according to the 1930 census. Under the Ward measure, three of the counties—Will, Du Page and Kankakee—would be lopped off and placed in the Fifth district, bringing the population down to 4,086,510.

Redistricting Law Not Clear.

"This apparently is the only change that can be made at the present time," said Senator Ward. "The constitution provides that the boundaries of a district can be changed only at the session of the general assembly next preceding the election for judge therein. There will be a special election to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Justice De Young but we are not sure that the provision applies to a special election. However, a regular election will be held in the Fifth district and as it is contiguous with the Seventh its boundaries can be enlarged to take in part of the Seventh."

Two of the counties—Henry and Knox—now in the Fifth, would be shunted to the Fourth by the Ward bill. The effect of the changes on the Fifth district would be to increase its population from 427,983 to 585,621 on the basis of the 1930 census.

Woodward Contest Dismissed.

Acting on the report of its elections committee, the senate by a unanimous vote dismissed the contest brought by Robert M. Woodward, Republican, against the election of Senator William J. Connors, Democrat, in the 29th district on the near north side.

In its report the elections committee wrote that most of the allegations brought in the contest were based on "surmise, suspicion, and hearsay," and that "while there are grounds for some suspicion of irregular practices in the conduct of the election, there was offered no tangible evidence that it was chargeable to Connors or that he benefited."

In the new bills introduced today there was one affecting the Chicago Board of Trade. This measure, brought in by Senator W. E. C. Clifford [Dem., Champaign] would impose a tax of 5 cents per each $100 of sales of grain futures. The proceeds would go to the occupational [sales] tax fund.

WIFE DIVORCES MAX GOLDSTINE; GETS $500,000

Mrs. Ethel K. Goldstine, 4950 South Chicago Beach drive, obtained a half million dollar settlement yesterday when she was granted a divorce by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort from her husband, Max Goldstine, wealthy real estate operator. She alleged cruelty.

She testified that they were married in September, 1901, and of recent years quarreled over money matters. Their disputes reached a climax last October, she said, when her husband struck her and she left him.

After granting the divorce, Judge Desort conferred with Attorney Robert Cantwell Jr. for Mrs. Goldstine and Attorney Milton Sabath for the husband. At its conclusion it was announced that Mrs. Goldstine would be granted seven real estate parcels, including one at 1327 South Wabash avenue and three on South Michigan avenue at 1134, 1223, and 1517. In addition Mrs. Goldstine was given a half interest in her husband's brokerage account.

Judge Desort also granted the woman's request that she be allowed to change her name to another beginning with "G." She did not disclose the new name of her preference.

QUICK! STOP THAT COLD
IN THE DRY OR FIRST STAGE!

A cold ordinarily goes through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage.

A cold is twice as easily stopped in the first as in the second or third stages. In fact, to let a cold run beyond the first stage is inviting trouble.

As your doctor will tell you, there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It is expressly a cold tablet and not a "cure-all". It is internal treatment which a cold requires. It does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels. Second, it checks the infection in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and fever. Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack. Anything less than that may be inviting trouble.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the largest selling cold tablet in the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Take two of the tablets at four-hour intervals and you'll usually check the cold in 24 hours. That's the speed you want for comfort and for safety.

All drug stores sell Bromo Quinine and the few pennies' cost may save you dollars in doctor's bills.

FARMERS' HELP ASKED FOR NEW CONTROL PLANS

Davis Says Surplus Is Chief Threat.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Quincy, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Chester C. Davis, administrator of the agricultural adjustment act, came to Quincy today seeking farmers' support in unraveling complications of the AAA program in production control. He also wants backing for the passage of proposed amendments to the AAA present law.

As principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural association, he told farmers that serious consideration was being given to the proposal to decentralize the administration of the act. In that way, he asserted, much of the work would be handled on a sectional or regional basis. He said suggestions are being considered for regulation of live stock production by controling feed acreage. That plan would be financed from a processing tax on live stock.

Davis indicated that he favored that change, but explained that it would necessitate an amendment to the act because it is now illegal to use processing taxes on live stock to retire feed grain acreage without making benefit payments on the specific live stock taxed. To get such an amendment through the present session of congress "would take a real push from the country," he said.

Administrator Davis enumerated irritating delays and inequalities in making allotments in connection with reducing crops and live stock production last year. He warned, however, that "if control were abandoned, we would not maintain our present improved position. The surplus threat is dormant in our excess acreage of cultivated ground that never has been put back to grass. The threat is increasing by the available capital waiting to be used and by the available man power ready to pounce back upon the soil once it begins to show promise."

Farmers at the meeting indicated to Davis they were concerned over southern farmers planting corn on cotton acres taken out of production under the government program. Davis said this year cotton producers would be permitted to grow corn for home use, but not for commercial channels.

"That's hot stove league gossip," was Mr. Davis' reply when asked about the rumor of his resignation as administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment act.

"I have not made any plans as to when I will leave Washington."

George N. Peek, special foreign trade adviser to President Roosevelt, spoke tonight. He wants to see the federal government's fifty or more organizations united and his program provides for a permanent foreign trade board composed of men experienced in various fields of agriculture, industry, transportation, finance, and government.

RUSSIA REVEALS GROWTH OF ARMY TO 940,000 MEN

Defies Foes as It Flaunts Vast Increase.

MOSCOW, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A roar of applause went up from 2,500 communist throats tonight when the vice commissar for defense told the Seventh All-Union Congress of Soviets that the last four years have seen the Red army grow from 600,000 to 940,000 men.

"War is being intensively prepared against us," Mikhail Tuchacheffsky, the vice commissar, told the delegates gathered from all the vast stretches of the soviet union to review Bolshevist progress since the sixth congress in 1931.

"But let our enemies try our borders," he added defiantly, "and the strength of our army under the command of Voroshiloff [Klement Voroshiloff, commissar for defense]."

300% Increase in Air Force.

At this the whole vast throng sprang to its feet, and the great hall of columns of the Kremlin echoed for 15 minutes to the shouting and the singing of the "Internationale."

Fortifications along the eastern and western frontiers have been strengthened, the vice commissar said, while aviation has increased more than 300 per cent in the last four years. Aviation accidents also have been reduced, he said, and the air fleet is able to cover four times the area possible in 1931.

The delegates were told that the soviet spent 5,000,000,000 paper rubles for defense in 1934 and would spend 6,500,000,000 rubles this year.

Light tanks, he said, have been increased 760 per cent, tanks of the middle classification 790 per cent, submarines 435 per cent, light torpedo craft 370 per cent, and machine guns in the army 700 per cent.

Says Quality Is Improved.

Heavy artillery and ammunition has been improved greatly in quantity and quality, he said, while the radio equipment in the army has been extended 1,650 per cent and that in the aviation forces 1,900 per cent.

Coast defenses at Murmansk and along the Amur river and in other far eastern regions have been greatly strengthened, he added.

The commissar for foreign trade expressed surprise today that despite the resumption of diplomatic relations the United States "fails to avail itself of the opportunity of trade with the U. S. S. R." Arcady Rosengoltz, the commissar, told the congress:

"The Johnson act is entirely without basis as applied to the U. S. S. R. It was directed toward governments which do not pay their debts. Our imports from the United States during the first five year plan alone amounted to 530 million rubles. We made all our payments; therefore the Johnson act does not apply. Our imports from the United States in 1933-'34 consisted of the insignificent sum of 16 or 17 million rubles."

Chinese Officials Visit Chicago

To See Industries

General Yu Fei-peng, Chinese vice minister of communications, Peiping, China, and a staf of technical advisers arrived in Chicago yesterday to make inspection tours of the Pullman company shops, the International Harvester works, and other industrial plants here. The others in the party are H. C. Loh, secretary of the ministry; E. F. Wei, technical adviser; C. F. Woo, electrical expert, and C. H. Chang, engineer. They will leave for the west coast tomorrow.

SPECIAL FUEL BOOSTS SPEEDS OF ARMY PLANES

35 Miles an Hour Faster, It's Said.

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A secret new motor fuel, developed by the army air corps, adding 30 miles an hour to plane speeds was described for the first time today at the annual meeting of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

The new fuel is "100 octane." The army air corps has had it for six months.

Lieut. F. D. Klein of the Army Air corps said the name "100 octane" means the anti-knock rating.

The gasoline available to the public and to commercial aviation at present run up to only "87 octane." Lieut. Klein said that a few months ago the air corps obtained 1,000 gallons of iso-octane.

This is a liquid from petroleum, much like gasoline but of higher test. Technically it is called a "pentane." The air corps experts mixed this iso-octane with 1,000 gallons of four standard motor gasolines.

As a result they had 2,000 gallons of "100 octane" for experiment. They tried it in 10 pursuit planes, called "P-26A's" in the Mitchell trophy race at Selfridge field last November.

These planes flew a five mile circular course. With the 100 octane they made a top speed of 216.8 miles an hour. This was an increase of about 35 miles an hour for the same type planes flying a similar course.

On straightaways, Lieut. Klein said, these pursuit planes made still higher speeds with the "100 octane." His report did not give these higher speeds.

The new fuels were tried in cyclone and in wasp engines. In all cases they developed higher power. To date in general the tests have not shown definitly what if any changes will be made in engines when this "fuel of the future" comes into regular use.

Charge Soviet Agitation in Outer Mongolia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 31 (Thursday).—Crossing a rough and trackless semi-desert and fighting in 34 below zero weather, a Japanese-Manchukuan force this morning captured the town of Khalka Miao from Outer Mongolian troops. The town is the site of an important Lama temple. The Mongolians, after suffering severe losses, fled southward.

The Japanese now are nearing Buirnor (lake) in a triangular area of disputed territory which lies between the Urson and Khalka rivers south of Manchuli and Hailar. Northwest Manchukuo overlaps Outer Mongolia in this region and the indefiniteness of the border is blamed for the contention.

May Send More Troops.

A warning was uttered in the Japanese diet today that disputes along this border "may cause serious trouble" at any time. Japanese advisers in Manchukuo frequently have charged that soviet penetration into Outer Mongolia has resulted in virtual communization of the territory. The war minister, Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, intimated the Japanese garrison in Manchukuo might be increased.

"The soviet government," he said, "is professing a policy of peace, but the soviet army continues to increase its forces in the far east, especially aviation. We must be prepared to cope with it."

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's statement that there will be no war while he is in office was the subject of debate in the diet.

Deputy Toshizo Shimada, pointing out the possibility of war breaking out with the soviet Russian government in Outer Mongolia, asked Gen. Hayashi whether this was not contrary to assurances given by Hirota only a few days ago.

Gen. Hayashi replied that the present fighting cannot be construed as war, and that, moreover, Japanese troops have no intention of crossing any borders.

Charges Invasion.

He explained that the skirmishes started when Manchukuo was invaded and Manchukuans were fired upon.

Nor is the army deluding itself that China has changed its policy toward Japan. Leaders declare that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek merely listened to Japanese views in the recent talks with Japanese representatives.

The newspaper Asahi this morning says "the Nanking government has been placed in financial embarrassment and also is meeting difficulties with communists and bandit problems and finds neither America nor Europe willing to extend more loans. Consequently China is approaching Japan to sound out the policy, but a sudden change in China's policy toward Japan cannot be expected. Chiang merely is attempting to utilize Japan."

POLAND LAUGHS OFF REPORT OF MILITARY PACT WITH JAPAN

WARSAW, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Trustworthy Polish sources laughed off tonight reports of a Polish-Japanese secret military agreement, existence of which, they said, "would be a violation of the Russo-Polish nonaggression pact."

They emphasized, however, that relations between Poland and Japan were of the friendliest, but "the geographical distance between the two countries obviates any military agreement." It was also strongly denied that a Japanese military delegation had toured Poland.

Traced to France.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Rumors of a military agreement between Japan and Poland reached Berlin through Paris today. The newspaper Berliner Tageblatt quoted an article published in Le Temps, leading French paper. Le Temps' article also claimed a Japanese military attaché at Warsaw had inspected arsenals and troops.

CHIANG'S ARMY DRIVES CHINESE REDS TO HILLS

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Hunan and Nanking armies under Marshal Chiang Kai-shek steadily pushed the communist forces westward toward the inhospitable Punnan mountains today. Chiang's purpose was twofold. He was driving the Reds from China and the provinces into obedience to Nanking.

Reports from West Hunan, Kewichow, South Szechwan, and Shensi provinces indicated the Reds were moving into the west. To the southward the provincial forces with the aid of 4,000 Kanking soldiers were reported advancing, and pushing the Reds and some allied outlaws into North Yunnan. The threat to the cities along the Yangtse river appeared greatly lessened although tension was not relaxed.

Yangtse river trafic was halted during the dark hours to escape possible plain clothes raids by the communists. Numerous American missionaries arrived here although their outlying stations thus far remained unharmed.

IF YOU EAT STARCHES MEATS, SWEETS Read This:

They're all necessary foods — but all acid-forming. Hence most of us have "Acid Stomach" at times. Easy now to relieve.

The so-called "indigestion" from which so many of us suffer, doctors now tell us is often only acid indigestion. Brought on by too many acid-forming foods in our daily diet—by wholesome necessary foods such as starches, sweets, meats. The result is felt in pain, nausea, "gas," soon after eating. Most people should eat these foods in proper combination with others. If you do and still suffer occasionally from "acid stomach," don't worry, as your doctor will probably tell you there is now a way that provides relief often in the space of minutes.

What You Do

All you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. This acts to almost immediately neutralize the stomach acidity that brings on your trouble.

You have fewer headaches and "indigestion pains," less "gas." Best of all, you can soon again eat a normal diet without difficulty. Many people who have tried this say you can "forget you have a stomach!"

If you have such "acid stomach" upsets occasionally, try it just once, and you'll wonder why someone hadn't told you about it before! Take the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'", or, now the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Get either today at your druggist's. Be sure, though, that the bottle or box is clearly marked Genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. Watch out for this.

Also in Tablet Form: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. 25c and 50c packages. Large family size, 200 tablets—$1.00.

TRY GRANDSON OF JEAN MILLET FOR HUGE ART FAKE

100 Spurious Paintings Shown in Court.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 30.—More than 100 canvases bearing the purported signatures of Millet, Corot, Monet, and other leaders of the French impressionist school were piled in a courtroom at Fontainebleau today.

All had been declared false and were exhibited as samples of a "faked art factory," alleged to have been conducted for years by Jean Charles Millet, grandson of the painter, and Paul Cazot.

The two men were accused of fraud in misrepresenting the art works, in placing false signatures on them and in selling them to dealers. It is asserted hundreds of these excellent copies now adorn museums and private collections in all parts of Europe and the United States. Mme. Labe, Cazot's former wife, was charged with complicity and with receiving fraudulent goods.

Proud of His Work.

Millet answered the judge's questions with nonchalance. He seemed to be chiefly interested in proving that he was a talented painter, much more so than Cazot, who appears to have done most of the art work. Cazot, taking advantage of his deafness, succeeded in evading nearly every question.

In reviewing the case the magistrate said Cazot not only forged the signatures of the great artists, but on the spurious Millets he affixed the great artist's studio mark, which had been supplied by the grandson.

Millet, the magistrate said, then asserted the paintings were works of his grandfather, and a whole gallery of spurious art was placed on display at Barbizon in the forest of Fontainebleau. Hundreds of foreign tourists visited the gallery yearly.

Deceives Scotchman.

Millet said he had obtained between 500,000 and 600,000 francs [$33,000 to $40,000] for pictures sold to a Scottish art dealer, Thompson of Barbizon house, London.

"But Thompson in turn sold these same works for more than 10,000,000 francs" [$655,625], testified Millet, "and one of the pictures, 'The Binders,' still hangs in a gallery in Edinburgh."

"That may be one of the reasons Thompson's son and heir refused to file suit against you," said the magistrate.

"Thompson's Scotch," said Millet, "and Scotchmen have great respect for millions."

Millet expressed contempt for the art experts.

"They listed one of these paintings as 'A Woman in an Overcoat,' and anybody can see it is an authentic painting by my grandfather, showing a rear view of himself."

One alleged victim testified that he was so pleased with his "Boudin" beach scene that he did not care whether Boudin or Cazot had painted it.

A "fabulous price" is the only requirement to convince American and English art experts of a picture's authenticity, Millet declared.

"The so-called American and English experts," he declared scornfully, "know nothing about art. They buy only pictures with pedigrees, but have not the slightest notion whether they are genuine or not. All you have to do is ask a fabulous price."

GETAWAY CHART LINKS KARPIS TO ST. PAUL MURDER

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Members of the notorious Barker-Karpis gang were linked today to the slaying of a St. Paul policeman a year and a half ago. This added charge followed finding of a minutely drawn "getaway" chart by federal agents in a Cleveland hideout of the mob.

Discovery of the chart, though announced today, occurred several months ago when three women members of the mob were arrested in Cleveland. The chart contains markings of every tenth of a mile of the road the slayers of the policeman expected to traverse in making their escape.

Policeman Leo Pavlak, 38, was mowed down by machine gun bullets in front of the South St. Paul postoffice on Aug. 30, 1933, in the sensational $30,000 pay roll holdup of the postoffice. The markings on the chart start from immediately in front of the postoffice and lead to an adjacent state.

The chart was found in the Cleveland apartment of Mrs. Harry Sawyer. Her husband is under indictment in the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer. She and two other women were arrested by federal men in that flat. One of those other women was Winona Burdette, who accompanied Public Enemies Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell when those gunmen shot their way out of a trap in Atlantic City, N. J., ten days ago. The women, however, were captured when the two outlaws escaped.

FIRES AT POLICE; GETS YEAR.

Joseph Tabor, 21 years old, 1241 Ancona street, was sentenced yesterday to serve a year in the Bridewell and fined $25 for assault to kill. Policeman Otto Buck said Tabor fired at him when a police squad broke up a drunken party in Tabor's home.

"Ufus" Isaacson Loser in Love Suit

No Damages

A verdict in favor of Mrs. Mary Byrn Alexander, widow of Harry O. Alexander, former official of the International Harvester company, against whom Robert Isaacson, 37 year old liquor jobber, of 1246 Pratt boulevard, had brought a $100,000 heart balm suit, was returned yesterday morning in the Superior court of Judge Frank H. Hayes. The jury reached the verdict Tuesday night, but the verdict was sealed and opened yesterday.

Isaacson, who had spent the greater part of two days in court telling the jury of the mental anguish he suffered when, he said, Mrs. Alexander on four occasions postponed their proposed wedding, appeared calm as the verdict was read. The widow, who lives at the Edgewater Beach hotel, did not appear at the trial. She is said to be in Florida.

Isaacson, referred to during the trial by the endearing term "Ufus," said if he knew Mrs. Alexander's present address he would send her a telegram of congratulation and tell her he still loved her and would marry her if she would have him.

He is to appear before Judge Francis Allegretti in Superior court today for failure to pay $400 support money to his second wife, mother of his 10 year old child.

HOMEWOOD PWA PROJECT HALTED BY UNION STRIKE

Work on the $52,000 water softening plant for the village of Homewood, which was started with public works administration funds, was halted yesterday when the Chicago Bridge and Iron works started the construction of the storage tanks. The building trades council of Chicago called the union men off the job, and at a meeting in the afternoon with Mayor Joseph Schwartz the union representative said the company, which operates on an open shop basis, must sublet its contract to a company using union labor before the work can proceed. The company, according to Mayor Schwartz, pays the union wage scale.

WOMEN SELECT 70 PCT. OF CARS SOLD AT SHOW

Streamlining Fits In with Demand for Beauty.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Women have done 70 per cent of the choosing in the purchase of automobiles during the 35th annual automobile show in progress in the Coliseum, a survey of salesmen on the floor indicated yesterday.

One salesman hinted that the increasing use of streamlining in this year's cars was carried out largely for the beauty of line thus created. Women, he said, demand it.

Others maintained that streamlining has been adopted solely for practical purposes. They pointed out that lowered wind resistance meant not only increased speed but more mileage on a gallon of gasoline.

Molded to Reduce Air Eddies.

Some of the new features in streamlining were pointed out in the decorative new cars. In one the molding or "fairing" of the lamps so that the fenders, lamps, and hood of the car blended together, eliminate the air eddies which previously formed around the lamps and between the fenders and sides of the hood.

Other front lamps were set into the fenders. Tires were recessed in the rear decks of certain cars. In others, the rear of the car presented an almost straight back appearance, with space for luggage and an extra tire shut inside.

Fenders as a whole appear much more massive and sweeping in line than in previous models. In one car the fenders are so low that they extend down below the hub cap and on an even line with the running board, emphasizing its lowhung appearance.

Angles Are Eliminated.

Gas tank taps are found in rear fenders, a typical feature of the designer's economy of line. Wherever possible all extraneous angles are cut out. With the new deep fenders it has been found necessary in some cars to attach jack-pads to rear spring shackles. By this means a woman, without soiling her clothes, can insert a jack and elevate the car for repairs when a tire goes flat.

Compartments under the cowl and to the right of the instrument panels in the newer cars are almost universal. Here may be kept a cocktail set and bottle, or gloves, and packages.

Safety Devices Improved.

Various safety devices have undergone improvement. Among these there is a solid steel top, made from one piece of steel insulated against heat and cold.

A V-shaped windshield, divided in the middle, acts as an additional wind resisting feature in some cars, at the same time providing extra support. Double windshield wipers which work from the bottom of the windshield are designed to prevent snow from interfering with their functioning.

AUTO SHOW NOTES

The management of the automobile show announced last night, following a day of heavy patronage, that attendance for the exhibit to date was 40 per cent ahead of last year and that sales were up 65 per cent. With favorable weather, an eight day attendance of 350,000 may be reached before the show closes on Saturday night, it was indicated.

Secretary of State Hughes' special branch office in the Coliseum this week had received 1,200 applications for automobile licenses up to last night.

Joseph B. Graham, president of Graham-Paige Motors corporation, will address a dealer luncheon at the Hotel Stevens today. Other officials attending will include Robert C. Graham, executive vice president, and A. L. Philp, another vice president. B. G. Sykes, Chicago distributor, will preside.

The twelfth annual motor salon of north side dealers in the Edgewater Beach hotel clocked 27,861 visitors in its first four days. William M. Dewey, managing director, said the crowds are four times greater than last year. He added that 263 bona fide sales were made on the show floor.

William E. Holler, sales manager of Chevrolet, said that 90 per cent of the orders received for the 1935 master de luxe series called for knee action front wheels. The individual spring assembly is optional equipment this year at $20 additional cost.

QUARRELS OVER CONTRACT BRIDGE WRECK ROMANCE

Contract bridge wrecked the romance of Allen Blazer, 31 years old, a contractor with offices at 719 East 75th street, and his wife, Emma, 22 years old, 6014 Harper avenue, she testified before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday. They were married in January, 1929, began quarreling over cards soon after, and separated on that account on Monday, she testified under questioning of her attorney, Harry X. Cole. Judge Desort awarded her a divorce and $7 a week support money for her daughter, Beverley, 1 year old.

MELLOWNESS in "BOTTOMS-UP" PROVED EASY WAY

"BOTTOMS UP" Whisky is now ESTER-TESTED for mellowness before bottling. The high ester content of "BOTTOMS UP" is brought about by the high quality of the ingredients used—the high percentage of expensive small grains—special care in distillation—and the famous 65-year old formula. Esters also develop by age. Unless any distillation of "BOTTOMS UP" meets the required ester count, it is left for further aging. Present bottling is of December, 1933, distillation.

A simple test proves the extra flavor and mellowness in "BOTTOMS UP". Heat a little in a glass. Esters are driven off by heat. By smelling the heated whisky you can distinguish the superior aromatic flavor of "BOTTOMS UP".

DEFEAT OF THE WORLD COURT.

President Roosevelt has shared the fate of his predecessors and has failed in a spirited attempt to obtain the consent of the senate to adherence to the court of international justice. As at other times, a majority of the senators were obtainable, but the opposition could hold the minority in sufficient numbers to deny the necessary two-thirds or to force in nullifying reservations. The principle of American government from the beginning has been that treaties and international arrangements were of such great importance that none should lack the consent of less than two-thirds of the senators voting. The wisdom of this has been often demonstrated, and no instance occurs to mind in which an injury to the country has been plainly proved with responsibility laid at the door of this restriction upon the treaty-making power.

Both the league of nations and its judicial instrument, the court, have been persistently put forward by undiscouraged organizations in the United States. Both have failed of adoption. At various times the American government has used all its implied authority to make as many connections with the Geneva assemblage as it could. The most recent is the acceptance of membership in the International Labor office on the governing board of which a place will be made for the new American representation. Although administrations, whether Republican or Democratic, have tried to press through the senate more definite commitments to the league and its affiliates, there has never been a political indication revealed in the elections that there was popular support for this.

America distrusts commitment to unknown and probably unknowable consequences in Europe. Although the world court was described as a judicial body, disconnected from the political influences, the feeling in America was that this could not be. Whatever its supporters might say for it, there was a court without a unified national tradition, without a lawmaking body, unless that body were the league of nations, and without a homogeneous body of people to whom its voice would be one of judicial authority with their own consent.

Honest advocates of the court have regarded it as a means of resolving issues before they could become provocations for conflict, but Americans have observed the working of many of these mechanisms and have seen that too many times just when they should begin to serve their largest purpose they have led to greater complications than they sought to avoid. America has suffered already from this. It trusted too much to the nine-power treaty in the far east and too much to the Kellogg peace pact. As a result an overzealous secretary of state, Mr. Stimson, went too far with Japan in insisting upon solemn international agreements and created a situation which is still one of doubt.

The sincere opponents of the world court believe that the United States can best preserve the peace by being free at all times to act upon its own peaceable impulses and desires, without alliances or agreements which would obligate it in advance of the occurrence of an issue to do things which its judgment at the time might not approve.

The United States has no reason to believe that its greatest security is not preserved by its freedom of decision and action in each case which affects it. That freedom contains no threat to any other nation and it is still believed to be the best guaranty of wise conduct which America could find.

BUSES VS. STREET CARS.

"A Voting Citizen" addressing the Voice of the People asks why rails are essential in the operation of a street car system.

Rails, as it is generally known, were the outgrowth of a necessity to surface those parts of a dirt road that were constantly becoming rutted by heavy travel. When Jessup suggested a flange to keep the wheels from straying away from these embryonic rails the combination became a railroad. Now that our streets and highways are surfaced from curb to curb our reader may well suggest the advisability of junking the street railways. We are scarcely prepared to voice a demand for such drastic action, but a discussion of the topic as well as the possibility or even probability of the bus superseding the street railway will be very appropriate in view of the widespread dissatisfaction with our traction system.

That buses for street service have distinct advantages is clear. The vehicle will load and discharge at the curb, leaving the center of the street for through traffic. Express or limited stop services are entirely feasible, as buses can pass each other at will and also can make detours around street blockades irrespective of cause. Street cars, on the other hand, practically monopolize the valuable center of the thoroughfare, while "safety islands" such as have been constructed on the newer sections of Lincoln avenue have the practical effect of reducing what was constructed as a six lane highway to a two lane business street. An accident to a trolley car, the blocking of the right of way by a disabled truck or a fire brings service to a standstill. Limited stop schedules for the longer hauls are not feasible. The bus as a competitor of trolley service has made such substantial gains in our city that it can no longer be ignored by the Surface lines, and in New York the street cars are rapidly becoming a thing of the past. In many other cities and towns the bus is challenging the supremacy of the trolley car.

In the long run the struggle will be decided by public approval. The street car can be made far more comfortable and noiseless. It can continue to offer Chicago the convenience and dispatch that it requires, but the management of the Surface lines will do well to heed the threat of the virile automotive industry. Funds are available for improvement, earmarked for equipment renovation, but are apparently being used as a stake in a game of poker for franchise considerations. As our reader suggests, the participants may become so engrossed in their game that a widespread demand for the removal of the rails will develop.

THE GOLDEN AND OTHER GEESE.

A spring note of New Deal cheerfulness follows the Supreme court decision in the West Virginia chain store case that the burden and extent of a tax is within the discretion of the legislature and confiscation is only a business risk. This seems to make available all the wealth of the country. Although the court did not exactly break new ground, the majority opinion upheld the right of a government to tax as it pleases, where it pleases, whom it pleases, and in the amount it pleases, even letting the devil race with the tax collector to see who finally got the victim.

New Dealers do not all look alike or think alike, but none worries about spending other people's money, and many of the most hopeful believe that the citizens who prove themselves most competent in earning money can be harnessed up to the social machinery and made to earn for general uses. The best providers are to become the dumb ox and the patient ass.

A profound effect upon the social structure of the nation is expected from probable harnessing of the money makers to the cart of general welfare. The change in American life following the use of taxation for expropriation may be great, but it may not be quite in the direction expected by the New Deal. Human nature has yet to develop a person who will work hard habitually to make a great deal of money for some stranger to take away from him, he knowing that he will be deprived of what he makes. Compulsion of various kinds has made men work, but it hasn't made them produce other than by enforced labor which any man could do.

Compulsion will not produce extraordinary talents. American culture may be affected by confiscating taxation, but the likely thing is that it will turn all the competent citizens to the cultivation of leisure. Mr. Ford has at present two interests. One is making automobiles. The other is collecting Americana. When the New Deal gets around to taking his money away from him he will probably find that it is more fun to get in one of his own cars and run about the country looking at early American architecture, Kentucky rifles, period furniture, and hooked rugs. Why make automobiles for other people?

If this example should be widely followed, it would diversify the interests of Americans. A citizen would be inclined to make as much money as the government would permit him to possess and use for himself and family and thereupon undertake to get as much fun as possible out of nonprofitable activities. He might raise dahlias, or hunt mountain sheep, play tennis, learn to paint [not houses or barns, but pictures], learn to fiddle, go fishing, or just sit about and listen to the birds.

The chances are America would lose the reproach, if it be one, of containing only a money grubbing people. It would go in for the arts of leisure in a large way, but the New Deal would be raising its own potatoes. The idea that the taxes can be levied without stint upon a never diminishing source of revenues is only a belief that when the golden goose has been to the chopping block it picks up its head, slaps it back on, and goes contently to the nest again.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Sun.]

Yesterday the owners of the Hamilton Woolen company, whose plant is in Southbridge, Mass., surrendered to the agitators who sowed dissension among its workers, intimidated its loyal men and made profitable operation impossible. They voted to close the mill. They sacrifice a business which was profitable in the past and, if undisturbed by outsiders, capable of earning profit in the future.

Today 1,100 men and women of Southbridge who have earned in the Hamilton plant their own livings and the livings of their dependents will begin to look for new jobs. Among them are men and women whose roots strike deep in Southbridge, men and women who have been loyal in their service. Among them, too, are men and women who turned against the company because they were deluded by glib organizers from outside who preached the doctrins of socialism and of anarchy, using any philosophy that served their purpose of inculcating suspicion, ill will and bad feeling. Some of these men and women have savings piled up against a rainy day. Their rainy day has come.

Tomorrow the selectmen of Southbridge will be looking for means to feed and clothe and shelter certain of these men and women. The selectmen's job will be difficult; the 1,100 are a fifth of the workers in the town; they include home owners and renters who hitherto have paid taxes, directly or indirectly. The selectmen can seize and sell the homes of owners who do not pay their taxes, evicting the jobless, along with their children; but this is not a satisfactory way to collect taxes.

Day after tomorrow some of the owners of the company may be looking for shelter, may be looking for food. Commonly in such a corporation there are share owners whose all is in the company—widows, old men, youngsters who are beneficiaries of estates that hard work and self-denial built up. Some of them, too, may see their homes sold for taxes by the selectmen of Southbridge.

But the agitators will not be able to see the full fruits of their victory. They will hurry off to some other town where fresh dupes await them to contribute to "war chests" or "defense funds" on which these interesting parasitical products of industrialism grow fat.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WASHINGTON ANNOUNCES the depression is definitely over because there has never been a winter in that gay city so full of dances, dinners, cocktail parties, morning musicals, receptions, and nights which do not end until well after sunup the next day. I suppose all that does mean the depression is ended forever, or at least I would think so if I could just forget about that big fire in Rome and Nero playing his fiddle. Darn Nero; he shouldn't have fiddled. It still makes us jittery.

CULTURED THOUGHT FOR THE DAY! Jan. 31: Ben Jonson born 1574. You can show how erudite you are by filling up a gap in the dinner table conversation by saying, "Oh, this is the thirty-first of January, isn't it? Why that's the day Ben Jonson was born." Somebody will probably ask, "Who, the California senator?" and as you probably don't know any more about Ben Jonson except that it's his birthday, you can say "Oh, dear, no; he was a Confederate general in the Civil War." Of course he wasn't, but nowadays nobody knows that. Jonson wrote a lot of plays, but as none of them have been put into the movies, then, of course, we don't have to pay any attention to that. He is chiefly remarkable because he had prophetic vision. His name was originally spelled Johnson, but Ben said some day there are going to be so many Johnsons around having that for a name will be just as unusual as belonging to the human race. I'm going to knock the h out of my name right now. Which he did, and thereby escaped being confused with Gen. Hugh Johnson, the one time boss of the NRA, and with Mose Johnson, who used to whitewash our chicken coop every spring.

REMEMBERING AN OLD DOG.

The paths are lonely now, and empty as the air
Of echoes from her low deep-throated bark.
My heart is sensitive somewhere

Dragging one paw across the graveled walk,
She came with vigilance, ever aware
Of me, her great eyes lifting to my face. No talk
Between us: it was she who proved how bare

And cruel our endless words, and how they smell
Of a most comical futility.
This dog, dumb creature, knew how well
Revealed the soul of man might be, quite silently.

How gratefully she paused beside this seat,
Panting to rest, yet willing that I gauge
The distance: my wish the candle of her fate!

Where are you now, dear eyes? Farewell
Can never have been meant between us two.
I know the Brownings could not relish Heaven
(nor Hell!)
Sans Flush. No more could I, forever wanting you.

MARY FASSETT HUNT.

THE DEFEAT of the World Court in the senate reminds us of the old adage that you "can lead a rubber stamp to water, but you can't always make it drink." Or something like that. Or maybe it's the one about pushing a rubber stamp too hard, for some day it's liable to turn. Or maybe it's that one that says, "Even a rubber stamp, when driven into a corner, is liable to turn and fight." Anyhow, there's some old adage on the subject, but I can't quite think of it.

MY GREATEST objection to our going into the World Court was that it is called the Permanent Court of International Justice. There is no such thing as International Justice. Otherwise why did England, France, Italy, and the rest of 'em refuse to pay the U. S. A. its lawful debts? There is no such thing even as national justice, or why am I soaked so heavy on my income tax? There is no such thing as city justice, or why don't we see a policeman on our street once in ten years? There is no such thing as ward justice, or why do I have to grab my little dog and climb a tree when a great growling, unleashed, cross-looking police dog comes around the corner? There is no neighborhood justice, or why doesn't that bird around the corner shovel the snow off his sidewalk? Justice! There hain't no sich animule!

IN SAVAGE or half civilized countries the eclipse of the sun is regarded as prophesying the happening of some dread event. Of course we tut, tut such a silly superstition, but just the same the sun is going into eclipse next Sunday, and the next day the Supreme court is expected to give its decision on the gold bonds. Oh, of course, the eclipse of the sun doesn't have any effect at all on earthly affairs, but at the same time—well, it does make one just a little nervous.

(Re the Hohenzollern.)

Gentle old Willie is seventy-five!
Golly, it's grand to be alive . . .
And gentle old Willie, the running king
Who thought to run was the kingly thing—
Willie and all of Willie's sons
Did their warring far, far from the guns
And the murdered lads of the Potsdam Prince
Haven't known any birthdays since—
They'd doubtless much prefer being alive . . .
But gentle old Willie is seventy-five!

THE DIET FACTOR IN GALLSTONES.

FOR many years debate has waxed and waned as to the origin of gallstones. There are many who believe that infection is the basic cause; that bacterial growths causing inflammation bring about a deposit of solid material from the bile. On the other hand many gall bladders in which there is no evidence of infection or inflammation are found to contain gallstones.

Other investigators hold that failure of the gall bladder to empty normally is a prominent factor. Whenever the gall bladder does not contract rhythmically, as in normal health, the condition known as stasis (similar to constipation) results. This may be followed by infection or by a slowing down of the secretion of bile. When bile is stagnant in the gall bladder certain changes occur. The bile becomes more concentrated and substances held in solution when plenty of fluid is present are precipitated.

Gallstones are of two general types: (1) those composed of cholesterol and (2) those composed of calcium and bile pigments. In some gallstones both chemical compounds are present. A very high percentage of all gallstones is of the first variety and we may understand the frequent formation of cholesterol stones from the fact that this substance is found in the bile.

The source of cholesterol is not entirely clear. However, it is known that it comes from fats and from the breaking down of body cells, especially the red blood cells. It increases markedly in the blood in kidney disease and in diabetes. Inasmuch as the body apparently attempts to excrete it via the liver, the reason for its presence in the bile is clear.

Whenever an individual undergoes a rapid reduction in weight large quantities of stored up cholesterol are liberated, with the result that the blood takes up a high concentration of this substance. It is, therefore, important that all persons following a reducing diet make certain that the gall bladder is active during this period, as more cholesterol in the bile than normal may mean the beginning of gallstones.

The adult body needs but a relatively small amount of cholesterol and most of us take in entirely too much with our food. Among the substances high in cholesterol are brain, liver, kidney, sweetbreads, fish roe, and egg yolk. For example, egg yolk contains ten times as much cholesterol as butter, twenty times as much as chicken, and nearly thirty times as much as lean beef.

Although fat in the diet stimulates indirectly the contraction of the gall bladder it should not be given in any appreciable quantity to patients who have infected gall bladders or gallstones. In general the dietary plan for patients with any type of gall bladder disease should include small, regular meals, each followed by a half hour of rest. All foods that possess tough fibers, including raw vegetables, and fried and highly seasoned foods should be avoided. Starches, sugars, fruit juices, cereals, and plenty of lean meat should form the nucleus of the diet. Water should be taken freely but no more than the ordinary amount with meals. Six to eight glasses in each twenty-four hours, in addition to the routine water consumption, is advised.

CYSTS.

Worried writes:

1. What causes ovarian cyst?
2. What might be the result if operation is not performed for several years?
3. Is there any effective treatment other than operation?
4. What effect will the operation for the removal of an ovary have on the prospects of childbirth?

REPLY.

1. We do not know. It is thought that there may be some congenital malformation or an irritation of the structure of the ovary.
2. The cyst may continue to enlarge, with resulting destruction of the substance of the ovary.
3. Operation is the only cure.
4. If only one ovary is removed, pregnancy is possible. In removing a cyst it is not always necessary to remove the entire ovary.

OPERATION NEEDED.

G. M. K. writes: Approximately a year ago my basal metabolism rate was plus 47. Now, after ten X-ray treatments, the test is plus 35. I have decided tremors. Would you suggest surgery as the only possible solution?

REPLY.

Since your metabolism rate is still too high and you have tremors, apparently the X-ray treatments have not greatly reduced the toxic condition of the thyroid gland. Surgery is the best and safest remedy. The operation should be performed by an expert in this field.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

It is said that the hair of both Marie Antoinette and Mary Queen of Scots, turned white while they were on their way to the scaffold. Many similar stories are current today. But Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, casts grave doubt on these tales, saying: "From our knowledge of the hair . . . it seems unreasonable to believe that the long hair of a woman could completely lose its pigment within twenty-four hours, or, in fact, even a week." He says that there has never been a single authenticated case reported in medical literature. The outer end of a hair is a dead structure and has no connection with the nervous system or even the blood stream.

SPEED.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—May I protest against THE TRIBUNE'S demand for faster trains? So long as we have thousands of grade crossings I believe the damages exceed the benefits. Those who must travel fast have a ready facility in the airplane. The chance of injuring innocent people by that form of transportation is slight.

A current magazine quotes the sentiments of Dr. Millikan, the scientist, "that records of transportation are important, but not so important as whether the men who last year used our vaunted methods of eating space were more thoughtful and kindly than those who were transported the year before. We may boast how speedily we get about and forget how to walk peacefully and reflectively with ourselves. The question is, not how fast the wheels turned in 1934, but 'how slow and firm were the feet of thoughtful men upon the earth.'"

The above also applies to the few who demand faster automobiles and to those who yield to the demand and make them. Speed still remains the cause of the seriousness of most bad accidents. The demand for speed nullifies the appeals for safety.

Judge, Superior Court.

FLAX.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—I hope that you will allow me to express my disappointment over an article in this morning's paper entitled "New Plan Raises Hope for Flax Industry in United States," and signed by Frank Ridgway. Frankly, I consider such an article an insult to the mentality of your subscribers.

If Mr. Salin's discovery consists of no more than is set forth in Mr. Ridgway's article it is no discovery at all to anybody but these two gentlemen, since processes of batching and chemical treatments to that effect have been in use in Europe for over twenty years in some instances. Any one of a dozen treatments in use now by numerous manufacturers abroad will do all of the things to flax which Mr. Salin claims for his discovery. As a matter of fact, flax can be degummed by a very simple treatment with a mild solution of nitric acid in a few minutes, not weeks nor even hours.

Mr. Ridgway writes that "the fibers from flax degummed by this method are so thoroughly separated that they may be spun on cotton spinners," and "the fiber is so soft it may be mixed with cotton and woven into fabric containing both fibers." Let me assure you that there is not one single machine in the entire process of spinning cotton which could be used for flax, nor is there any way, matter or means whereby cotton and flax could be either spun or woven together nor mixed for that purpose.

I shall not attempt to bore you with any lengthy explanations, as you can get those from anybody that has ever seen a spinning mill. I merely wish to say that a very long staple cotton is about one inch in actual length, with one and one-eighth inch the absolute maximum, whereas flax measures from eighteen to thirty inches in length and sometimes more. You could no more hope to spin the two together nor on the same machine than you could have Glenn Cunningham outrun the Zephyr between Chicago and Los Angeles.

JOINT NAVAL MANEUVERS.

New York, Jan. 28.—I have suggested to the secretary of the navy that the British government be invited to participate in our naval maneuvers in the Pacific by sending a fleet to coördinate with our fleet in joint maneuvers, and I should be pleased to learn of the reaction of the readers of THE TRIBUNE to that suggestion.

During the world war our navy cooperated with the British navy, and I believe joint maneuvers would be wonderfully helpful to our naval officers and also to officers of Great Britain and the British dominions.

I also believe that just at this time such joint maneuvers would be wonderfully helpful, in the interests of peace, as a gesture indicating a close relationship, without a treaty, of the English speaking nations. It would lead to a feeling of greater security on the part of the people of our Pacific coast states.

H. J. BLOOMER.

A STEEL BALL IS NOT A BALL BEARING.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 28.—Since Sept. 25 last we have read a great deal in the newspapers of the fatal wounding of Mrs. Mary Kennard, who was struck presumably with a steel ball hurled from a slingshot. The newspapers persist in referring to the missil as a steel ball bearing. This evident error is not strange, for in our experience we find that a great majority of people refer to a steel ball as a ball bearing.

A steel ball is a spherical body or mass of metal, usually solid, and collectively they are often assembled with other parts to make a ball bearing.

A ball bearing, on the other hand, is a complete unit which usually consists of a number of steel balls inserted between races.

HAROLD E. JOHNSON.

THIS IS HARD TO TAKE.

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 24.—I am a CHICAGO TRIBUNE editorial fan. TRIBUNE editorials [and Abraham Lincoln speeches] have been my only college. Whatever of felicity of expression I possess I have acquired by soaking up daily for many years TRIBUNE editorials. A reader who fills up on news and special features, neglecting the editorial columns, is like a diner who fills up on bread, meat, and potatoes and then passes up peach cobbler drowned in cream.

You editors rarely fail to make the grade which should be the goal of all writers—to be weighty, never heavy. Your obvious care to select the one word needed to make the hit desired must delight all readers who are careful with their English, as it does me.

In today's TRIBUNE you editors outdid yourselves. Of the four editorials—"The President and the Public Purse," "The Counting House Cupid," "Cuba Heads for the Jungle," "Agriculture à la Russe"—none was just newspaper English; all were literature. And as if that menu was not rich enough, as dessert was appended that perfect and picturesque bit of writing from the Detroit Free Press on the menace of Huey Long. A reader would be dumb indeed not to get the horse sense and clarity, also the sparkling wit, satire, and humor running through all like threads of gold as fillips to the appetite.

There is available to all who would continue their education after school days are over a postgraduate course in THE TRIBUNE editorials at 3 cents per day.

IONIA.

STRAIGHTFORWARD.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 24.—I have just read your editorial "The President and the Public Purse" and want to laud and applaud you for your courage in this editorial and the straightforward wording of it.

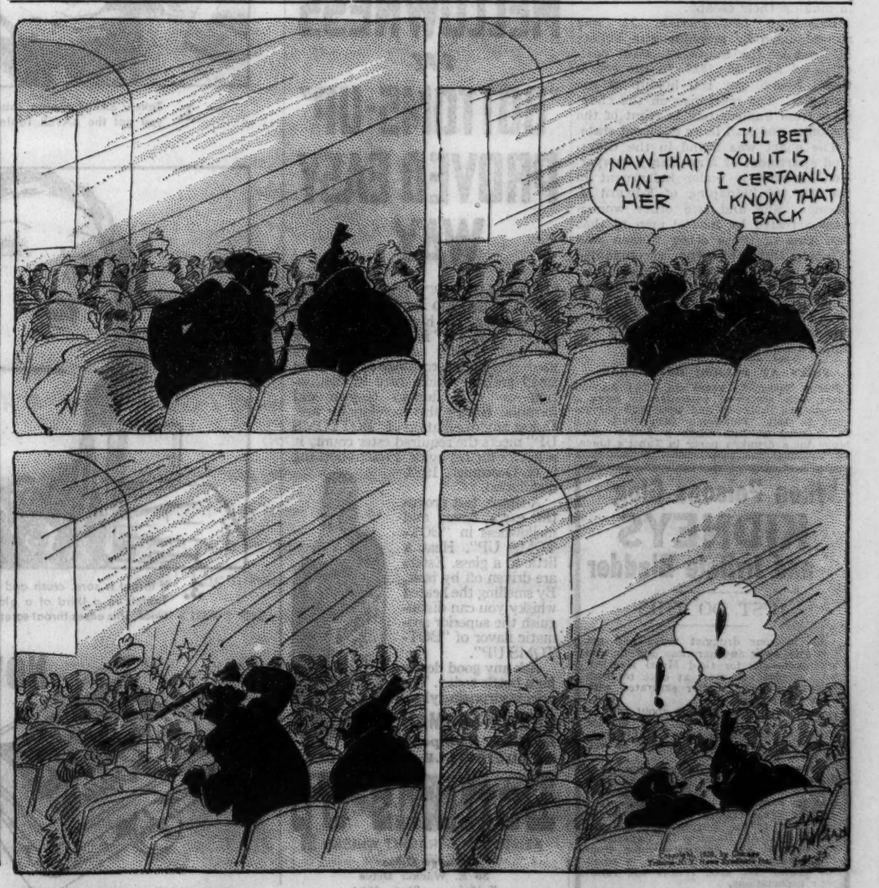
WRONG NUMBER



TELLS OFFER OF "FIXER" TO LAND SHIP CONTRACTS

$250,000 Disbursed for Builders' Lobby.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Laurence R. Wilder, prominent shipbuilder, who admits handling a $250,000 shipbuilders' lobby fund before congress in 1928, testified before the senate munitions committee today in confirmation of charges that he had been approached by a representative of a "fixer" said to be able to obtain naval contracts for him in exchange for an honorarium.

The committee questioned Mr. Wilder, former president of the New York Shipbuilding corporation for more than two hours, taking up evidence that he had given to John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, a list of the low bidders for the ships included in the 1933 program, in advance of the opening of the bids.

"Guessed Right."

He had "guessed right" as a result of general knowledge of the shipbuilding situation and also by "picking some of the information out of the air," was his explanation to the committee today.

During a vigorous examination by Senator Clark he admitted he had headed the "lobby" that operated in 1928 to bring about the enactment of merchant marine legislation that would be satisfactory not only to the shipbuilders but also to the ship operators.

During these activities about $250,000 was advanced to him, he said, the contributors being the principal shipping interests of the country, including shipbuilders as well as ship operators. None of it, he said, went to senators.

Shearer At Hearing.

William B. Shearer, whose "big navy" activities at Geneva precipitated the senate investigation of 1930, was in the hearing room today and Senator Bone of Washington after noting this, asked the witness if Mr. Shearer had been associated with him in the 1928 lobby. Mr. Wilder said no, but added:

"However I will say that Mr. Shearer has been a gold mine to me so far as information is concerned. He has a way of finding out things."

Mr. Shearer joined in the laughter that followed, and when the hearing adjourned posed with Mr. Wilder for a picture showing them examining a committee shipbuilding exhibit.

Mr. Wilder testified that William Calvin, secretary treasurer of the metal trades department of the AFOL, was narrating facts when he testified yesterday that A. B. Gravem, a Washington lawyer, had approached him in August, 1933, and offered, in return for a fee of $250,000 to be paid to an undisclosed "fixer," to obtain for gulf industries, of which Mr. Wilder was the head, from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 of the 1933 program contracts.

"Fixer" to Be Named.

Mr. Gravem and the man whom he is said to have called the "fixer" were understood to have been present. The alleged "fixer" is under subpena and will follow Mr. Gravem on the witness stand tomorrow.

Several times during his examination by Senator Clark Mr. Wilder referred to the New York Shipbuilding corporation, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company as the "unholy three," insisting, though never saying it in so many words, that there was plenty of ground for suspicion that collusion was practiced by these corporations, and that the 1933 program was divided into three equal parts one part to each of "the unholy three."

BLIND ATTORNEY REUNITED WITH HIS 'SEEING EYE'

For two hours yesterday afternoon, Nubia, a jet black German shepherd dog, was separated from her master, Herbert F. Geisler, an attorney with offices at 38 South Dearborn street, who has been blind for twenty years. But true to the rigorous training of the Seeing Eye organization of Morristown, N. J., and that of her master, whom she has led about the city streets for three months, Nubia was found at the Union station where they were accustomed to catch a 5:20 o'clock suburban train.

Crossing Wabash avenue and Monroe street, Geisler accidentally dropped the dog's leash. Several persons reached for it, but Nubia became excited, and started running south. Aided by a trafic policeman, Geisler tried to follow her, but lost trace of her near the station.

Two hours later Geisler was notified that Nubia was in the hands of Frank Genovese, 1062 Taylor street, a newsboy at the Adams street corner of the station. She attracted Genovese's attention by running frantically among the pedestrians seeking her master.

Why Suffer
with Itching, Burning Eczema
when Cuticura Soap
and Cuticura Ointment
so quickly and effectively soothe and heal. Bathe freely with the Soap, dry gently, and anoint with the Ointment. It is surprising how quickly the irritation and itching stop and how, after a few treatments, the eczema disappears. There is nothing better for all forms of skin troubles.

OVER THE HILL

. . . but not to the poorhouse!

SOMEWHERE over the hill is the poorhouse. Bleak symbol of all that is barren, of hope lost, of confidence destroyed. For five fear-bound years, the poorhouse has been a national phantom. Social agitators, the long-haired and the wild-eyed, saw it sheathing us all in its shadow. The rich and poor alike feared it with an unreasoned fear. The poorhouse was America's phobia.

And then, almost without knowing it, America has passed over the hill—and found no poorhouse!

Rising purchasing power is laying the ghost of poverty. People are no longer afraid of the poorhouse. The only poverty business need fear now is the poverty of impoverished minds—too poor to think up new ways to sell, too timid to try, too cautious to reach, too backward looking to look forward, too fearful or too stagnant to seek—and find new avenues, new approaches, new wealth!

For America has money again! Not as much as we had in 1929. But BILLIONS of dollars more than in 1933!

The Brookmire Economic Service estimate that the 1934 income of the American people will be about $58,500,000,000. In 1933 their estimate was $49,500,000,000. The increase of $9,000,000,000 can turn your bookkeeper's ink from red to black!

YOU need no magician's wand to find the new wealth. It scatters over forty-eight states. You find it in the fishing towns of Maine, on lonesome Texan ranches, in the sooty industrial cities of the Susquehanna. But you can save yourself time and shoe leather by finding the largest rainbow pot in New York! Within the shadow of the skyscrapers are some 12,000,000 people, about 10% of all people in all the United States. Their share of the increase is some $900,000,000!

With NINE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS more to spend, these folks in metropolitan New York can do a lot of spending!

What can they do for you?

If you make motor cars—their raise alone can buy 1,000,000 new automobiles, at $900 per car! The new money will buy 107,142,857 tires at $8.40 each—enough to put 73 new tires on every car in New York!

If you make oil burners—New York's excess spending money could buy 1,058,823 burners, at unit prices of $850. Or if New York customers prefer $149.50 refrigerators, they could buy 6,020,066 more refrigerators than last year!

Radios at $119.50 could get 7,531,380 more sales. The new money available would buy up all the oriental rugs in Bagdad—could pay spot cash for 2,278,481 orientals as $395 each. If New York wants to travel, the extra money will buy 10,588,235 trips to Bermuda at $85 per trip.

Department stores can give cash registers stomach trouble! New York's increased purchasing power will buy 2,250,000 furniture suites at $400 per suite, or 15,652,173 washing machines at $57.50, or 211,764,710 pairs of gloves at $4.25 per pair. If New York chooses to spend for $29.75 dresses—it could afford 30,252,100 more than last year! At $7.50 per pair, New York could buy 120,000,000 more pairs of shoes. The increase spent in liquor would buy 180,000,000 bottles of $5 champagne, or 201,342,281 bottles of twenty-year-old brandy at $4.47. The new cash could buy 181,818,181 blankets at $4.95, or 461,538,461 lingerie sets at $1.95, or 918,367,340 yards of chintz curtains at 98c per yard!

New York druggists could sell to this increased income 300,000,000 compacts at $3.00, or 5,294,117,640 bars of 17c facial soap, or 461,538,461 bottles of scent at $1.95 per bottle.

The grocer gets a better break. If the increased purchasing power goes into Roquefort cheese at 63c a pound—New York grocers could buy 1,428,571,420 pounds of Roquefort. The new money would buy 2,903,225,800 pounds of Chase & Sanborn at 31c, or 5,000,000,000 cans of turtle soup at 18c. If New York fancies Jell-O at 3 for 17c, it could buy 15,882,352,920 packages more than in 1933. Quaker Oats at 8c could get 11,250,000,000 new package sales. Or if all the money went to Mr. Wrigley at a penny per stick—he'd sell 90,000,000,000 more sticks of gum!

THERE is money enough in New York for everybody. Nobody can get all of it—and nobody in his right mind would try! But everybody doing business in the New York market should try! Some of New York's $900,000,000 increased purchasing power is yours for the asking—but you must ask!

If you're wise, you'll ask for it through The News. The News is the one medium most of New York reads. It reaches more than 1,600,000 families. It is read by two city families in three, and more in the suburbs than any other medium. It does a larger selling job in less time, misses less of the market, and delivers a larger part of sales. It alone taps most of the new purchasing power—because only its audience has most of it to tap! Don't let another year go by on such an opportunity. The market is here—with the cash! The medium is here—with the customers! Start your sales curve upward—soon!

REPORT INFANT DEATHS NEAR LOWEST MARK

Welfare Society Cares for 13,450 Children.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The lowest infant death rate, with a single exception, in the 24 year history of the Infant Welfare society, was reported yesterday at the annual meeting in the Blackstone hotel by Dr. Heyworth N. Sanford, medical director.

During 1934, he said, the death rate was 8.2 per thousand infants cared for by the society. The record low was in 1932 with a rate of 8 deaths per thousand. The rate in 1933 was 9.7 per thousand. The society cared for 13,450 babies and older children during the year, and 1,734 expectant mothers.

Respiratory infections caused half the infant deaths, Dr. Sanford said, while infectious diseases such as meningitis and whooping cough caused 16 per cent.

Only One Mother Dies.

The society reported only one maternal death. The medical director asserted this good record was due to constant nursing care and medical supervision by the society's staf of 93 physicians, nurses, and nutritionists. Were this plan followed in other communities, he said, the maternal mortality rate of the country as a whole could be greatly reduced.

Prof. Harrison Dobbs of the school of social service administration of the University of Chicago stressed the importance of a national unified program of child care. He spoke in the place of Miss Grace Abbott, also of the university, who was called to Washington.

The woman's auxiliary, of which Mrs. Telfer MacArthur of Oak Park was reëlected president, raised $94,625 toward the society's $153,197 budget in 1934.

Reëlect Armour Head.

Philip D. Armour was reëlected president and chairman of the board of the Infant Welfare society. Lynn A. Williams and Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot Jr. were chosen vice presidents; Erskine Wilder, secretary, and Donald B. Douglas, treasurer. Miss Jeanette Townsend is extension secretary and Sara B. Place, R. N., superintendent.

SEIZE JEWELER IN ROBBERY OF GEM SALESMAN

Lawson Jaffe, 6301 North Talman avenue, a jeweler with offices at 5 North Wabash avenue, was formally charged with robbery last night and was later released on a $10,000 bond. Louis G. Sachs, 7345 Yates avenue, a New York jewelry salesman, the complainant, accused Jaffe and two unidentified men of robbing him of $15,000 in unset and mounted diamonds in a restaurant on Wabash avenue near Randolph street on March 3, last year.

Sachs told Sergt. Thomas Alcott that he and a friend, Louis Rose, 1441 Albion avenue, a jewelry salesman, were eating in the Benton Grill, 165 North Wabash avenue, when he saw Jaffe talking with a man outside the front window. He recognized Jaffe as a man to whom he sold some diamonds several years ago.

A few minutes later, Sachs related, three men, holding handkerchiefs over their faces, entered with guns and took Sachs' wallet containing the gems. Sachs said he became positive that Jaffe was one of the men when he saw him again early this week. He obtained the warant Tuesday from Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court. Jaffe will appear in Felony court this morning.

FIVE MILLION LEFT TO WIDOW UNDER G. D. PRATT WILL

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The will of George D. Pratt, filed for probate today in the Surrogate's court at Mineola, provides for a $5,000,000 trust fund for his widow, Vera Amherst Hale Pratt, and a cash legacy of $250,000, together with household and personal effects and works of art.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Man Nobody Knows

PAUL WILLIS DIES AT 71; EX-HEAD OF BRIDGE COMPANY

In Steel Business for 47 Years.

Paul Willis, 71 years old, 4950 Greenwood avenue, retired bridge manufacturer, died of heart disease in his home yesterday after an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Willis had been in the steel business in Jersey City, N. J., and Chicago for 47 years before his retirement in 1931. As an engineer he erected the steel work for the electrical building at the World's Fair here in 1893.

Born in East Orange, N. J., Mr. Willis began his career as an engineer in Jersey City in 1885. In 1890 he came to Chicago, where he and F. W. Barker organized the Kenwood Bridge company that year.

Loser in Sanitary District Race.

He was secretary and engineer of the bridge concern until 1908, and president from 1910 until the company was absorbed in 1925 by the McClintic-Marshall company, now a subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel company. Mr. Willis was vice president of the McClintic-Marshall company from 1924 until his retirement.

Heeding the plea of prominent Chicagoans, Mr. Willis ran for sanitary district trustee in 1932, but was defeated.

Mr. Willis was married in 1900 to Miss Daisy J. Hubbard, member of the pioneer family for which Hubbard Woods was named. She and three children survive. The children are Mrs. R. R. Jeffris and George H. and Paul Jr.

Member of Art Institute.

Besides belonging to various engineering societies and the Art institute Mr. Willis was a member of the Olympia Fields Country club, the Union League club, the Flossmoor Country club, the University club, and the South Shore Country club. He owned a large country home in Flossmoor.

Bishop George Craig Stewart will officiate at the funeral services at 3 p. m. tomorrow in St. Paul's Episcopal church, 4945 Dorchester avenue. Burial will be in Oak Woods cemetery.

Lieut. Willard of Marines, N. U. Graduate, Is Dead

Prof. and Mrs. Chester E. Willard, 1734 Ridge avenue, Evanston, received word last night from Washington, that their son, Lieut. Keith Russell Willard, of the Marine corps, died Monday on the Island of Culebra, off the east coast of Porto Rico, where he was stationed. He was 27 years old. Lieut. Willard was a graduate of Northwestern university class of 1929, and of the Naval Aeronautical school at Pensacola, Fla. Surviving Willard are his parent and two brothers and a sister. Burial will be at Arlington cemetery. His father is a professor in the school of commerce at Northwestern university.

Thomas J. Webb Estate Found to Total $17,000

Thomas J. Webb, 76 year old coffee merchant who died last Nov. 20, left an estate valued at only $17,000, it was revealed yesterday when his will was admitted to probate by Edward Laczak, assistant to the Probate judge. The entire estate was bequeathed to the widow, Mrs. Mary Frances Webb, 5256 Sheridan road, to whom is left the question of sharing it with a daughter, Mrs. Ellen Sexton. Attorney Francis McKeever for the estate declared the Webb fortune had been reduced by the depression.

A. W. McIntyre, Former Colorado Governor, Dead

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Albert W. McIntyre, 82, former governor of Colorado, died in a hospital here late tonight. He was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1853 and was a graduate of Yale and later of the Yale law school. He came to Colorado in 1876, and after several years of service as a county official was elected governor in 1894. He served one term.

Boy, 5, Playing with Dog Is Killed by Fall on Ice

While romping with his dog in a vacant lot at Latrobe and Foster avenues yesterday, 5 year old Roy Westney slipped on a patch of ice and fell, striking his head. A neighbor took the boy to the Westney home at 5239 Foster avenue, where he died within a short time, apparently of a skull fracture.

Fujii, Former Japanese Finance Minister, Dies

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Mae Tinée, motion picture critic of THE TRIBUNE, will begin a two a week radio series, titled "Movie Review," over W-G-N at 6:45 o'clock Tuesday evening under the sponsorship of a State street department store. Supported by Harold Stokes and the Talking orchestra, and with Jean Paul King as announcer and interviewer, Mae Tinée will review pictures currently on view and reveal interesting bits about the stars and movie making. Stokes' bandsmen will contribute actively to the movie theme of the program, responding musically to suggestions by Miss Tinée.

George Olsen and Ethel Shutta will leave the College inn and local airlanes on Washington's birthday. Nonnight club going Chicagoans will have a week's respite to see and hear them, however, since they will open a week's engagement at the Chicago theater on Feb. 22. Thereupon they will launch a 14 week tour of theaters in leading cities. Olsen's successor at the inn has not been chosen.

When Don Bestor was in town last week with Jack Benny, the band leader reported that Hal Kemp was doing a rushing business at the Pennsylvania in New York. Thus Hal ought to be enabled to lay by a few dollars which he will need when the New York counterpart of Dr. Dafoe calls next April. The doctor has informed the Kemps that they may expect twins. The Kemps have a two year old daughter, Sally.

Beatrice Lillie will sing her famous ditty, "Mad Dogs and Englishmen," on her NBC show tomorrow evening and she will also stake her reputation as a forecaster against the ground hog, due to look for his shadow the following day. . . . Richard Bonelli will be Saturday night soloist with Kostelanetz on that cigaret series from now on. . . . Jane Pickens' press agent is sending out denials that she will marry Paul Draper, the dancer. . . . Marge's marriage to Jack Arnold via "Myrt and Marge" script last night filled local CBS studios with gifts from fans. Everything from fancy linens to real orange blossoms.

A dramatic version of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" goes on CBS for a five a week series at 9:45 Monday. Story will continue where the recent film left off. . . . WHFC, a small local station, has a program sponsored by a cemetery on the air at 9 p. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. . . . New ABC network has sold its first commercial program titled "True Detective Mysteries." Starts at 7:30 next Monday on WIND. . . . Igor Stravinsky, the composer and conductor, will make his American radio debut on the next Sunday evening Symphony hour on NBC with Gladys Swarthout as soloist.

Noted Explorer Is Admirer of Shirley Temple

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Martin Johnson, the African explorer, made no engagements during his trip to Los Angeles to lecture until he found out when he could meet Shirley Temple, six year old film star. Johnson explained that he wasn't particularly interested in seeing the movie studios or meeting any stars except "Twinkly Eyes."

When he got back from Africa to New York last month after seeing no motion pictures for three years, Johnson said he dropped into a cinema and happened on Miss Shirley's last film "Bright Eyes." He never had heard of Shirley Temple before but he thought her film was splendid.

The explorer's long time friend, Sydney R. Kent, president of Fox Film corporation, heard the explorer speak enthusiastically about little Shirley's picture and caused all the child star's films—three by Fox and two by Paramount—to be run off in New York for him.

That caused Johnson to make up his mind he would route his lecture tour so as to get to Los Angeles and meet the phenomenal six year old. When the meeting took place the tanned adventurer and the little girl jested back and forth with Shirley's mother, Mrs. George Temple, and Mrs. Chic Sale for several hours. As Johnson left he promised Shirley to send her an African war drum from New York.

When last pay day came around for the sixty chorus men and showgirls playing in Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler's "Go Into Your Dance," at Warner Studio, each received a check for $119.50, so far as known being the highest week's wage ever paid to moive dancers. They were paid at the rate of $22 a day and overtime.

Several of the musical numbers written for this show are very catchy, particularly "Mammy. I'll Sing About You," which, as might be imagined, is a solo by Jolson.

After looking at the completed "Sweet Marie" Warner Studio has taken up its option on Rudy Vallee for another film which will be made here this summer.

Radio Address

All of those who tune in THE TRIBUNE radio station, W-G-N, at 11:35 this morning will hear Mrs. Howard Linn's low, clear voice. Mrs. Linn, who is just as much at ease behind a microphone as in a drawing room, is going to speak in the interest of the piano recital Ossip Gabrilowitsch is to give at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Orchestra hall. The concert proceeds will be used to carry forward the work of the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene.

Some Children Naturally Lack "Social Sense"

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

There's Dick—with a real social sense. Parties are his delight—and any invitation to a gathering of 15 and 16 year olds is always accepted. When he has any spare time between school and homework he's usually on the wing, stopping in at this boy's house or asking that one to come to his. In the summer his visits are so numerous that they almost overlap. He quite consciously wants to make contacts with lots of people.

But here's Jim—as different as can be. He likes people and they like him—both young people and grownups. He likes boyish nonsense, and outdoors, and would miss companions if he didn't have any. But he hasn't a "social sense," so-called. It would never occur to him to think, "Now I'll accept invitations so I'll get to know people," or "I'm in a new school this year and I must make an effort to get acquainted." He's undoubtedly a more subjective type and he has thoughts and special interests that are not tied up with people.

There are many boys and girls like Dick, and many, not at all shy or unadjusted, who are like Jim.

To Dick, contact with people is almost a form of expression, though his parents, if they're wise, will see to it that he develops some resources so that he may learn how to be alone with himself.

Jim's nature, on the other hand, is quite different, so his parents will have a different side of him to develop. His inner life will always be a rich one, yet at the same time, as he moves through his adolescence, he will need people for both his pleasure and his development, and his mother will have to make it her business to set the ball of sociability rolling for him.

Most mothers of boys don't realize that this is so—and there are a few mothers of girls, too, who don't sense it.

There are some things in connection with some children's development that simply don't do themselves, and this is one of them. Sometimes it is necessary for a mother to push sociability for her child—by giving little parties, by getting him or her to join a club or a dancing class, or by some other sort of definite planning that fits the individual situation.

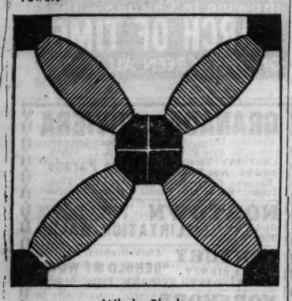
French Blue, Dusty Gold in This Coverlet

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.



Whale Block.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Whale Block" is a pieced block which bears a strong resemblance to the old pattern, "Job's Tears," and to the newer pattern, "Snail's Chain." The quilt made from this "Whale Block" is composed entirely of pieced patterns, joined square to square to form a continuous design. French blue, dusty gold, and white form a most appealing color arrangement. The completed quilt block measures twelve inches square.

With her Second book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices—1 South Dearborn St. or Tribune Tower.

The Stage

The Abbey theater company of Dublin, now at the Harris theater, has announced a change in the arrangement of its playbills for next week. The new schedule runs as follows: Monday, "The Far-Off Hills"; Tuesday, "The Plough and the Stars"; Wednesday afternoon, "Juno and the Paycock"; Wednesday night, "Drama at Inish," by Lennox Robinson [new]; Thursday, "The Playboy of the Western World" and "The Coiner"; Friday, "The Whiteheaded Boy" and "Spring" by T. C. Murray [new]; Saturday afternoon, "Drama at Inish"; Saturday night, "The New Gossoon."

Cornelia Otis Skinner will follow the Abbey players at the Harris theater, opening a week's engagement on Feb. 18. She will give a new dramatic sequence, "Mansions on the Hudson," in addition to her familiar "Loves of Charles II." and "Wives of Henry VIII."

"Stevedore" will end its engagement in the Selwyn theater next Saturday night. C. C.

Hiroshi Saito, Japan Envoy, to Speak Here

Foreign Relations Council to Be Host.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Chicago Council on Foreign Relations will have what the council feels sure will be one of its most interesting meetings of the winter on Saturday, Feb. 9, when Hiroshi Saito, Japanese ambassador to the United States, talks on "Japan's Aim in the Far East." Believing that an authentic statement of what Japan intends to do in the far east will be of significance at this time, when the recent extended naval discussions between Japan, Great Britain, and the United States again have brought to the forefront of public attention the question of Japan's future foreign policy, the council invited Ambassador Saito to come to Chicago and just yesterday his acceptance of the invitation was received.

He speaks excellent English and he is noted for his frankness in discussing Japanese-American relations, so the officers and members of the executive committee of the council are certain that his talk will be of great interest.

Dr. Walter Lichtenstein, president of the council, will preside at the luncheon, which is to be given at the Palmer house. Usually there are women as well as men at the speakers' tables at the council luncheon meetings, but only men have been invited to sit at the table with Ambassador Saito and they are among Chicago's most distinguished residents.

Governor Horner Invited to Attend.

The Japanese consul, Kenji Nagauchi, will be there, of course, and invitations to sit at the speakers' table have been sent to Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Gen. Frank R. McCoy, Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, Charles G. Dawes, Silas H. Strawn, Ira Nelson Morris, Charles S. Dewey, James H. Douglas Jr., Walter J. Cummings, Edward Eagle Brown, George J. Schaller, President Hutchins of the University of Chicago, and President Scott of Northwestern university.

The ambassador of another country, France, is coming from Washington a little more than a week later to attend a dinner that the France-America society will give for him on Monday, the 18th, in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. The French ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye, also speaks perfect English, and so does his wife, who will accompany him to Chicago. Many of the same men who will meet the Japanese ambassador also have been invited to sit at the speakers' table at the dinner for M. de Laboulaye.

Open Art Show at Institute Today.

The opening reception of the thirty-ninth annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity at the Art institute this afternoon will be most informal, with no receiving line nor tea tables to distract the attention of the guests from the exhibition. The invitations were issued in the names of the Art institute, the Municipal Art league, and the Artists of Chicago, and the hours are from 3 until 5 o'clock.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings announces a home dressmakers' sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop, 27 East Ohio street, today. Mrs. Cummings expects that her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Munson, will pass through Chicago in April on their way from Bermuda (where they have been since early in the month) to Canada.

Military Pageant to Aid Nursery.

Edward F. Wilson will be one of those entertaining at dinner this evening preceding the military pageant and polo games the Black Horse troop will stage at the Chicago Riding club for the benefit of the Little Wanderer Day nursery.

Opening the program promptly at 8:15, the 108th Cavalry will engage the Chicago Riding club poloists in a spirited skirmish. Between the halves members of the Black Horse troop will compete for the jumping championship. Following the second half of the 108th Calvary-Riding club match, the Black Horse troop will demonstrate the drills that have won it fame.

KNOWING nothing more about Lucienne Boyer than that she sings "Parlez Moi d'Amour" divinely, we decided to find out a little more. The lady who is coming to the Studebaker theater next Monday evening in the Continental Varieties, along with Escudero and Balieff and some concertina players that are said to be the top, is 30 years old, always wears blue when she sings, came to America with 13 trunks and 124 pieces of hand luggage, including, I suppose, the tropical fish that are her pets, and receives the income from the sale of 600,000 of her records a year, as well as her theater and night club salaries. (She has her own night club in Paris called Chez Elle and during her stay in New York sings after the theater in the Rainbow room at Rockefeller center.)

The women heading the Chicago Maternity center, which last year provided free medical care to 3,000 mothers, are counting on Boyer's charm to sell out the first night, which is a benefit for the center. Boyer's earlier days weren't so glamorous. For two years she wrapped packages and carried bundles, then she got a job as stenographer in a theater. She was a bad stenographer and the man from whom she took dictation finally got her shifted to a theatrical company. She played minor character parts for two years. Then she began to train her voice. And after "Parlez Moi d'Amour" was written things picked up considerably for her.

HOOSIER sentiment. It was at the Hoosier salon preview last Saturday evening, and Phil Maxwell, president of the DePauw University Alumni association, acted as master of ceremonies for the program given by Hoosier born radio talent.

"Tonight there opens a grand automobile show in the Coliseum," began Mr. Maxwell. "The cars are beautiful, fast, and safe. But I contend that Indiana, with its White river, its Tippecanoe, James Whitcomb Riley's Brandywine, and the dear old Wabash, is the best streamlined job in the world."

What, no old swimming hole mentioned?

A LITTLE boy who lives in Hubbard Woods, name Johnny White, had never been to the zoo, and on a recent day his parents decided to take him to see the animals. They had hoped he would be satisfied with seeing the lions and the tigers and the elephants perhaps, but Johnny wanted to see everything. So they bought him peanuts and walked and walked. Finally, weary and numb with cold, they got him into the car to go home.

"Well, Johnny, what did you like best at the zoo?" his mother asked when they were settled.

"The peanuts," answered Johnny.

Black Is Used as Background for New Prints

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Black background printed silks and satins ready for clever fingered designers who create their own clothes are especially good finds this week. Clinging crêpes with large fringed daises, each with a bright colored center and the petals in white are carefully splashed at wide intervals over the back.

Another black has crimson and dull white small buds; still another has scarlet and jade green blurred edged large dots. And there is a good poppy print with lots of color and wide black spaces that is going strong.

These new black background silks are stunning new ideas and will make some spectacularly effective dinner and dance dresses for immediate wear. Don't forget to buy extra yardage for a small shoulder cape, for every new dinner costume should be topped with a feminine cape.

Simply draped gowns for evening are cut with tricky seaming with flattering flounces from the knee and unusual necklines. Shorter length dresses topped with the new two-thirds length coats fashioned of these printed satins make stunning street outfits with touches of white at the wrists and neckline.

Long evening gowns with slit skirtlines faced back with white satin dramatize the sleek slim beauty of shiny black satin printed in white. The designs are graceful, moderately sized and extremely effective. Short rippling capes of the same satin lined with white repeat the white contrast used to face the skirt. If you want something new for your winter wardrobes look for these grand new collections of dark background prints.

Paris Designers Offer Evening Gowns of Lace

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Paris stylists went all the way back to Salome today for the newest sensation of the spring shows—dresses made entirely of lace and veils.

Ardanse launched gowns fashioned of 66 yards of filmy white and black veiling, eight inches wide, swirled and shirred over a slim silk foundation until the skirt was a yard and a half wide.

Other evening gowns were fashioned of the new hair lace, as fine as hair net, which was inspired by the spider's web. They were designed in tones of pink and black with off the shoulder décolletés topped by great lace Medici ruches. The skirts were of uncountable yards of material, giving the effect of flowers in full bloom.

A pink organdy gown fashioned along similar lines had a cape and a belt of pink "glass," the ribbon being woven of spun glass.

The tendency to take inspiration for the spring styles from nature was noticeable in a pink linen country dinner frock which was trimmed with a bunch of radishes on the pocket of the floor length skirt.

Day clothes were fashioned of black, navy, and green wools and crêpes. They have a slim supple silhouette with some fullness in the gored skirts.

Institute Exhibit Vigorous and Colorful.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The thirty-ninth annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity opens today in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. It is an excellent show. For the first time in many seasons one may give it an unqualified and enthusiastic approval.

It is a fresh exhibit, vigorous and colorful and youthful in a manner that is hard to define. It is as though the roots of Chicago's art had struck deep through barren alkali and dry chalk and found a new level of fertile earth, from which they gathered strength to strike upward and outward into a myriad of captivating fruits. It is a diversified show; make no mistake about that. The modern and the orthodox hang side by side, but it is good modern and good orthodox.

Two hundred and fifty-six works are installed in the galleries, and, as each artist was permitted to hang but one example, it goes without saying that 256 artists are represented. It is interesting to note that out of these 256 artists fifty of them would have had a second painting on the walls if jury selection had been the final word. Fifty paintings from the jury's choice had to be withheld because of the rule in force this year that each man should have but one picture or piece of sculpture in the show.

Among the painters represented are Pauline Palmer, Charles Killgore, Karl Krafft, Frank V. Dudley, Rudolph Ingerle, Nina K. Griffin, Eugénie Glamen, Marshall D. Smith, Walter Krawice, Katherine Buehr, Holger W. Jensen, Julius Moessel, Oscar Gross, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, Marie Blanke, Frank Gavencky, Leslie Binn, Aaron Bohrod, and Arnold E. Turtle.

The prize awards were announced at the artists' dinner last night. The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan Art institute medal and $500 were awarded to Edouard Chassaing for his sculpture "Head of E. L. Heitkamp."

The Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300 went to "Blue Room," by Constantine Pougialis. The William and Bertha Clusmann prize of $200 was given to "Still Life," by Joseph Lane.

The Joseph N. Eisendrath prize of $200 went to "Seated Figure," by Theodore J. Roszak. The Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 went to "Chicago Landscape," by Francis Chapin. "Jenny," by Ruth Van Sickle Ford, won the Chicago Woman's Aid prize of $100.

The Municipal Art league prize of $100 went to Joseph Allworthy for his portrait "Jorge Quintas." The league's other prize, $200, is yet to be awarded by postcard ballot. The Robert Rice Jenkins memorial prize of $50 was given to Ralf Henricksen for "South State."

Women's Clubs of Illinois Will Hold Frolics Today

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will hold a state-wide frolic today with the various districts celebrating in towns throughout the state. Club women in the Chicago area will observe the occasion with a party beginning at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Hotel Sherman.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Beauty after the bath, relaxed and refreshed. A lovely lilac toilet water, used either as a rubdown or a pickup, contributes to that feeling that all's right with the world

We couldn't say that a famous toilet water—a lovely, lilting lilac lotion—has made a comeback in the spectacular manner of a moving star. It hasn't really been out of the picture; for decades fastidious women and an army of men have used it faithfully and remained sold on it.

Merit has its rewards, though. We find that more and more women are using it and singing its praises, and that the number of men who've used it as an after shaving lotion is just about doubling daily. And no wonder.

Once you've discovered how lovely it is you'll be sold, too. It's a fine product, really a superior toilet lotion, and if you like the delicate, fresh fragrance of lilacs this will enchant you.

It's inexpensive enough to use lavishly. Toss some into the bath water, if you like; you'll emerge doubly refreshed. But we like best to use it for the rub down afterwards. That really is a joy; the scent itself lifts your spirits and the cool tang of the liquid as it touches your skin does amazing things for your pep.

We wouldn't advise you ever to pass up a bath if time permitted, but when that's out of the question this is woman's best friend. If you feel all muggy and weary after a day's work but must do a quick change into a butterfly for the edification of your best beau use this in slathers—all over your body if possible, but in any case on face and neck and arms. You'll be revived in two shakes—all set for your rôle of the gay young thing on conquest bent.

12% of Record Mid-Term H. S. Graduates Have Jobs

Of the 6,775 pupils being graduated from Chicago high schools this week 28 per cent will go to college and 47 per cent will go to work, it was announced yesterday by William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools. Almost 12 per cent, or 584 students, have already obtained positions, while 1,233 graduates have no immediate plans. The midterm graduating class is the largest in history.

Six Are Elected Trustees of Historical Society

At the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Chicago Historical society yesterday afternoon at the society's building in Lincoln park six trustees were elected for a term of four years each. They include Joseph Adams, Edward L. Glasner, James L. Houghteling, Charles A. Munroe, Henry Patten, and Frank J. Loesch. Charles B. Pike continues as president of the board.

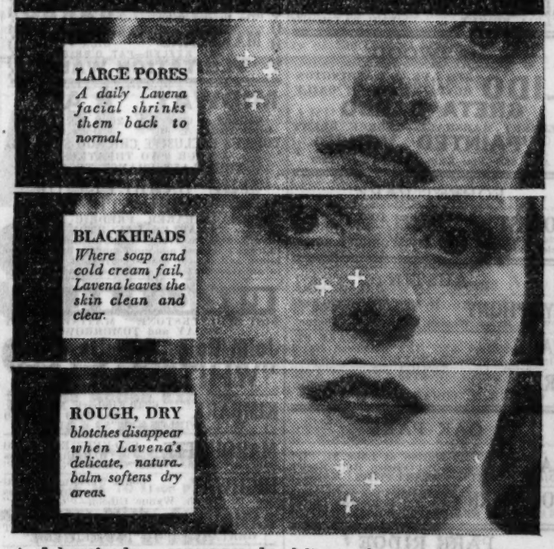
AMAZING 2-MINUTE OATMEAL FACIAL for ROUGH, DRY SKINS!



LARGE PORES
BLACKHEADS
ROUGH, DRY

And here's the easy oatmeal facial that performs the miracle! Mix Lavena with water. Apply to face. Wash off. Takes but two minutes daily.

LAVENA is not a soap. Not a cold cream. But a very simple oatmeal facial that stimulates sluggish pores, cleanses them to their very depths as soap and cold cream can't do. Thus removing the cause of blackheads and large pores. Its subtle, natural balm supplies a delicate softness to rough, blotchy, dry areas.

This test will amaze you

To prove that Lavena cleans your skin far better than other methods, first cleanse your face thoroughly with soap. Then cleanse it with cold cream. Then cleanse it with the 2-minute Lavena facial. If you don't find your complexion looks far clearer, cleaner, after the Lavena facial, return the package to your dealer and get your money back! At leading drug and department stores. Start this new skin treatment today.

LAVENA
The 2-Minute Oatmeal Facial

We guarantee to refund the price of Lavena if it does not perform exactly as we say.

NEIGHBORHOOD STORES OPEN TONIGHT

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather, Paul Darensky, and grew up with the large brood of children of a peasant family. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer," for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin, widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. Though he has fallen in love with her he refrains from letting her know. They are overtaken by Petroff and Irina, a beautiful communist, who wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Stephen plans to outwit them by denouncing Elizabeth, claiming he never suspected her identity until she began to talk in her sleep. Petroff believes his story, as does Irina. Elizabeth thinks Stephen has turned against her. But he is waiting his chance, which comes, to knock Petroff out. Then Stephen disguises himself and Elizabeth and they slip away. Stephen secures a horse and sledge, in which they continue toward the Polish border. The suspicion of a schoolmaster in a village where they stop is aroused because of a broadcast he has heard about two people wanted by the police as enemies of the state. They make a hurried get away and are pursued by wolves. Stephen stops at a hut in the forest on land once owned by his stepfather. Next day they go to the old Darensky house.

INSTALMENT XL.

A SECRET PASSAGE.

"I'm afraid we can't stay here," said Stephen.

Elizabeth looked at him with something like dismay. The black night—the snow—the cold—the forest—wolves. . . . She said on a caught breath:

"Are we going on tonight?"

"Suppose I say yes?"

"Then I suppose I'd come."

"Come along then," he said and took her by the arm.

In the firelight she could see a dancing light of mischief in his eyes.

"Where are we going?"

"Across the frontier," said Stephen with a note of triumph in his voice.

"The frontier! Stephen, are we so near?"

"Come and see," said Stephen.

He swept her into the hall. Its cold silence met them on the threshold. Their feet made ghostly echoes on the stone flags. He flashed his torch to show her what a huge cavern of a place it was. The great stone stair rose up to a gallery. He turned the torch upon it, and she saw how it was littered with fallen masonry.

"The hall is much older than the rest of the house. It's a feudal hall with a seventeenth century house built round it. Paul's several times great-grandfather had a French architect over.

They crossed the hall and passed through a gaping doorway into a long stone passage.

"Where are we going?"

"To the kitchens."

"Do we go out that way?"

"We don't go out," said Stephen.

"What do you mean?"

He said, "Wait and see," and with that they came to a heavy door hanging drunkenly from wrenched hinges. The lock had been smashed and then burnt out. The wood showed pitted and blackened in the ray of the torch. Beyond, stone steps went down and out of sight.

"The cellars are as old as the hall," said Stephen.

Elizabeth stared into the black depths.

"Are we going down there?"

"It's not as bad as it looks."

They went down fifteen steps, and were in a vaulted hall, stone paved and quite dry under foot. The air was heavy and cold. Stephen took out a piece of candle and lit it. The yellow flame burned unstirred by any draught. The place was very big and seemed all the bigger for the shadows which thronged it. That the wreckers had been here was very plain. Doors to the right and left had been smashed, casks rolled out and broken, bottles splintered.

"They made a pretty fair mess of things," said Stephen dispassionately. "Paul was most awfully proud of his cellar. Some of the wine was absolutely priceless." He laughed a little. "They just smashed everything and wallowed. Well, here we are."

The last door on the left had been dragged right off its hinges. It lay where it had fallen, and they had to step over it to enter the cellar it had guarded. It was a small place with an arched roof and a row of wine bins running round three sides of it.

There were smashed bottles everywhere. The candlelight picked up the shining splinters and the jagged edges of larger fragments.

"This was the old madeira," said Stephen. "Paul's grandfather laid it down. If any one had told him his serfs' grandsons would drink it he would have had a fit. He was a bit of a connoisseur. Well, they found the madeira, but here's something they didn't find. And that's a thing I've been thankful for ever since."

He stood the candle on the side of one of the bins and went into the far corner of the cellar, where he carefully moved some of the litter aside, shifting it this way and that with his foot. Then he seemed to press downward with considerable force, whilst at the same time he grasped the corner bin with a hand on either of its wooden sides. With a grinding sound the whole bin swung out, disclosing a narrow arch some four feet in height. He laughed, let go, and turned round upon Elizabeth.

"There's our road into Poland," he said.

Elizabeth put out a hand to steady herself. She took a step nearer the wall, and a piece of glass under her foot cracked and splintered. She looked at the black mouth of the arch and said:

"Poland?"

Stephen nodded. He was dusting his hands and picking up the candle.

"The house is just on the frontier. Thank the Lord no one knows about this old passage. Paul told me the last time I saw him, and my word, it's been useful."

Elizabeth looked at the black arch with a sort of fascinated horror. There was the way to safety and freedom. A horrible way. Its dark breath sickened her. She said faintly:

"Who made it?"

"Well, I gather there was an old passage running from here to a sort of shrine or chapel, but the chapel fell down and a good deal of the passage fell in. Then when Paul's great-great-grandfather built on to the house, he had men down from his estates in the north and he had the passage cleared out and rebuilt. The men who did were told they'd lose their tongues if they talked, and the secret never got out. I don't know why Prince Boris wanted the passage restored, but I believe he was a desperate intriguer, and I dare say it was useful. Anyhow, there it is. It's about half a mile long and it's in quite decent repair. It comes out on the Polish side of the frontier in the ruins of the old chapel, and it has been an absolute godsend to me."

"Are we going now?" said Elizabeth.

All her life she had had a horror of just such a place as this. It was like the horror of a nightmare.

When Stephen said, "Come along," she took a step forward, but her face was suddenly so drawn that he said:

"What's the matter?"

His voice made the nightmare seem farther off. He patted her shoulder.

"It's not as bad as it looks. I have to look after my head the whole way, but you'll be able to straighten up as soon as you're through the arch. I'll go first with the light. I always take a candle through here in case of bad air. It's a good danger signal."

"Is there bad air?" said Elizabeth by the arch.

"Not now. There are ventilating shafts. Some of them were blocked and I had to clear them out. Now stand just where you are while I shut the door."

She was about a yard inside the arch and she could stand upright, though she guessed that there was very little room over her head. She saw Stephen with a candle in his hand replacing the broken glass which he had pushed aside in order to open the secret door. Then he caught hold of the bin and swung it back. The door shut with a click and he squeezed past her, holding up the light.

The passage stretched away before them. After a yard or two there were some steps, seven or eight of them, taking them still farther down under the earth. The steps were of stone, and the passage floored and walled, and roofed with stone. It was like being in a great stone drain. The air had an odd dead feeling. It was not nearly so cold as it had been in the house or even in the cellar.

Many Chicagoans at Arizona Resort.

The south is not the only place to which Chicagoans seeking sunshine and warm weather are going, of course, for every train westward carries vacationers to Arizona or California. The Lester Armours and their son, Lester Jr., have joined the large Chicago colony at the Arizona-Biltmore just outside Phoenix, and a letter from there brings word that young Lester spends much time on the polo field.

The same letter brings the news that Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, who went to Palm Springs with Mr. Harvey, who now is at home, before Christmas, has joined the Frank E. Wilhelms and their daughter, Miss Jean Wilhelm, at the Biltmore for two weeks. Shortly after the Wilhelms return to Chicago they will repack their trunks, for they will be leaving then for Usepa Island, off the west coast of Florida.

Mrs. Francis Neilson, who with Mr. Neilson has been at the Biltmore since early winter, was the first prize winner in a duplicate contract bridge tournament that ended recently. The Neilsons and the Oren Tafts were among the Chicagoans at a dinner given recently by Dr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Martin for Miss Mary Louise Anderson's house guests, Mrs. David K. McCarthy and Miss Agnes Batley of London, England. The two Englishwomen, who met Miss Anderson in Egypt many years ago, are visiting the Chicago woman at her lovely winter home on the Biltmore grounds.

In addition to the usual bridge, riding, picnics, golf, swimming, and sun bathing which keep Arizona vacationers busy, there now is added racing for the meet at the Arizona state fair grounds opened last week and will continue until Feb. 10.

Hutchins Family in Arizona.

President and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago and their little daughter, Franja, who has been ill, are among other Chicagoans vacationing in Phoenix.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair, who has been busy the last few days entertaining a house guest, Mrs. Edgar Howard of Philadelphia, is planning to leave about Feb. 15 for Phoenix, where she will visit her mother and sister, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and Mrs. de Koven Phelps, who are occupying a house on the Biltmore grounds this winter. Mrs. Howard, who is a tennis enthusiast and for whom many of Mrs. Blair's friends have entertained with indoor tennis parties, is leaving tonight.

Enjoying the sunshine at Chandler, a bit south of Phoenix, are the Frank O. Lowdens, who pay an annual visit to this charming oasis in the desert. Mr. Lowden recently celebrated his 74th birthday. The Percy B. Eckharts are among the other Chicagoans at Chandler now.

Mrs. William H. Mitchell is enjoying a fortnight vacation in Pasadena, where she is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King.

Robert L. Fowlers Return from Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Fowler and their attractive daughter, Miss Mary Fowler, returned to their Winnetka residence early this week from a month's stay in Hot Springs, Ark. Mr. and Mrs. William D. Fowler of Kenilworth, who also have been vacationing at Hot Springs, will return home later this week.

One of the most interesting of brief winter vacations has been planned, inadvertently, by Charles H. Morse Jr. and Ernest A. Hamill II., who are joining one another in Miami tomorrow. Young Mr. Morse, who has been trying to recover from influenza since Christmas, is flying down from Chicago, and "Pat" Hamill, who is a great aviation enthusiast, will join him by plane from New York.

From Miami the two will fly to Jamaica, Haiti, and perhaps South America. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse left yesterday for a trip east. Upon their return the middle of February Mrs. Morse will go to Seattle to visit her daughter and son-in-law, the William S. Covingtons. The Morses are hoping to have a reunion of their family this summer with the Covingtons and their children, and the Baron and Baroness Wolfgang Beck von Peccoz and their son as their guests.

Mrs. Donald Forgan Returns to East.

Mrs. Donald Forgan and her daughter, Mrs. William S. Woodhull [Julie Forgan], have returned east after a visit with Mrs. Forgan's mother-in-law, Mrs. James B. Forgan.

Mrs. Edwin C. Bolton has arrived from Detroit to visit Mrs. Oliver Dennett Grover at her studio apartment in the Italian court building.

News from Vassar and Yale tell of a Chicago girl and boy who have been honored: Miss Harriet Welling, daughter of the John Paul Wellings, was named associate editor of the Vassar Magazine; and Arthur Albert Frank Jr., of Evanston, was elected a member of the Junior prom committee at Yale.

Marcel Peyronnet, the new attaché at the French consulate, and Mme. Peyronnet have taken an apartment at 227 East Delaware place into which they are moving shortly. Gen. Frank McCoy, who is taking Gen. Preston Brown's place as commander of the Sixth Corps area, has taken an apartment at 190 East Chestnut street. He has come here from Fort Omaha.

The Woman's Athletic club has cards out for an illustrated lecture on "George and Martha Washington and the First Executive Mansions" by Gertrude Gheen Robinson next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

BY MARY MEADE.

Fall sounds the call to arms for sausage and winter finds it in full triumphal march from the kitchen to the delighted dining table. Some hold forth for tiny link "sissages" and others for golden country style pats, but all agree on this meat's genial charm.

Not only in single blessedness does the sausage exert its peculiar fascination—it finds a happy affinity with many other foods which can be prepared in the same twinkling of an eye. Take a dish of golden scrambled eggs surrounded with crispy sausage, still sizzling from the skillet, a supporting cast of hot biscuits and honey, and who could ask more on a cold winter's night?

Waffles and hot cakes practically beg for its company. The waffles even quite brazenly suggest a permanent attachment, in the form of sausage waffles. These delightful things are made by sprinkling uncooked sausage over the top of the batter before the top lid of the iron descends. Thus you not only get your sausage and waffles already combined but you save a bit of dishwashing.

The little sausage links find a new boon companion in the baked banana. It's a combination of flavors which will leave you quite enraptured. Remember, of course, to prick each link here and there with a sharp tined fork before cooking. If you slip up on this you'll find that they'll swell up and burst into ungainly, lumpy little things.

Creole sausage provides these delectable hits with another popular rôle. Prick them viciously and then set them to simmer gently in a cup of tomato purée with a pounded clove of garlic alongside. When they're puffy and tender serve them with a sauce of the thickened liquid and piles of hot fluffy white rice.

Another favorite hiding place for the little fellows is in baked apples. Stuff well cored red apples with them and bake them in a slow oven with an occasional basting with the drippings.

Eggs and sausage make a particularly joyful duet when the eggs take the form of an omelet. For instance, like this:

SAUSAGE OMELET.

4 eggs
½ teaspoon salt

Brown the sausage pieces in a skillet. Meanwhile fold the beaten yolks and salt into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn this mixture into a buttered omelet pan or another skillet and brown on one side. Then spread over it the sausage, all brown and crisp; let it cook for several minutes longer in the oven, and fold just before serving.

Sausage and pineapple may be the combination that will save some noonday dilemma for you. Even your husband's first sweetheart (the hussy) should be duly impressed with this dish when she unexpectedly decides to favor your household at lunchtime.

SAUSAGE AND PINEAPPLE.

12 link sausages
2 cups crushed pineapple
1 tablespoon flour
6 toast triangles

Brown the sausages thoroughly and then make a sauce from two tablespoons of the drippings, the flour, and the crushed pineapple. Pour this steaming mixture over the crisp, hot toast and serve two sizzling sausage links atop each serving.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Here is a charming dress for any one who needs designs that give a slender effect. The collar, finished with a jabot frill, is decidedly smart, and it's especially nice for those who like the beauty and comfort of a V neck. Curved skirt seaming creates a slender appearance through the hips, and the skirt widens to a graceful width at the bottom. Black and white silk crêpe, with plain white for contrast, is a suggestion.

The pattern, No. 2699, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The best advice that this department can offer is to go to the next song recital offered by Esther Hart, not so much for brilliant execution or startling voice but for the sake of hearing some attractive songs sung in a charming manner.

She is the artist who stepped in at short notice during the holiday season and substituted in the soprano solo part of "The Messiah," given by the Apollo Musical club. The statement is made for purposes of identification. Other artists have at one time and another saved the day under like circumstances. But not all other artists have followed up their rescue with a recital such as Miss Hart put on at Kimball hall last night.

She has the gift of finding songs out of the ordinary and singing them with a purity and warmth that is likewise out of the ordinary. An aria from Franco Faccio's "Amleto," "Trois Noels" by Jean Cras, three songs by Manuel de Falla—the last are sometimes heard as Spanish dances—were some of the important reasons for attending her recital last night. They were sung in a most charming fashion.

Edgar Nelson, who was her conductor in "The Messiah," was her able and resourceful accompanist in a program that also included a group of lieder and another of songs in English.

PLAYS STRAIGHT THROUGH MONTH

Are there days when you cannot be very active, but must "favor yourself" on account of pain or discomfort due to the time of month? A woman who has learned to depend on Midol escapes a whole lot of suffering!

Perhaps you have heard about Midol tablets and how effective they are, but have feared they contained some narcotic. They do not. So, why go on having a difficult time month after month? Midol always relieves regular pain, often means complete comfort. Why not get some, and try it next time?

You'll see it on the druggist's counter — or just ask for Midol.

Punctuality at Dinnertime Is Husband's Duty

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Early in the week we got on the subject of home meals and accompanying domestic reactions.

Well, there's an angle we haven't touched yet, one that was enumerated in the named grievances. It is wifey's comeback at the complaining husband, so to speak. Anyway, here's her story. She is all set to take in the neighborhood evening movie, the early show in all likelihood. She serves her dinner promptly. But no mate appears. She waits five minutes, ten, fifteen, perhaps a half hour. The food is cold. The hour of her movie attendance grows near. Then hubby phones. He and an old school pal have run into each other. They've been talking over old times, perhaps with the aid of a cocktail or two. Hubby has asked the friend to come on up to the house and have dinner with them. Here's where Maw sees red. He could have phoned earlier. The dinner is cold. Her evening program is all broken up. If she agrees, she nurses a grudge over the spoiled meal and her spoiled plans.

Now, it can't happen so often in a husband's life that he runs into an old pal whom he would like to bring home to dinner. So, we think the wife could be a bit more understanding and forget her own disappointment. After all, a man doesn't bring his old pals up to dinner unless he wants to show off his home and the dear who presides over it. Besides, she can take in the movie tomorrow afternoon or evening.

But for husbands who make a practice of stopping in somewhere on the way home for a drink or chat, we think they belong in the same selfish category as the wife who comes home late from her bridge game and there's no dinner in sight. It's disheartening to a woman to prepare an appetizing meal and then see it go cold on her.

Stokowski Plans for Orchestra Win O. K. of Listeners

His hearers put him into power by an overwhelming vote. Every demand he had set as his price to return to his resigned conductorship was met at a special subscribers' meeting.

Stokowski called for "new blood" in the board of directors. The subscribers voted to reorganize the board, cut its size from 24 to 15, and put in new members.

Stokowski demanded prompt appointment of a successor to Arthur Judson, the orchestra's resigned business manager. The board of directors said it was ready to recommend a man.

Stokowski urged more attention to radio broadcasts. The board announced a 26 week radio contract was planned for 1935-36.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

DEFENSIVE PASSES IN CONTRACT.

In my opinion, the late Wilbur Whitehead was by a wide margin the ablest and soundest writer on auction; I am in agreement with almost every word of his classical "Auction Bridge Standards," published in 1921. In his discussion of the negative double at auction, he gives the following examples of typical minimum hands justifying the double of an opponent's heart bid:

Sp. A 6 5 4	Sp. A 10 8 7
Ht. 9 3	Ht. 9 3
Di. K 8 6	Di. K J 4
Cl. A 7 5 3	Cl. K J 9 2
Sp. K J 10 4	Sp. A Q 6
Ht. 6 2	Ht. 6 2
Di. K 10 8 7	Di. K J 10 8
Cl. A J 9	Cl. K 9 5 2

and no doubt many of you have assumed without giving the matter further thought that with defensive hands of this strength and form you are making a wise defensive move if you likewise double a heart bid in contract. I believe this to be absolutely untrue. With hands of this strength, and even with hands as strong as

Sp. x x	Di. K Q x x
Ht. A J x x	Cl. K x x

I pass an opening spade bid. I have no desire at this point to enter the bidding and possibly compel my partner to be declarer with an 8 6 4 2 suit as trumps and no face card. I feel that my best chances of obtaining a plus score on the hand are to keep quiet. Our opponents are very likely to bid themselves into a contract they cannot make, each attributing to the other one of more of the missing high cards which I hold. My silence will contribute to overbidding on their part, and it may also cause the declarer to misplay the hand to the extent of a trick or two. After locating one or two important high cards in my hand he is likely to end-play or finesse my partner for the others, inferring that I would have taken some part in the bidding if I held so many of the missing face cards. In other words, IF THE OPENING BIDDER'S PARTNER HAS THE BALANCE OF THE HIGH CARDS, they will bid too high in many cases, and give us a plus by penalizing them; under such circumstances, we would generally have been set had we become declarer even at a contract no higher than two; we would have assumed unnecessarily the burden of loss on a hand which could yield a game to neither side, and which to us could only produce a loss if we entered the bidding. I admit that under match point scoring one must go to greater lengths to defend a part score, but even then I do not double much weaker than I would in rubber play when I have a defensive type of hand. In the event that THE OPENING BIDDER'S PARTNER IS VERY WEAK so that he either passes or responds with one no trump, now, as I will explain in later articles, my partner should make a "deductive double" on comparatively light holdings. This will enable me to take a very positive course either by bidding or by passing for a penalty, or by doubling if the opener makes a rebid which permits it. Should the bidding go one spade, pass by me, one no trump, pass, pass, now I will double, knowing that both our opponents have minimum hands for their bids, and hoping my partner can leave it in for business, or double any rescue bid; or else that he can bid hearts, the sole response which would give hopes of a possible game.

TO RESUME THE POINTS BROUGHT OUT IN THE LAST THREE ARTICLES, when you have a defensive type of hand [that is, lacking a long suit], do not make negative doubles on the values which would amply justify such doubles in auction. Pass—call it a defensive pass. If you like; keep your side out of the bidding until you learn that the opponents are weak; that they are signing off and will not bid themselves into trouble and that therefore your partner has some values which will enable you to score a plus either by doubling the opponents for business or by assuming the contract yourselves, either for part score or even for game—the latter generally on account of extremely uneven distribution in your partner's hand, a factor causing him to enter the bidding even after you have passed the opener's bid.

Toronto Follows Boston in Ban on O'Casey Play

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 30.—(AP)—"Within the Gates," Sean O'Casey's play which was barred in Boston, has been banned in Toronto as well. A theater manager who booked the play and an inspector of the police morality department looked it over today and decided it was not suitable for Toronto.

Lewis Myers Again Heads Board of Salvation Army

Bouquet Scents Reflect Modern Perfume Trend

Single Odor Inadequate for Charm Today.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Perfumes reflect the times much as dress does. The clothes of an era tell a story of woman's activities of that time. Perfumes, likewise—which explains why modern women go in for the bouquet odors rather than monotone scent. The lavender, the violet, the rose as single odors served better to represent a day in which woman pursued a single minded career, such as mother or artist. Today a woman is likely to be mother, business woman, politician, hostess, globe trotter, artist, and many other things besides. So a complexity of scents, as you find in the bouquet odors, better expresses the modern woman.

An interesting note in perfume use, which I discovered in a recent bit of research, is that a type of woman no longer regulates the choice of perfume. It's the occasion and kind of frock worn that dictates the choice. For sports occasions and sports type of dress the preference is for the woodsy odor with sandal wood base, something with an outdoor tang to it. For the ultrafeminine frock of ruffly character a light bouquet odor is the thing. With a dark evening dress, not extreme, a flower blend with a chypre base is suggested as subscribing to the note of interest.

But with an extremely sophisticated evening frock worn by an ultrasophisticate, a spicy carnation blend is offered as a final dramatic touch. For business day wear the inconspicuous scent, such as is found in eau de cologne, is deemed appropriate. And so on. The idea is to key your perfume to the occasion rather than to your type of blonde, red, or brunette coloring.

But, speaking of perfume's reflecting the times, we have reason to suspect that right ahead is a more romantic era. I'm told the oriental suggestion of mystery and adventure is due for a revival of popularity.

METHODISTS SEE STATE COLLEGES AS BIG PROBLEM

Compete More and More with Church Schools.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Members of the Methodist Episcopal board of education, which is holding its annual meeting at 740 Rush street, were confronted yesterday with the critical status of the schools, colleges, and universities which are affiliated with the church.

The Rev. Dr. F. C. Eiselen is head of the board of education which influences the policies and administration of 88 schools of higher learning, including five great universities.

He outlined the new situation of those institutions as brought about by constantly expanding competition of similar educational units supported by taxpayers' dollars.

Dr. Eiselen pointed particularly to moral and spiritual losses resulting from expansion of governmental training schools and general higher education. The American doctrine of separation of church and state demands exclusion of direct religious teaching from such governmental tax supported schools, Dr. Eiselen asserted.

Asks Definition of Goal.

Despite the growing feeling even among church people, that tax-supported higher education will eventually socialize that whole field, with the possible exception of theological training, Dr. Eiselen asked the board to face the question of whether or not such ought to be the American educational goal.

"The crisis is upon us," Dr. Eiselen declared. "We cannot escape the necessity of re-thinking institutional Christian education in the Methodist Episcopal church. An appeal for support of our educational institutions on the basis of denominational loyalty no longer awakens a productive response.

"The only convincing appeal is one supported by evidence that these (denominational) schools and colleges not only can, but actually do, contribute to the educational experience of the student something without which the educational experience must remain fragmentary and incomplete, and which the tax supported institutions as such cannot furnish."

Urges Study of Problem.

In a group of six specific recommendations concerning the problem of church-related higher education, Dr. Eiselen advocated that the Methodist board undertake a critical and "continuous study of higher education everywhere . . . and of the entire educational responsibility of the church in the field of higher education."

"Re-thinking Christian institutional education," Dr. Eiselen continued, "must concern itself not only with the number and types of institutions to be maintained but, what is more important, with their aims and objectives, the content of curriculum, the quality of the total educational program, and in the character of the administration, both in its educational and in its business aspects."

Among noted educators and church leaders of the country attending the board meeting are Dean Walter C. Coffey of the University of Minnesota school of agriculture; Dr. W. A. Jessup, president of the Carnegie corporation; Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club; Bishop Edgar Blake, of Detroit, and President Horace G. Smith, of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston. The final session will be held today.

House Burglars Haul Off Loot as Neighbors Watch

While Mrs. Charles M. Bacon, wife of a physician, was out shopping during the noon hour yesterday, three burglars looted her home at 9652 South Hoyne avenue of eight expensive rugs, clothing, and a radio. Neighbors said they watched the burglars carry the articles away in a truck and assumed that they were on legitimate business.

SOLD BY MORGAN TO MUSEUM

Buyers Unnamed

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—All six of the paintings which J. P. Morgan recently offered for sale have been purchased, according to announcement today by Charles R. Henschel, president of M. Knoedler & Co., the firm which acted as Mr. Morgan's agents.

Mr. Henschel declined to reveal the names of the buyers, with the exception of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, whose purchase of the portrait of Anne of Austria by Rubens and a Triptych by Filippo Lippi was announced Monday.

Mr. Henschel would not confirm or deny a suggestion that Edsel Ford had bought the most important painting in Mr. Morgan's collection, the portrait of Giovanna Tornabuoni by Ghirlandajo. He disclosed it had been bought at a price slightly under $500,000.

EDUCATION BOARD NAMES NEW HIGH SCHOOL OFFICIAL

Numerous Changes in Stafs Approved.

George F. Cassell was elected district superintendent in charge of high schools, yesterday, at the meeting of the board of education, and Paul R. Pierce and Chauncey C. Willard were elected principals of the new Wells and the new Wendell Phillips High schools respectively. The board also approved numerous other changes in the school staf recommended by Supt. Bogan.

The new district superintendent replaces Charles D. Lowry who is retiring. Mr. Cassell has been principal of Harrison High school and previously was principal of the Penn and the Lafayette Elementary schools. Mr. Pierce leaves the principalship of the Gladstone school to become the first Wells principal.

War Time Aviator.

During the war he was in the British air service, and at one time was supervising teacher for the government in the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Willard has been principal of the old Phillips High school. He will be succeeded there by William J. Page, principal of the Orr school.

John F. Maclear will leave the principalship of the Bryant school to succeed Mr. Cassell at Harrison. Walter Shea will assume the principal's duties at the Medill High school, replacing Charles H. Perrine who is retiring.

Woman Heads School.

Anna L. Cronin becomes the first principal of the new Wells elementary school and will be succeeded as principal of the Felsenthal school by Marion Franco-Ferreira.

No one has been named to succeed Benjamin F. Buck, retiring as assistant superintendent because he has reached the age limit of 70 years, said Mr. Bogan.

DIVORCE GRANTED TO DANCER LEON, FAY WEBB FRIEND

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Gary Leon, dancer, whose name has figured in the marital estrangement of the Rudy Vallees, was divorced today from Marion Mitchell, former show girl.

Leon testified he once had to cancel his headliner performances in a New York theater for several days because of nervousness resulting from finding his wife apparently unconscious at home.

"She had threatened to commit suicide and I was afraid she had done it," he said. "I called a doctor, who said she had only taken sleeping tablets."

Marcia Nace, Leon's dancing partner, testified Mrs. Leon was extremely jealous and lurked around the places hr husband worked, accusing him of flirting with other women.

Vallee, in court fights some months ago with his estranged wife, the former Fay Webb of Santa Monica, Cal., introduced into evidence what he said were transcripts of telephone conversations between her and Leon. The latter two denied any misconduct, however, saying they were merely old school friends.

KNICKERBOCKER RECEIVER QUIZ IN U. S. COURT

Bad Faith Charged in Trustee Action.

In a petition filed yesterday before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan seeking to have vacated an order entered by him last Friday which appointed a temporary trustee in bankruptcy proceedings for the Knickerbocker hotel, 163 East Walton place, Attorney Samuel E. Ettelson charged that the Chicago Title and Trust company and the Knickerbocker Hotel company had conspired to take jurisdiction of the property away from the Superior court. The attorney filed the petition in behalf of a bondholder.

Judge Sullivan referred the petition to Master in Chancery Charles A. McDonald, who will hear the evidence.

Two days before the trustee was appointed in the federal court on a petition filed under section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy act, which represented that a reorganization was to be effected, Judge Harry A. Lewis of the Superior court removed the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver for the property.

Principal, Interest Unpaid.

Judge Lewis' order pointed out that in the five years the trust company had managed the property neither principal nor interest had been paid the bondholders, but that the company and its attorneys had charged large fees. It was declared that none of the general taxes during that period, now amounting to $101,333, was paid.

Oscar Weiner, a real estate man, was appointed by Judge Lewis as the new receiver, but was supplanted two days later by Byron V. Kanaley, who was appointed trustee by Judge Sullivan.

Attorneys Arden J. Dallstream and Harry Boyd Hurd joined with Attorney Ettelson in the petition, and Attorney Hurd charged in court yesterday that the petition had not been filed in good faith and that it "constituted a fraud on the court."

Attorney Ettelson's petition declared that the reorganization petition under which Kanaley was appointed trustee was filed "at the instance, sanction and approval of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Called "Retaliation" Move.

The petition also recited the accusation that the federal action had been sought in order "to retaliate against Judge Lewis for removing the trust company as receiver and to prevent Judge Lewis from working out his plans for the best interests of the estate."

Since the Knickerbocker Hotel company was organized the day after the Chicago Title and Trust company was removed as receiver, the petition avers, a combination was effected between them "for ulterior motives."

NEW TREATMENT FOR COLDS:

A Genuine Discovery

Pine Balm offers you entirely new relief for colds.

It is not an ointment that merely clears your head for a few brief moments.

Pine Balm is a penetrant that reaches the air passages even to the bronchial tubes themselves. It relieves the congestion, relieves soreness, too. For throat irritation you just swallow a lump of this remarkable preparation; no sprays or gargles can compare with this newly discovered treatment.

With this rub, you can relieve a cold without taking one drop of internal medicine.

The public is not asked to try an untried product, or believe any unsupported claims. Physicians have tested the efficacy of this new formula on a great many men, women and children, having various types of colds.

IT COSTS ONLY 25 CENTS!

Get this new treatment, and be prepared. It is only a quarter a jar. Druggists who were all out of Pine Balm following the first announcement, have plenty now. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell Pine Balm in the "pine cone" jar, and use according to simple directions that come with it.

Pine Balm is a real discovery.

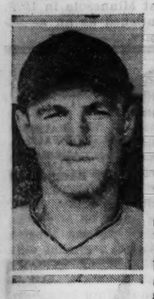
RODAK FIGHTS CANZONERI; HARDEST TEST

JURGES SIGNS; KLEIN MOANS OVER CONTRACT

New Cubs' Pitcher Rivals Warneke.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bill Jurges, another able workman who means much to the Cubs' hopes to beat out the Cards, the Giants, and the Pirates in the 1935 pennant race, is now in the fold. His signed contract arrived yesterday with a letter admitting he is in the best off-season shape of his career.



BILL JURGES.

Bill has been spending much of the winter at his Brooklyn home, but has foresworn all giddy attractions of that gay city to help mind his infant, born late last season.

Jurges, it will be remembered, was out many weeks last season following an attack of appendicitis and a cutting for same. Knocking wood, he foresees nothing that can strike him down during the tough campaign which the Cubs are bound to experience in 1935.

Klein Holding Out.

The status of Chuck Klein as an actual holdout seemed nearer yesterday, following reports from Indianapolis that the big star has dropped his "everything'll be all right" front and has started some real moaning to his intimates.

It has been known for three weeks that Klein was not satisfied with the salary offered him, but when he first received the document he said he expected to make a trip to Chicago to talk things over. His expected trip here is now more than ten days overdue and there are those who think it possible Chuck has been ribbed by acquaintances over the fact that Owner P. K. Wrigley wrote off his $125,000 purchase price as a total loss in arriving at the rather amazing recent announcement that the Cubs had lost $600,000 in the last three years.

A Challenge to Warneke.

And while the Cub officials were gleefully opening Jurges' letter and worrying about squawks of Klein, there came to THE TRIBUNE to be used at the regular space rates a message from Guy Butler of Atlanta, Ga., anent the talents of Thomas Hugh Casey, a right handed pitcher. Casey is listed by Manager Charley Grimm as a possibility to become that elusive fifth starting pitcher that the Cubs are going to have to dig up if they finish in the first division.

Mr. Butler in his piece deals particularly with Casey's size and baseball talents, but he branches out to say he is the greatest bird shot in baseball, a crack which we interpret as an insult and a challenge to our boy, Lon Warneke, who specializes on squirrels and goats, but who can shoot birds with anybody on the continent. We'll even say that Lon can bag more birds with a rifle than you can with a blunderbuss.

Makes Blood Boil.

Here's the part of Mr. Butler's item that made our blood boil in our loyalty to Nimrod Warneke:

"The youngster showed his versatility last winter which he spent with the late Uncle Wilbert Robinson at Dover Hall, baseball's happy hunting ground, proving himself the most sensational game shot that part of the wild ever had seen.

"Uncle Robby, Bob Gilks, former Yankee scout, and other visitors to the Hall agreed that he was the finest bird shot the ancient Hall had ever come to know."

We are not going to fall out with Mr. Casey on the strength of boosts by his friends, but we are prepared to sign articles for a demonstration whereby we will allow Warneke to shoot an apple off our head with his rifle if Dr. Andy Lotshaw, Cub trainer, will let Casey shoot a grapefruit off his head with Casey's vaunted shotgun.

Just Wait, Mr. Casey.

Incidentally, if Casey is such a whiz at bird shooting we want to be around the first afternoon he goes back of the Cub hotel at Catalina to see 'em feed 5,000 fat quail, representing almost 400 varieties, which arrive for the feast at exactly the same hour every day.

We have seen many a huntsman-ballplayer break out in a sweat, then swoon at the sight. Mr. Casey may think he's seen birds in Georgia, but he ain't seen nothin' until he sees that Catalina swarm, not a bird of which ever has smelled gunpowder, except, possibly, when some ballplayer or Vice President John O. Seys was out a shootin' goats, goats and hawks being the only wild life not rigidly protected on the island.

Joe Cronin Plays His First Baseball Game of Year

Stanford University, Cal., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Joe Cronin, new manager of the Boston Red Sox, played his first game of the year today and committed two errors, but his team, Kenealy's San Francisco Seals, defeated the Stanford varsity nine, 8 to 3 today. Cronin, who played both second and shortstop, also made one hit.

THE GUMPS—HA! HA! HO! HO!

IT WAS THE FUNNIEST THING I EVER LAID EYES ON WHEN I OPENED THAT CLOSET DOOR AND SAW THE OLD LADY STANDING THERE WITH THE BIG BLACK BLINKER- I THOUGHT I'D DIE-BUT HOW DID SHE GET IT? WHAT EXCUSE DID SHE HAVE?
SHE SAID SHE BUMPED INTO A DOOR KNOB WHILE STOOPING TO PICK UP A PIN— OH, MIN - YOU SHOULD SEE IT- IT'S AS BIG AS A PLATE-
THAT EXPLAINS WHY SHE HASN'T BEEN GOING OUT TO PARTIES WITH THEM LATELY-
AND WHAT A FLIMSY EXCUSE— THAT'S THE WORST ONE I EVER HEARD-
IT'S ALMOST AS BAD AS THE EXCUSE OLD-TIMER HAD LAST SUMMER THE DAY HE COULDN'T SIT DOWN- HE SAID HE'D GOTTEN IN A FIGHT AND THE OTHER FELLOW KICKED HIM IN THE STOMACH WHEN HIS BACK WAS TURNED-

BEA GOTTLIEB IN SEMI-FINALS OF FLORIDA TOURNEY

Punta Gorda, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Bea Gottlieb, New York, and Mrs. Mark McGarry, St. Petersburg, Fla., did most of the upsetting today in the second round of match play in the women's golf champions tournament.

Miss Gottlieb defeated Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., 2 and 1, while Mrs. McGarry eliminated Katherine Bragaw, South Orange, N. J., 5 and 4.

Mrs. Estelle Drennen, Tulsa, Okla., won over Mrs. George Chalmer, Cleveland, 5 and 3, while Mrs. Dean Stacy, Oklahoma City, defeated Mrs. Arthur Millea, Miami, Fla., 2 and 1.

Tomorrow Mrs. Drennen and Miss Gottlieb will be paired in one semi-final match, and Mrs. Stacy and Mrs. McGarry in the other.

FORMER CHICAGO BOXER CHARGED WITH EXTORTION

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—George Gardiner, a former Chicago pugilist, was charged today with attempting to extort $5,500 from David Herbert, reputedly a member of a titled English family. He also was accused of impersonating a police officer.

Herbert told Magistrate Francis J. Erwin that Gardiner came to him with the "minutes of a trial" in which a prisoner said to be in the Tombs was declared to have given information involving Herbert.

Gardiner was held in $2,500 bail. He said he formerly lived at 4900 Winthrop avenue, Chicago.

TILDEN, VINES ARE BEATEN BY LOTT, STOEFEN

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 30.—(AP)—George Lott and Lester Stoefen defeated William T. Tilden and Ellsworth Vines in a professional tennis match here tonight, 7-5, 6-1.

The Lott-Stoefen victory evened their score against the Tilden-Vines combination, each having won seven matches during their present tour of the country. Approximately 4,000 persons saw the contest.

Vines and Tilden held set point twice in the first set, but Lott and Stoefen rallied strongly to take four straight games and win the set. They breezed through the second set easily.

Tilden defeated Lott in a singles match, taking two straight sets, 6-3, 6-3. It was Tilden's eleventh victory over Lott in 14 matches.

Vines won his thirteenth straight singles victory over Stoefen, 7-5, 11-9. The match was the hardest fought on the program, Stoefen making a valiant but unsuccessful uphill fight.

COACHES TO MEET SATURDAY; TALK RULE REVISIONS

May Recommend Change in Lateral Pass.

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The "left wing" of the American Football Coaches' association, which has been agitating for drastic changes in the college football rules to give more scoring opportunities, will enjoy another hearing this week, even though it is likely to be voted down by the more conservative majority, led by Columbia's Lou Little.

The occasion is the annual session of the coaches' rules committee, to be held Saturday for the purpose of consolidating the recommendations which the game's professional teachers will pass on to the national rules committee.

Expect Few Changes.

If Little has gauged the sentiment of the coaches correctly, only two of the nine changes put forward at the annual meeting of the coaches' association, held in December, have much chance of surviving the forthcoming technical session. These concern lateral passes and the so-called "forward progress" rule, which the coaches think need clarifying.

"I doubt seriously whether the coaches will vote to recommend anything drastic," said Little today. "The reaction I have been receiving from coaches all over the country indicates that with the exception of a change in the penalty on a lateral pass which is inadvertently thrown forward, the game is in first class form now."

Under the present code, when an intended lateral turns out to be a forward, the ball reverts to the spot at which the play originated, thus canceling in some instances a substantial gain made before the down field lateral is thrown.

Interpretation Is Varied.

Interpretation of the "forward progress" rule by officials has varied so much in the last season that the coaches are likely to ask the national rules committee to take steps toward eliminating existing confusion. This is especially important to teams making liberal use of the lateral, like Colgate, which was the victim or beneficiary of conflicting rulings last season. It involves a fine point of judgment, however, on just when to declare the ball "dead", and presents difficulties for the rule makers as well as the officials.

Otherwise, although several of the subjects may arouse sharp division of opinion, it is expected the coaches will turn down proposals made within their organization to return the goal posts to the goal line, permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage, and allow the defensive team to advance with a recovered fumble and permit incoming substitutes to communicate.

GOMEZ GOES TO BERLIN; RUTH IS IN SWITZERLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—Vernon [Lefty] Gomez of the New York Yankees and Mrs. Gomez and J. A. Hillerich, manufacturer of baseball bats of Louisville, and Mrs. Hillerich, who have been on a world tour with Babe Ruth, arrived in Berlin today to spend a week in the German capital. Ruth had planned to come here, too, but Mrs. Ruth was suffering from a cold, so the Ruth family stayed in Switzerland. Gomez and Hillerich are talking with German sports chiefs and studying preparations for next year's Olympic games.

Levinsky Signs to Fight Merrill Tonn in Sarasota

Durocher Signs Contract with St. Louis Cardinals

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Shortstop Leo Durocher of the Cardinals and Utility Infielder Ollie Bejma of the Browns are the latest members of the two St. Louis baseball clubs to sign contracts for 1935, it was learned today.

HAVE IT OUT TONIGHT

Tony Canzoneri, at 29 years of age, still ranks near the top of the lightweight division. He packs a punch that may crush the fistic ambitions of Rodak tonight.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 30.—Originator of the "Most Valuable Player" idea in sports is Carl M. Green, a former Chicago and Detroit advertising man, now retired and living in Pasadena. About the turn of the century, Green was employed at various times as a sports reporter on THE TRIBUNE, old Record, and Record-Herald.

Green left the newspaper field to become business manager of the Boston Red Sox, then owned by Henry Killea of Milwaukee. Killea, prominent railroad and baseball attorney, was an ardent alumnus of University of Michigan, which Green had attended. As business manager, the ex-scribe conducted the sale of the Red Sox for $200,000 to John I. Taylor, son of Gen. Charles Taylor of the Boston Globe.

Selling himself out of a job, Green entered advertising with a Chicago agency, becoming a personal friend of Harry Ford, then advertising manager for the Chalmers car. Hugh Chalmers at that time went in heavily for "style" in his models, the first of the more moderate priced car manufacturers to do so, if we remember rightly.

* *

Green suggested to Ford the presentation of a Chalmers car to the best batsman in the American league, at a world series game. Official sanction for the idea was obtained because of his friendship with the late Ban Johnson and Garry Herrman, a majority of the National baseball commission. It appeared like wonderful advertising for the expense involved.

Hugh Chalmers, of course, jumped at the idea. That was in 1910. Old-time baseball followers remember the near scandal which followed. Ty Cobb of Detroit was a few points ahead of Larry Lajoie of Cleveland in the averages when the Indians went to St. Louis for a final double-header. Cobb, whose spikes often flew high as he slid into bases in his spectacular base running, was not popular with the Browns—probably for that reason, although we've forgotten the exact feud.

Why let Cobb have this car? The Browns apparently wondered. Anyway, the Browns' third baseman played deep, far back of the bag. Lajoie then laid down safe bunts. When the third baseman moved too far in the big French-Canadian whistled them past him. Lajoie collected eight hits in eight times at bat, and passed Cobb by a fraction of a point in the final unofficial compilation. At once there were charges of collusion and a fine uproar. Chalmers saved the situation by announcing cars would be awarded to both Cobb and Lajoie. Later, the Browns were absolved of the collusion charges. Still later official averages revealed Cobb the winner by one point, .385 to .384.

Therefore, conditions of the award were changed the following season to the Most Valuable Player in both American and National leagues. A commission of newspaper writers from big league cities was named to make the choice. The late I. E. Sanborn, of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was chosen chairman, a position in which he continued until a few years before his death.

Success of the idea, resultant publicity, perhaps had much to do with Hugh Chalmers offering his advertising account to the sponsor of the idea. He insisted, however, that Green move to Detroit for that purpose. There the Carl M. Green agency was founded, later to become Green, Fulton and Cunningham, which eventually had headquarters in Chicago, retaining the Detroit office as a branch. Jimmy Fulton of that firm, also retired, a summer resident of Glencoe and winter resident of Miami Beach, is the demon Skokie golfer whom The Wake has met on the links with disastrous results. Cunningham, who married a popular newspaper writer, passed away within the last few years.

Later, the Chalmers angle faded out of the Most Valuable Player competition, but the leagues retained the idea, at one time giving a cash prize to the winner. The award is still made, as readers know, by practically the same method as at the start over two decades ago.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Naval academy basketball team defeated the University of Maryland, 43 to 36, today in one of the speediest and cleanest games on the local court this season.

Court Upholds Conviction in Narcotic Case

The convictions of Jack Howard, widely known Lexington, Ky., turfman, and his stable foreman, Charles Mitchell, for violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic act in connection with the alleged doping of race horses was upheld in the United States Court of Appeals here yesterday.

As a result of the ruling Howard was fined $200 and was also given a suspended jail sentence of thirty days. Mitchell received a fine of $50 and a suspended jail sentence of ten days. The sentences had been handed out by Federal Judge Phillip L. Sullivan.

Arrested in Raid.

Howard and his stable foreman were arrested at the Arlington Park track in Chicago in the summer of 1933. A dozen other persons charged with the same offense were taken in the raid.

Howard's case was the first to be tried. He was convicted in Judge Sullivan's court last July and his attorneys appealed the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The opinion upholding the decision was written by Judge Louis Fitz Henry, with the concurrence of Judges Evan A. Evans and Will M. Sparks.

INVESTIGATE DOPE CHARGES.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. E. M. Hector, Texas' first licensed trainer, was among eight persons reported suspended today at Alamo Downs race track in connection with an investigation into the "speeding up" of horses.

The San Antonio Evening News said the others suspended were L. Burkes, H. G. Knott, R. A. Coward, Vic Gallo, J. Bainton, B. P. Sparks, and R. H. Martin.

Stewards were investigating the use of stimulants and electrical gadgets.

A. A. STAGG IN CITY ON WAY TO RULES MEETING

Amos Alonzo Stagg arrived yesterday from the Pacific coast for a short stay in Chicago. The former University of Chicago coach, who is now stationed at the College of the Pacific, will attend a luncheon of the Kiwanis club of Chicago today at the Hamilton club. After his visit Stagg will go east to attend the national collegiate rules committee meeting.

YOUTH OPPOSES RING VETERAN BEFORE 15,000

Ex-Golden Glover in 23d Bout Tonight.

Tonight's Card

Tony Canzoneri vs. Leo Rodak, 10 rounds.
Eddie [Babe] Risko vs. Solly Dukelsky, 10 rounds.
Lou Halper vs. Joey Bazzone, 10 rounds.
Billy Treest vs. Jack Charves, 6 rounds.
Joey Brown vs. Paul Lee, 6 rounds.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The age old fight of youth against experience comes to another dramatic climax at the Chicago Stadium tonight when young Leo Rodak of Chicago tries to persuade the veteran lightweight fighter and former champion, Tony Canzoneri of New York, that the time has come for him to step aside and let youth have its way.

Rodak has 10 rounds in which to clinch his argument. Chicagoans must think he will be able to present a good case, for 15,000 have made plans to be on hand when the fight takes place.

Aside from their share of the prospective $30,000 purse, the fighters have at stake the second to the top rung of the world's lightweight championship ladder. Canzoneri occupies that position now although it wasn't so long ago that he was on the top and Barney Ross was the young fellow pounding at the door.

Ross Must Recognize Winner.

Ross must recognize and meet in battle tonight's winner, if he hopes to maintain his high standing in the prize ring industry.

No one realized four years ago—it was exactly this time of the year—that the skinny, spindle legged Rodak weighing 110 pounds, who hopped over the ropes to make his first appearance in any ring in a south section TRIBUNE Golden Gloves tournament, was timber out of which champions are made.

Golden Gloves fans soon found out that this was so, for he slashed his way through more than a dozen battles to victory and the Golden Gloves flyweight championship.

The next year his legs were not quite so spindly. But the fact that he had outgrown the flyweight division did not daunt him. He merely threw his bundle of energy into the bantamweight division. And on he fought to his second Golden Gloves championship.

Fights on to Third Title.

The benefits of two years of perfect training showed markedly when he appeared for his third try for Golden Gloves honors.

He now weighed 126 pounds and was a lithe, full chested, strong muscled picture of the perfect athlete. This time his weight made it compulsory for him to go after the featherweight championship.

He brought it home all right and thus became the only boy ever to win three Golden Gloves championships in three different divisions. He also won honors in the Catholic Youth organization, under whose auspices he is fighting as a professional.

Thus far he had never considered seriously the thought of becoming a professional boxer. He much preferred a business career or a trade.

The scarcity of business and trade opportunities in 1933 when Rodak found it imperative to earn his own living is too well known to need going into.

His 23d Pro Fight.

With it was a constant chance to earn money if he cared to go professional. Necessity won. It put him in the ring tonight and in a position to make his fortune over a short period of years. This is his 23d fight as a professional. He has won them all.

Canzoneri, too, started as an amateur in New Orleans, but had turned to the professional ranks as early as 1925. He is the last of that golden age of fighters that produced such great little men as Sammy Mandell, Bud Taylor, Pal Moore, Joe Berman, and others.

At one time or another in his career he has held the world's championship in the featherweight, lightweight and junior welterweight divisions. It was only a year and a half ago that he surrendered his lightweight title to Barney Ross and lost by so close a decision that tonight's fight to many will still be a fight at which his crown is at stake.

The betting indicates that he is not through by any means, for since the match was made he has ruled as the favorite with the odds at 8 to 5.

Canzoneri 29 Years Old.

The record books give the ages of the fighters as Canzoneri 29 and Rodak 21.

As both boxers were well under the weight limit of 133½ pounds yesterday it was an easy day for both of them. Rodak didn't work at all. The only thing Canzoneri did was to engage in limbering up exercises and predict that he would have Rodak down and out for the count in a half dozen rounds.

There are four other scraps on the program and some shifty, hard hitting boys will engage in them. They range from featherweights to middleweights. But it is Rodak and Canzoneri, and the prospect of a great battle between them, that has aroused the interest of the fistic minded folks.

PACHO AGREES TO BOUTS HERE WITH DAY AND SAGILIO

Bobby Pacho of Los Angeles, Cal., who gave Barney Ross two hard fights for the junior welterweight boxing championship in recent months, agreed yesterday to meet Davey Day Feb. 21 and then Frank Sagilio March 1, both bouts to be held at the Coliseum. The latter match is contingent upon Pacho's showing against Day and Sagilio's performance against Young Joe Firpo of Philadelphia, whom he opposes for ten rounds at Cicero Stadium Friday of next week. Sam Pian and Art Winch, co-managers of Day, will arrive by airplane tonight at 5 o'clock from Miami, Fla., to close for the Pacho encounter.

Eddie [Babe] Risko, Syracuse, N. Y., middleweight; his stablemate, Joey Brown, and their handlers will head for Philadelphia tomorrow. . . . Risko will box Paul Pirrone of Cleveland, O., in a ten round windup there next Wednesday. . . . A match between Jack Kranz and Eddie Simms, scheduled for tomorrow at Detroit, has been postponed to Wednesday. . . . Freddy Caserio, 1933 Golden Gloves middleweight titleholder, out of action since Jan. 4 because of a cut eye, will resume workouts next week.

Pete De Grasse, New York Indian featherweight, is due today to begin preparations for his ten round engagement with Everett Rightmire at Midway arena Monday. Le Roy [Sailor] Born, Atlanta, Ga., lightweight, has been paired against Eddie Chinski for five rounds. Another tussle at this distance will match Sammy Adams with Nestor Bruggman.

Harry Dublinsky, Chicago junior welterweight, is expected to return next week from a vacation at Hot Springs, Ark. . . . Bob La Monte, 1933 C. Y. O. welterweight king, is considering an offer from Murray McLean for a series of contests at St. Paul, Minn. . . . Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., 147 pound fighter, has recovered from a cut over his eye, sustained in a winning combat with Puggy Weinert at Marigold Gardens Jan. 21. . . . Joe Jorden, Memphis, Tenn., heavyweight boxer, has joined the stable being formed by James Norris Jr., Ed Carroll, and Sig Hart.

Walter Rodak, 24 years old, brother of Leo Rodak, and Miss Jean Wisnewski of Chicago were married yesterday at St. Michael's church. . . . Leo took a layoff from drills for his match with Canzoneri in order to be able to attend the wedding breakfast. . . . Jackie Davis, 1929 Golden Gloves featherweight runnerup to Barney Ross, will clash with Tony Falco, Philadelphia junior welterweight, at Philadelphia tonight. . . . Jack Renault, former heavyweight leader, will make a comeback tonight in a ten round meeting against Nathan Mann at New Haven, Conn. F. M.

U. S. BIOLOGIST WILL ADDRESS KENNICOTT CLUB

Dr. Harry C. Oberholser, senior biologist of the United States Biological Survey, will speak on "Lure of the Waterfowl" at a meeting of the Kennicott club at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Oberholser and his associates have made a survey of the waterfowl situation, and he will report to members of the club the compiled results of this survey, as well as express his reactions to the plans for a proposed closed season on waterfowl. Dr. Oberholser will also show a one-reel film. Tappan Gregory, president of the Kennicott club, will preside.

PREP SWIMMERS TO DECIDE STATE TITLE AT N. U.

The fourth annual Illinois high school championship swimming meet will be held in the Patten gymnasium pool at Northwestern university March 1 and 2.

The trials, according to an announcement from the State association office today, will be held on Friday, March 1, with the title finals the next day. The 852 teams entered in the district basketball tournaments, March 6, 7, 8, and 9, are being placed in tournament centers, a task which will require another week of work.

Malkov Defeats Dusette in White City Match

Zack Malkov, Chicago light heavyweight wrestler, won a decision over George Dusette, Boston, when the latter was unable to continue after 47 minutes and 5 seconds of wrestling in the windup bout last night at Marigold Gardens. Ralph Garibaldi and Stanley West wrestled 30 minutes to a draw. Ed Flynn beat Alex McKinzie, George Schwab beat Dr. Jack Kinney, and Al Williams and Buck O'Neil wrestled a draw in other encounters.

Player Hurt as Ruths Tie C.Y.O. 1 to 1

The C. Y. O. All Stars and Baby Ruths tied, 1 to 1, and the Boston Store defeated the Postls, 2 to 0, at the Stadium last night, as the first half of the Chicago Hocky league season ended. A crowd of 6,000 saw the games.

For 59 minutes it appeared as if the Baby Ruths were going to lose their first game of the season, but a lucky break and slow clearance on the part of Goalie Clem Poulin permitted Schotzlein to make the tying tally. Kinghorn on a pass from Grossman got the first tally in the opening period.

W. J. Foulis, playing coach of the Baby Ruths, was seriously injured when an opponent's skate fractured his skull above the right temple. He was taken to the West Side hospital by Dr. M. S. Corbett, Stadium physician, where it was reported he will recover.

The Boston Store six, by blanking the Postls, moved into a tie with the Baby Ruths for the Stadium division lead. The Boston Store scored after 13:45 minutes of play with Janelle beating Porter. Late in the final period the Boston Store made its second goal with Bladnik scoring in 13:30.

Coulter, Burke, and Thompson of the Blackhawks served as referees.

BABE HERMAN HARDLY LOOKS AT 1935 CONTRACT

"Yes, it came in the other day," said the former Brooklyn, Cincinnati, and Chicago Cubs outfielder, "but I've hardly looked at it yet.

"Understand, I'm no holdout. But I sort of figured I wouldn't sign it until I have a chat with Pie Traynor, manager, when he comes out. Or I might wait until the team arrives for spring training at San Bernardino, Cal., and talk with William Benswanger, president, then.

"That's the way I did with the Cubs last year. Everyone figured I was a holdout when I wasn't. I went in and talked with President Bill Walker a few minutes the day he arrived and signed my contract."

Herman said he had worked out twice and had otherwise been occupying his time playing golf and hunting.

REDFIELD BEATS LINDLEY, 35-27, IN CUE TOURNEY

P. C. Redfield retained first place in the field of ten competing in the qualifying round of the national amateur three cushion billiard tournament at 131 South Wabash avenue recreation by defeating Donald Lindley, 35 to 27, in one of yesterday's games.

George O'Dea held on to second place with a 35 to 33 victory over Roy Zeff. J. Stuart defeated H. A. Hegan, 35 to 18, in the other game played.

The tournament closes today with the winner earning the right to compete in the national event at the New York Athletic club starting Monday. Redfield, O'Dea and Zeff are still in the running.

ROGER E. BAKER, BASEBALL MAN, FACES JAIL TERM

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Roger E. Baker, last year a baseball magnate and night club owner, now a convicted forger and embezzler, sat in a cell tonight faced with the possibility of 705 years in prison.

A jury today convicted Baker of 82 counts of forgery, larceny, falsification of accounts and fraud during his tenure as assistant treasurer of the Diamond-Grynkraut Kid company from which he was charged with stealing nearly $300,000.

Forty-nine other counts charging larceny from various banks had been dropped by the prosecution. Judge Thomas J. Hammond will sentence Baker Friday afternoon.

The money Baker stole was poured into his bizarre baseball and restaurant enterprises, testimony showed. Baker was financially interested in seven of the eight clubs of the Northeastern Baseball league, a minor circuit. He owned three outright. His other activities included a pretentious restaurant circuit.

Notre Dame Battles Ohio State Five Tonight

Trick Skaters to Aid Olympic Benefit Meet

Red McCarthy and Bobby McLean will appear on the Medinah Country club ice carnival program Sunday for the benefit of the Olympic skating team fund. McCarthy is billed as the world's champion barrel jumper and trick skater. McLean has been known for years as king of the speed skaters. At present he is the world's professional speed skating champion in addition to being a trick and figure skater. Both McLean and McCarthy are to make two appearances Sunday.

Shirley Jean Reflow, 8 year old St. Louis girl, also will be on the program. She is being hailed as a likely successor to Sonja Henie of Norway, world figure skating champion.

The speed program will present the outstanding skaters of the United States and Canada and features Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, captain of the United States Olympic team. Schroeder will make an attempt to break the record for 3,000 meters. National champions and runnersup of both the United States and Canada will fill out the field.

STARS TO SKATE HERE

Chicagoland's skating champions, including all the winners in this year's Silver Skates derby, will meet the champions of eight states and of Canada here Saturday evening when the fourth annual Western Open Indoor meet is held at the Stadium.

Included in the field will be Kitty Klein of Buffalo and Marvin Swanson of Minneapolis, the new outdoor champions; the 1936 United States Olympic team composed of Capt. Eddie Schroeder of Chicago and Del Lamb and Bob Petersen of Milwaukee; and every point winner in the national and Great Lakes meets held last week-end at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Canada is sending its three leading senior men skaters, Alex Hurd, Frank Stack, and Herb Flack, and five of its outstanding women skaters. Heading the latter delegation will be Lela Brooks of Toronto, who has won the women's diamond trophy event at the western open for the past three years. Florence Hurd, Hattie Donaldson Briggs, Gladys Ferguson and Marjorie McKenna complete the contingent of Canadian women stars.

Interpret Rules for New York Ring Officials

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Licensed referees and judges on the roster of the state athletic commission have been notified by special bulletin of the commission's interpretation of the scoring rules in boxing and the method by which they are to be applied to bouts, it was learned today.

It is understood, too, that the commission is considering the advisability of discarding the custom of revealing the details of the individual votes of judges and referee immediately following boxing matches.

The special bulletin on scoring essentials is calculated to acquaint the judges and referees minutely with the rule which places it in the discretion of the bout officials to award a decision to a boxer who wins fewer rounds than his rival, provided conditions warant.

The idea of doing away with detailed information on the three ballot slips would, it is argued by friends of the proposal, eliminate confusion that inevitably follows a bout in which a verdict is divided. The moves combined are expected to minimize dissatisfaction among supporters of boxing.

Maintaining a measure of secrecy on the voting would be reverting to a system that obtained several years, and which was found highly satisfactory during the régime of James A. Farley as chairman of the commission. The individual votes of three bout officials were disclosed, but the round by round scoring of each judge and referee was withheld. The information, however, always was available for public inspection at the commission offices the following morning.

In the bulletin Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, takes the recent Vince Dundee-Babe Risko incident for purposes of illustration and stresses the fact that a boxer who has won fewer rounds than his opponent is only to be considered as eligible for the decision provided he has been distinctly superior in every important element of boxing aggressiveness, more accurate and effective punching, and in physical condition at the end of the bout.

AMATEUR SHOOTS 68 FOR LEAD IN OAKMONT EVENT

Glendale, Cal., Jan. 30.—(AP)—While golfers of fame were struggling along with high scores, Jack Holbrook, a young Glendale amateur, came in today with a 68, two strokes under par, to lead the field at the end of the first round qualifying play of the Oakmont $6,500 open championship.

Holbrook shot two 34s in setting the pace for the first half of the field in this richest money tournament of the winter season in California.

Three Tie for Second.

A stroke behind him, tied for second place, were Al Zimmerman, Pacific northwest champion of Portland, Ore.; Les Bolstad, Minneapolis, who turned pro only last summer, and Jack Gaines, Glendale High school instructor.

Five others were deadlocked at 70 to tie for fifth place. These, who equaled par, were Bunny Torpey, Kansas City; Verne Torfin, Tacoma, Wash.; Ben Loving, Petersburg, Va.; Harry Cooper, Chicago, and John Perelli, Lake Tahoe, Cal.

McSpaden Shoots 72.

Harold McSpaden of Kansas City, Kas., the leading money winner of the California tours to date, was forced to shoot a 33 on the back nine to tie for 13th place with six others at 72. Gene Sarazen of New York, former open champion, required 73 strokes today to get around the 6,720 yard layout. John Revolta of Milwaukee, runner-up for the Los Angeles open title, shot a 75.

Even farther back were Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., leading money winner two years ago, with a 77; Jimmy Thomson of Long Beach, Cal., Australian open titleholder, with a 78, and Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn, Agua Caliente champion, who shot a 79.

First Time on Course.

Bolstad was playing the course for the first time, when he shot his 69 to take second.

The remaining half of the field will play its first round tomorrow. The final round of the 72 hole medal play will come Sunday, with the winner collecting $800 prize money.

On Monday and Tuesday, the nine leaders will meet in four rounds of match play. The victor will be accorded the championship and $500 additional prize money.

GAR WOOD TO TRY FOR SPEEDBOAT RECORD IN MARCH

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Gar Wood announced today he will try to set a new world speed record at Miami beach the first week in March, wind and water permitting.

Miss America X, in which he set the present record of 124.85 miles an hour in St. Clair river, Mich., two summers ago, is being primed there now, he said, and will be shipped here next month.

"I'll be satisfied with anything better than the present mark," Wood said. "I may be able to do 130 or better, but I've a notion that's a little too much to ask of Miss America X."

Janis Wins Decision Over Thomas in Amateur Show

Vincent Pellgrini beat William Goldsmith [3].

Sam David beat Arthur Walker [3].

Joe Lewis beat James Hogan [3].

Report Sundt Will Become Spears' Aid

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Rumors were prevalent today that Guy Sundt, University of Wisconsin freshmen football coach, would succeed Irwin C. Uteritz as first assistant coach. Uteritz resigned recently to accept a job as assistant at the University of California. It also was rumored that Russell Rippe, athletic director and coach of all sports at Wisconsin High school, would succeed Sundt as freshman coach.

The head baseball coaching post, also vacated by Uteritz's resignation, probably will be filled this spring by one of two members of the staf, Art Mansfield or Richard [Red] Smith, or Bobby Poser, former Wisconsin basketball and baseball star. Poser is a student in the graduate school.

Uteritz plans to leave Madison about March 1. Athletic Director Walter E. Meanwell said today a decision probably would be reached in February and that it would await Coach Spears' proposal on what he believed would be best for football.

It is known that Spears would like to have the services of Harold [Shorty] Almquist, Minnesota back field star in 1925-'26-'27 and present head coach at Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., as back field coach, in which event Sundt would continue as freshman coach. George Gibson, all-American guard at Minnesota in 1928, also is being mentioned as an assistant to Coach Spears.

STEINMETZ TIES FOREMAN TWICE IN PREP BATTLES

Harrison and Tilden Win to Keep Pace.

Prep Basketball

[Lightweight]
Hyde Park, 30; Englewood, 21.
Foreman, 20; Steinmetz, 20.

[Heavyweight]
Marshall, 39; Crane Tech, 31.
Tuley, 29; McKinley, 16.
Harrison Tech, 31; Kelly, 22.
Tilden Tech, 35; Lindblom, 31.
Manley, 43; Austin, 17.
Steinmetz, 24; Foreman, 24.

Two tie games between Steinmetz and Foreman featured the Chicago Public High School league basketball schedule yesterday. The lightweights played an overtime period, but finished deadlocked, 20 to 20, and the heavyweights ended their game at the conclusion of the regulation time, 24 to 24.

In the lightweight contest Wishmeyer sank a basket in the closing minutes to tie the score. Steinmetz led at the end of the first half, 11 to 5, Foreman making only one point in the first quarter. A rally in the final period after trailing, 18 to 11, enabled Foreman to tie the game.

Foreman Leads at Half.

In the heavyweight deadlock, Foreman led, 17 to 12, at the intermission. The teams were tied, 19 to 19, in the third quarter. Each team scored five points in the last period.

Harrison Tech and Tilden Tech heavyweight quintets won their fourth games in as many starts to share the central section lead. Frank Bryski, star Harrison guard, played his last game as Harrison defeated Kelly, 31 to 22. Although Bryski will not be graduated until June he completed his eighth semester yesterday. Bryski scored 13 points against Kelly.

Second Lindblom Defeat.

Tilden triumphed over Lindblom, 35 to 31. It was Lindblom's second defeat. Tilden scored 12 points in each of the last two quarters. Lindblom led at the half, 19 to 11. The lineups:

Injury Threatens to End Wrestler Kashey's Career

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 30.—(AP)—An old injury to his back may end the wrestling career of Abe Kashey, heavyweight. Kashey, on the advice of a physician, today was taken from his room at a local hotel to the Mayo clinic at Rochester for treatment after his right leg had become paralyzed from complications following the back injury, which was aggravated in a match at Rochester last week.

N. U. RESUMES WORKOUTS AFTER THREE DAY REST

Following a three day rest during the examination period, Northwestern's basketball team resumed its daily practice yesterday in preparation for the return game with Notre Dame at Patten gymnasium a week from Saturday. The Wildcats won the first encounter 26 to 25, at South Bend earlier in the season.

The victory over the Irish climaxed Northwestern's brilliant practice game record in which it won six consecutive games, thus establishing itself as a serious contender in the Big Ten race.

Form Is Reversed.

Then come the reversal of form that found the Wilcats winding up the first half of their conference schedule with five defeats and one victory. The Wildcats are now residing in ninth place, only one game out of the cellar with the race half completed.

Northwestern still has hopes of staging a comeback. To accomplish this the team must undergo a complete reversal of form for the remaining conference games include two with the league leading Indiana quintet, and one each with Iowa, Purdue, Ohio, and Michigan.

Average 23 Points.

Coach Dutch Lonborg is at a loss to explain the slump. From a team that averaged 38 points per game during the practice schedule, the Wildcats dropped to an average of 23 points per game for the first six games of the conference schedule.

The collapse of Fisher as a scoring threat apparently spread throughout the ranks until now the team has no player around whom to rally. Duke Vance, sophomore guard, is the team's leading scorer with 31 points for six games.

Expect Lineup Changes.

Several changes probably will be made in the Wildcat lineup before their next appearance. Coach Lonborg hopes to get more scoring punch in his front line and may go back to the combination that was used in the earlier games. This consisted of Mercer and Fisher, forwards; McAnally, center, and Vance and Kawal, guards.

FORT WAYNE TO HAVE THREE EYE BASEBALL TEAM

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Fort Wayne was admitted as a sixth member of the new Three Eye Baseball league here today at a meeting of club officials. The Indiana city will replace Springfield, Ill., which was unable to obtain proper backing to place a club in the league.

The league now consists of three Illinois cities—Peoria, Bloomington, and Decatur—and three from Indiana, Terre Haute, Fort Wayne, and Evansville.

Reports that Belleville, Ill., was interested in joining the circuit were deflated when the city failed to send a representative to today's meeting.

L. J. Wylie of Decatur, temporary chairman of the league committee, announced that each club will post $1,500 forfeit at another meeting to be held at Decatur next Sunday.

Those attending today's gathering included Bill Jackson, Peoria; C. F. Boyer, Bloomington, and Red Mathes of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Optometrist Basketball Team Seeks No. 17

The Northern Illinois College of Optometry basketball team will seek its thirteenth straight victory when it plays Medill college at Medill tonight.

Ranger Rush Spurs Hawks in Long Drill

Games Tonight

Montreal Canadiens at Detroit.
Montreal Maroons at N. Y. Americans.
New York Rangers at Toronto.

The rush of the New York Rangers, who have not lost a game in their last ten, and the peril of the Boston Bruins, who have crept to within a half a game of tying the Blackhawks for the United States division leadership of the National Hocky league, were reasons advanced by Manager Clem Loughlin for a long talk the Hawks' leader gave the world champions yesterday. In addition, the Hawks were sent through the hardest workouts they have had in weeks.

No More Practice.

Because of various bookings at the Stadium, ice will not be available for workouts for the rest of the week and the Hawks will have to loaf until next Sunday night when they meet the New York Americans.

In the meantime the Maple Leafs will try to stop the rampaging Rangers at Toronto tonight, while the Montreal Maroons will endeavor to do likewise to the Bruins Saturday.

In New York hocky fans again have shown preference for the Rangers. At Tuesday's game more than 15,000 crowded Madison Square Garden to see their favorites beat Toronto, 7 to 5. It was the record crowd of the National league season.

Boucher Leads Scorers.

The crowd saw the Cook-Boucher-Cook line, professional hocky's outstanding scoring trio, score its thousandth point, and they also saw Frank Boucher, center of the same line, take the individual scoring lead in the United States section.

Caserio to Be Host to Major League Players

Leading baseball players who reside in Chicago will be honored at a banquet Saturday night at Freddie Caserio's Ringside restaurant, 1904 South Wabash avenue. Among the players who will attend are Oscar Melillo, Bruce Campbell, Johnny [Jocko] Conlan, Johnny McCarthy and George Caithammer.

Mostly About Dogs

By Bob Becker

The Question Box

Will you please give me information on the Newfoundland dog? I am thinking about getting one for a pet. Are the males as large as the females? Are there any good books available on this breed?

MRS. W. WEST,
North Damen avenue.

The Newfoundland is hardy breed and a likeable one, too. He has an excellent disposition and makes a fine companion for children or adults. I had some experience with several Newfoundlands one winter in Ontario, where a hunter and outfitter was using Newfoundlands for sled dogs. Several things noticeable about his dogs were, their great strength, their good disposition, their excellent traits as companions and their rugged constitutions. This breed is a big one, as you know. The females are smaller than the males. Common color of Newfoundlands is all black. Black and white dogs are extremely good looking. Sorry, but I do not know of any book devoted exclusively to the Newfoundland. If you will send me a stamped addressed envelope I will be glad to put you in touch with breeders of Newfoundlands who will give you further details of the breed.

My name is Robert Lee Bort. I am 10 years old, have a brother 5, and a little sister, too. My parents love dogs and they say they will buy me one this spring. We first owned a fine German police dog. He died of age. Then we had a Dobermann pinscher. We like big dogs, and we want a dog with the kindness that big dogs seem to have, and brown eyes. I like brown and red dogs. What I want is a dog I can like as much as I did our big dogs, but of a small breed. If you can suggest to me the kind of dog I want I would thank you very much.

ROBERT LEE BORT,
Beloit, Wis.

You are giving me a real problem to solve, but I am going to send you some suggestions by mail regarding various breeds and tell you of kennels to contact so you can look at some of the medium sized or smaller breeds. Among the breed suggestions the airedale will be included. He's a rough and ready dog for boys and may weigh around 40 or 45 pounds—not small but, at that, smaller than your old German shepherd dog. Smart dog, too. But there will be five or six other breeds listed in my letter to you because the airdale is just one of a number of breeds that a boy of your age ought to like.

For the last few weeks I have tried honestly with much ignorant effort to raise a Husky dog [female]. I have had some success. She is now about 10 weeks old. But now we would appreciate some advice as to how to feed the animal—how often, what kind of food, etc. Any suggestions you can give will be appreciated.

EDWARD N. P., M. D.

TRI-CITY KENNEL CLUB ADDRESSED BY BOB BECKER

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Bob Becker, outdoor editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, addressed members of the Tri-city Kennel club at the Peoples light auditorium here tonight. The mayors of the three cities of Davenport, Rock Island and Moline, Ill., were present as well as a number of guests.

Mr. Becker's talk was in three parts, the first included adventure yarns from the various countries and the use of dogs in hunting jaguar in Brazil for the Field museum. He also told of "the chow that retrieves trout in the Black Hills of South Dakota," and "experience with Alaskan huskies in the Yukon."

Charity Polo Games to Be Held Tonight

The Black Horse Troop will stage a program of polo games and military events at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street, this evening for the benefit of the Little Wanderer Day Nursery.

Polo fans will witness four fast teams in action. In the curtain-raiser, the 106th Cavalry will meet the Riding club Bees. The Black Horse Troop will then take the field against the 122d Field artillery.

Decide Jumping Title.

Between the halves of the first game the Black Horse Troop's jumping championship will be decided. During the intermission between games, the Black Horse Troop, in full dress uniform, will execute exhibition drills.

The Black Horse Troop mounted band, under the direction of A. Boyd Pixley, will provide a drill concert during the halves of the second game. A burro novelty is also on the program.

Proceeds to Charity.

The proceeds of the show will be contributed to the Little Wanderer Day Nursery, a nonsectarian institution providing daytime care for the children of working mothers.

LARRANAGA WINS HIALEAH FEATURE IN GAME FINISH

Favorite Beats General Parth by a Head.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The Anall stable's veteran sprinter, Larranaga, ran in his best form today and captured the Lakeland handicap, which featured the card at Hialeah Park. He held on gamely in the run through the stretch and won by a head from the Peconic stable's General Parth, which closed with a belated rush. W. S. Kilmer's Sunador was third.

Larranaga, the favorite, paid $6.30 and ran the mile in 1:37 2-5. It was his first victory at Hialeah Park, although he had given an excellent performance when beaten only a nose by Slapdash recently.

The 6 year old son of Apprehension-Garden of Allah was well handled by Jocky Eddie Arcaro, who made a strong finishing ride. This completed a double for Arcaro, who scored on Our Davis in the opening event.

Larranaga Goes to Front.

Arcaro rated Larranaga with good judgment for the first six furlongs, while Sunador set a dizzy pace with Changeling in close pursuit. Coming around the turn Larranaga was sent up and assumed the lead from the tiring front runners. But when it appeared that he might win handily General Parth, which had been badly outrun in the early stages, came to the outside of the field and, finishing with a great rush, closed the gap and would have been the winner in a few more strides.

Sunador, which had opened up a lead of two lengths going through the back stretch was badly used up racing Changeling down and tired after entering the stretch, but had enough left to hold third from Changeling by a length.

Mettle Wins Again.

The fourth race at a mile for 3 year olds proved an easy victory for H. Dongan's Mettle, which won by three lengths from Towson, with Master Lad, strong favorite, third another length away. Master Lad had been made the choice as the result of his recent victory over Mettle by a head. The winner paid $15.10.

C. Y. O. FIGHTERS WIN TEAM TITLE AT I. A. C. SHOW

The C. Y. O., by winning five individual championships, ran off with the team title in the third annual Illinois Athletic club boxing tournament, which closed last night.

The Savoy A. C. took second honors, with Franklin Park third. Trafton's, Loyola, and the Belgian-American A. C. tied for fourth.

The standout of the night was the one round knockout of Louis Roberts of the C. Y. O. by Johnny Brown of the same group. Brown landed three punches and the fight was stopped. Summaries:

PLAY OFF TIES IN K. OF C. BASKET LEAGUE TONIGHT

Four ties, involving the first round championship and the next six positions in the west division of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league, will be played off tonight at the west side clubhouse, 4711 West Madison street.

Damen and St. Cyr will clash in the title contest, each having gone through the first round with six victories and two defeats. The ties are being played off tonight so that the second round of the split schedule can start Sunday.

Hughes vs. Barry for seventh place.
Hennepin vs. Setters for third place.
Carroll vs. Tonti for fifth place.
Damen vs. St. Cyr for first place.

Sunday's contests will be featured by the appearance of west division teams against south side clubs at White City and south side clubs at the west side clubhouse. All of the quintets have been grouped in an upper and lower division, based on their first round finish, and will start the second round with clean slates.

FORMER HOCKY PLAYER AND REFEREE DIES

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Roger D. Smith, prominent in hocky, baseball, and football circles in Canada, died today after a brief illness. He was 37.

A native of Ottawa, Smith first played hocky in the school leagues and after his return from overseas in 1919 joined the Hamilton Tigers. He was a member of that club when the Tigers won the Allan cup, emblematic of the Canadian amateur championship.

Later he played with the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and turned professional, along with the rest of that team, when the Yellow Jackets became members of the National Hocky league. For the last two years he had been refereeing games in minor leagues.

Irving Park Y. M. C. A. Beats Tonti Quintet, 48-31

The Irving Park Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated Tonti of the Knights of Columbus league, 48 to 31, last night at the Irving Park Y. Hohenhorst collected 11 points for the Y. M. C. A., while Robertson of the same team and Ringhofer of Tonti got 10 apiece.

EASTMAN TELLS PLAN FOR WIDER CARRIER RULE

Urges One Board for All Forms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—With President Roosevelt planning consolidation of federal transportation control under one agency, possibly under a new cabinet member, Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad coördinator, today recommended to congress extension of federal regulation over all forms of land, air, and water trafic.

Government ownership of the railroads, sweeping consolidation into a few rail systems, or extension and tightening of present government controls are the three alternatives open to American railroads, Eastman said in his report to congress. Rejecting the first two possibilities, Eastman said that the only feasible plan is extension of federal control over bus lines, waterways, air lines, and all other modes of transportation.

Second Report by Eastman.

Eastman's report, the second he has submitted as emergency rail coördinator, was the first of a series of reports on transportation problems which President Roosevelt and his New Deal aids plan to lay before congress.

Tomorrow, Mr. Roosevelt announced today, he will transmit to congress a short message and a report on aviation control. Within two weeks he will send another on shipping, he said.

Centralization of federal control over all forms of transportation is the aim of all these reports and messages, the President explained at his semi-weekly press conference. He said that all his advisers had agreed on the general policy of extending control over bus lines, shipping, and aviation. This will be accomplished by a general transportation law to be framed and sent to congress after all the messages are in, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Disagreement Among Advisers.

Disagreement over how the regulatory agency shall be set up still exists among his advisers, however, according to the President. Since the chief executive himself referred to one central agency, the reaction of a new cabinet officer, known as secretary for transportation, was seen as a possibility.

Eastman, in his report today, suggested that the control of all forms of transportation be vested in a revised interstate commerce commission. He proposed that the I. C. C. be increased from 11 to 16 members and then split into a finance division, a railroad division, a water carrier and pipe line division, and a motor and air carrier division.

Wants Chief Coördinator.

In addition, he said one commissioner should be designated as coördinator of transportation to plan improvements and the future development of the nation-wide transportation network. Acting as a czar, the coördinator could, under Eastman's plan, force unification of various transportation facilities. Fines as high as $20,000 could be imposed on any one disobeying his orders.

This organization of the I. C. C. met immediate opposition from the commission itself. In a letter to congress which accompanied Eastman's report the commission said his proposed reorganization was unnecessary.

The Recommendations.

Other specific legislative recommendations which Eastman made in addition to revision of the I. C. C. were:

1. A bill allowing the interstate commerce commission to regulate water carriers, including wharf operators.

2. A bill allowing the I. C. C. to regulate buses, trucks, and all other forms of highway transportation, including freight brokers.

3. A bill to revise provisions of the bankruptcy act relating to railroad reorganizations.

4. Four minor amendments to the present I. C. C. law, the most important of which would allow the I. C. C. to set minimum as well as maximum joint rail-water rates.

5. A bill providing dismissal compensation for railroad workers who are laid off.

SHIPPERS OPPOSE PLAN.

Opposition to transportation regulatory policies advocated by Coördinator Joseph B. Eastman in his report to congress, was expressed by officials of the National Industrial Trafic league here yesterday.

"We are opposed to binding other forms of transportation with the tight chains now wound around the railroads," said Joseph H. Beek, executive secretary. "Although it would be wise to bring about federal regulation of interstate motor vehicle transportation the proper way to achieve balance would be to case up a bit on the railroads. Eastman's proposals would strangle progress in other forms of transportation as effectively as the railroads have been strangled."

Beek said his organization will take immediate steps to plan their opposition, calling special meeting of the membership, if necessary, which has not been done for years.

NO DIVIDENDS FOR OLD STOCK, ARMOUR SAYS

Armour & Co. yesterday issued a statement declaring that directors have no intention of paying up back dividends on the old 7 per cent preferred stock of the company which remains outstanding.

Only 6 per cent of the issue is outstanding, the company said, the balance having been exchanged by holders for new 6 per cent stock under the recapitalization plan approved last year.

Reports that such action was contemplated were inspired by the recent advance in the 7 per cent stock on the stock exchange. The company is currently paying dividends on the new preferred stock.

Soaring Prices Held Inevitable from Inflation

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Prof. Charles J. Bullock of Harvard university, veteran economist and monetary expert, yesterday predicted a tremendous increase in the cost of living when the germ of inflation, which is now in the incubation stage, finally "takes." He spoke at a luncheon of the Bond Men's club of Chicago at the Union League club.

Out of the welter of conflicting influences and monetary experiments, said Dr. Bullock, the "best" that can be hoped for is an ultimate soaring of commodity prices that will probably eclipse even the 150 per cent increase after the world war. This skyrocketing of commodity prices, he said, would cause suffering among salaried employés and wage earners as well as individuals living on the income from fixed interest bearing investments and would after a short lag force interest rates on new bond issues upward and the market value of outstanding bonds downward.

Rails, Utilities to Suffer.

Railroads and utility companies, he said, would encounter increased difficulties because their operating expenses would rise faster than their revenues. Industrial concerns which have more direct control of the selling price of their products, he added, would probably fare better and many would be able to retire indebtedness out of their increased profits.

All this, Dr. Bullock said, represented the "best" that the nation can hope for. He was careful not to call it "prosperity" and he pointed out how a large proportion of the populace would suffer from the vast dislocations precipitated by soaring prices just as so many people have suffered from the declining prices of the depression years.

Then he turned to another possible outcome of the money tangle. The "worst" that could happen, he said, would be a complete collapse of the currency due to printing press money.

Expects Middle Path.

What will ultimately happen, said Dr. Bullock, probably will be somewhere between these two extremes neither as "good" as the somewhat dubious "best" outcome nor as bad as the "worst." But in any event he foresaw the high cost of living bugbear, troubles for investors in bonds and mortgages due to declining purchasing power of their capital, and higher interest rates.

These things, he pointed out, are "down the road." He avoided all temptations to make near term predictions.

Despite the somewhat pessimistic picture which he presented for the investment business Dr. Bullock's audience of 200 bond men, including many prominent Chicago bankers and investment dealers, were visibly impressed by his analysis.

The speaker expressed the opinion that the Supreme court's decision in the "gold clause" cases now under consideration would not result in abandonment of the "59 cent dollar."

Inflation Basis Laid.

"Suppose the court upholds congress' action in abrogating the gold clause in contracts," he said. "Suppose we go along with the 59 cent dollar. Suppose banking laws remain largely unchanged.

"Under those conditions we have in our existing stock of 59 cent dollars the basis for a huge expansion of bank credit as soon as confidence is restored and people are willing to borrow.

"So far we have had little real inflation. We've been promised a bucketful. The federal budget continues unbalanced and bank deposits are thereby being pushed up. Bank credit, however, is no stimulus at all when the patient's disposition is such that he is unwilling to take the medicine. When the patient is ready the basis is already laid for a tremendous inflation.

"Much, of course, depends upon how many 'knockout drops' in the form of other economic experiments by the government the patient may be required to swallow along with the inflation stimulant.

Delay Dulls Public Suspicion.

"People wonder why inflation doesn't 'take.' The delay lulls their suspicions. But the groundwork has been laid and only the touchoff is required.

"Some time, unless the nation goes to smash, people will begin to tap the reservoir of inflated bank credit, and when they do, things will soar."

When this time comes, he said, bond prices will decline and the cost of new money—that is, interest rates—will go up.

"All classes of bonds won't be equally affected," Dr. Bullock said. "The railroad bonds will probably be affected most adversely. The higher cost of living will boost railway wages and increase operating costs, and public commissions will be slow to give the railroads relief in higher rates."

"Utility companies will suffer somewhat less because with such concerns operating expenses do not bulk quite so large as with the railroads, but they will suffer through the increases in the cost of raising new capital.

"Industrial concerns in general will probably suffer least. They will be able to boost the selling prices of their products and the whoopee that accompanies a period of rising commodity prices will balloon profits and enable shrewder ones to retire debts.

See Government Bond Decline.

"Government bonds will tend to decline but they will probably not go down in proportion to the drop in prices of other types of bonds because so many of them are held by banks. Bank examiners will probably not require the banks to write down their bonds to market quotations and that will have a steadying effect on the market.

"It may be some years before these things occur, because it may be that long before confidence returns and people start to borrow. If, in the meantime, the credit base is still further enlarged by government borrowing or other forms of inflation the consequences of the inflation when they finally come will be even more drastic."

P. A. Walters, head of the Bond Men's club, presided at the luncheon. The speaker was introduced by Dr. Walter Lichtenstein, vice president and economist of the First National bank.

MORGAN, AIDS REPORT STOCK CHANGES TO SEC

Tell of Purchases, Sales in December.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. were sellers of stocks of Kennecott corporation, Continental Oil, and Texas Gulf Sulphur, and buyers of General Motors, Pullman, Inc., and Johns-Manville during December, the Securities and Exchange commission revealed today. As directors of these corporations, members of the firm filed notice of their changes of ownership and their holdings at the end of the month.

J. P. MORGAN.

George Whitney bought 400 General Motors, reduced his holdings in Kennecott 1,000 to 800, increased his holdings of Pullman from 16 to 216, reduced Continental Oil stock from 4,200 to 3,400 and Texas Gulf from 280 to 200 shares. He had 2,200 Johns-Manville.

Morgan Buys Pullman.

J. P. Morgan reported purchase of 312½ Pullman and total holdings of 1,937½. Junius S. Morgan bought 200 General Motors, making 2,200; Henry S. Morgan sold 312½ Kennecott, leaving 2,287½.

Thomas S. Lamont sold 250 Continental Oil, leaving 5,701. He held 100 of Texas Gulf Sulphur and 2,090 Phelps Dodge.

Thomas Cochran sold 625 Kennecott, leaving 4,375.

Drexel & Co., Philadelphia house of the Morgan firm, reported it held 13.27 per cent of the outstanding common stock of Sharp and Dohme, Inc. The holdings were 103,103 common and 13,398 shares of the $3.50 convertible preferred. Drexel sold 500 of the preferred in November and December. The Drexel holdings have a curb market value of $1,090,000.

Other Morgan partner stock holdings were:

Report by Barstow.

Francis D. Barstow: American Radiator and Standard Sanitary, 12 common; General Electric company, 1,000 common. He bought 150 Johns-Manville, making 3,150.

Thomas Newall: Baldwin Locomotive, 100 common; Sharp and Dohme, Inc., 2,555 common and 1,215 cumulative convertible preferred.

Charles D. Dickey: Sharpe and Dohme, Inc., 2,976 common and 390 cumulative convertible preferred.

William Ewing: Associated Dry Goods corporation, 100 common.

H. P. Davison bought 2.5 shares of the common of Montgomery Ward and company to make his total holdings 1,002.5 shares, valued at $26,750.

Other Company Reports.

Other company officials' holdings of 5,000 shares or more of registered securities were reported as follows:

Burroughs Adding Machine, Royal S. Mielert, assistant treasurer, 9,013 shares.

Jones and Laughlin Steel, William L. Jones Jr., director, 47 shares of 7 per cent preferred, 4,739 common, beneficial interest in 10,246 of 7 per cent preferred, held jointly with wife; 6,000 of 7 per cent preferred and 11,149 common.

National Steel, Charles M. Thorpe, director, 14,800.

AUTO CODE ENDS TONIGHT; SILENCE SHROUDS PLANS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The time for renewal, revision, or expiration of the automobile code neared tonight with both the White House and others vitally concerned refusing to disclose their intentions. The code expires tomorrow, midnight, unless it is renewed. The President conferred today with Leo Wolman, head of the automobile industrial relations board, but there was no comment afterwards.

About the only tangible factor was NRA's report on stabilization of employment and production in the industry.

Organized labor has strongly objected to its automatic renewal. The agreement contains a merit clause which says in effect that employers may hire and fire workers without regard to union affiliations. The auto code is the only one which contains such a provision and labor contends it conflicts with section 7-A of the industrial recovery act which sets forth labor's right to bargain collectively.

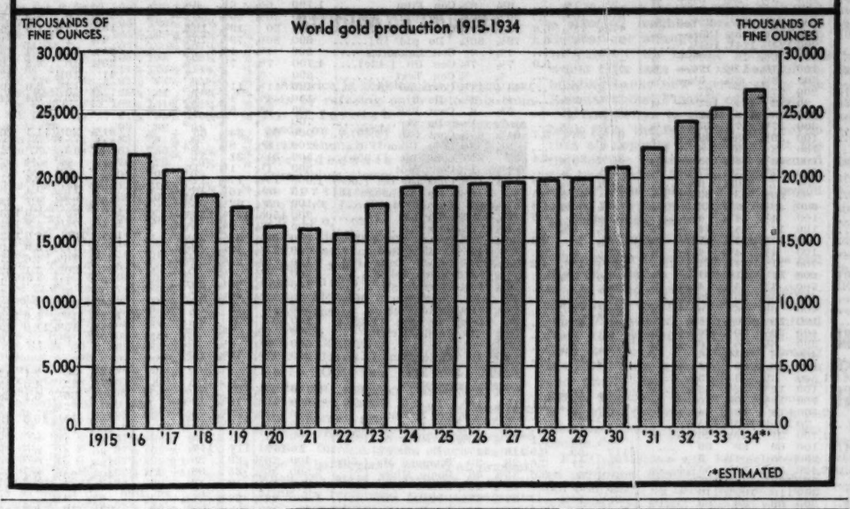
World Production of Gold Was at a High Point Last Year



Steel Output Soars to 56%; up 4.5 Points

National steel ingot output last week soared 4½ points to 56 per cent of production capacity, continuing an upward trend that has been interrupted only once since its beginning in September, says Iron Age. Operations in Chicago gained 8 points to 67 per cent of capacity. A year ago operations of the industry as a whole were 35 per cent of capacity, with Chicago mills operating at 30½ per cent.

After remaining stationary for three weeks the price of scrap, measured by the Iron Age index, has dropped 16 cents to $12.17 a gross ton, with recessions at Pittsburgh and Chicago contributing to the decline. This is the first loss the index has shown since last September.

The downturn in scrap prices is partly due to blast furnace resumptions, an increased flow of scrap from the country and heavier industrial production of old material, the journal says.

Early Recession Unlikely.

"There is yet little disposition to look for an early recession in steel works operations," the review states, "although it is conceded that further gains may not carry output more than 5 or 10 points higher. This year there has been much less speculative buying of iron and steel than a year ago. Moreover, automobile makers, the farm equipment industry, and various miscellaneous lines of manufacture are apparently headed for the highest operations in four or five years."

Motor car assemblies for January will total from 275,000 to 300,000 units, the magazine asserts, while the total for February is expected to approach 400,000 units.

"Detroit district offices of sheet and strip mills have accumulated the largest January bookings in five years," the review continues. "Releases of cold rolled sheets have been so heavy that some mills are engaged at full capacity. Average operations of sheet and strip mills and tin plate plants are now fully 65 per cent of capacity."

Most Districts Have Gains.

All districts reported gains or held at present high levels last week. At Pittsburgh there was a rise of 6 points to 42 per cent; Buffalo was up 3 points to 46; Philadelphia 1 to 36; Detroit 24 to 100, and the south 4 to 29 per cent. The rate was unchanged at 95 per cent in the Wheeling district, 63 in the valleys and 67 in the Cleveland-Lorain area.

New York Rejects Utility's Offer to Cut Electric Rate

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The New York public service commission today rejected an offer of the Consolidated Gas company to make an immediate cut of approximately 6 per cent in electricity rates in New York City and Westchester county. The commission thus aligned itself with Mayor F. H. La Guardia who has been demanding that the company cut rates 20 per cent.

OUTLAW GOLD CLAUSE IN NEBRASKA; FIRST STATE TO TAKE ACTION

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Nebraska today invalidated gold clauses in both public and private contracts by outlawing them as usury. It was the first state to ban such clauses. The legislation was recommended by Gov. R. L. Cochran soon after he became the state's chief executive Jan. 3. It will go to the governor tomorrow for his signature.

Any provision of a contract which would require repayment of principal in more dollars than specified in the original agreement is declared usury by the measure.

Representative Fred A. Wachtler Democrat of Omaha, one of the opponents of the bill, protested its passage before the Supreme court rules on the gold case. Other legislators said the act was intended to circumvent a possible court decision holding abrogation of gold clauses invalid. Only one other vote was cast against the bill, by a Republican, Representative John Bishop of Lincoln. Democrats have a two-thirds majority in both houses of the legislature.

The bill voids gold clauses and provides for payment of debts "in any lawful money of the United States with the same number of dollars" as a person contracted to pay plus legal interest.

Food Price Index Holds Steady at $2.67 for Week

New York, Jan. 30.—Dun & Bradstreet's weekly food index remained unchanged at $2.67 for the period ending Jan. 29 following the sharp upturn of the preceding week. On the same date last year the index stood at $2.03. The tabulation of wholesale prices by the agency shows 14 advances last week against 30 the week before. Declines numbered 41 against 21.

59 Cent Dollar Year Old; Still 'Uncertain'

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—At 3:10 tomorrow afternoon the dollar will have completed one year at its new gold parity of 15 5-21 grains, 9-10 fine, which is equal to 59.06 per cent of its old parity of 25 8-10 grains of the same fineness.

In that period the exchange has fluctuated, in terms of the gold franc, from a low of 58.49 per cent of its old parity to a high of 63.55 per cent. The range in percentage of new parity has been from 107.6 cents on Feb. 5, 1934, to 99.04 cents on April 21, 1934.

The dollar has been kept down thus close to its new value only by the importation of huge amounts of gold from abroad.

The monetary gold stocks of the country, which amounted just prior to devaluation a year ago to $4,033,000,000, after deducting $287,000,000 of gold coin nominally in circulation, have advanced to $8,308,000,000 as of last Wednesday. The gain consists of $2,806,000,000 "profit" from revaluation and $1,469,000,000 from imports of foreign gold, releases of gold previously earmarked for foreign account and purchases of newly-mined gold.

The anniversary finds the dollar once more an object of uncertainty with fluctuations in its foreign exchange value wider than at any time since immediately after the presidential proclamation fixing its new parity.

The dollar closed slightly stronger against leading foreign moneys today. Sterling was ⅜ cent lower at $4.87⅛ and French francs eased ⅝ point to 6.55 cents.

At the closing price of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0127, compared with $1.0118 yesterday. The gold value of the dollar, based on francs, was 59.81 cents, compared with 59.76 cents yesterday and par of 59.06.

Wallace Calls Gold Policy Only Stop Gap

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Administration spokesmen called for an end to "stop-gap" trade expedients today and for the creation of an international board which would divide up world markets among producing nations.

Secretary Wallace told the senate agriculture committee during a conference to consider methods of regaining world trade that the country had reached the end of the period when the trade could be continued by "stop-gap" expedients. He called the gold policy such an expedient.

From the head of the commerce department, Secretary Roper, came a recommendation that an international board be set up with power to allocate markets and compel member nations to stick by their quotas. He mentioned cotton in particular.

Urges U. S. to Buy More.

Wallace said to increase exports, the United States must buy more from foreign countries, must use foreign shipping lines more, or must send more tourists to Europe. He insisted the United States must buy from foreign nations if it expected them to have money to buy from this country.

While the committee was discussing the question, several other governmental agencies were pondering general trade plans, and particularly arrangements by which the cotton export market might be broadened.

The state department already has made overtures to Great Britain suggesting an international cotton agreement. The executive policy committee and George N. Peek as special adviser to the President on foreign trade have been studying varying angles of the cotton export situation. Efforts have been made to stimulate the sale of the staple abroad through reciprocal trade agreements now being negotiated.

Plan Experiment On Cotton.

Roper suggested that the international quota plan be adapted to all products but that it first be tried out on cotton. He said the first step of such an international trade agency should be to ascertain in advance of plantings how much cotton would be needed, divide this amount among the producing nations and require them to grow no more.

"Why not try some such plan?" he asked. "In the present situation, with this country in a position to produce more and better cotton than any other in the world, its markets could be maintained and expensive competition by other countries avoided.

"I do not believe other countries desire to enter into ruinous world competition with the United States in a trade where we today have all of the natural advantages."

U. S. May Extend Credits to Brazil in Tarif Deal

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Desirability of an extension of credits to Brazil to buttress her exchange position after a reciprocal tarif treaty is signed with the United States was said to have been intimated in general terms during a conversation today by Ambassador Aranha of Brazil with state department officials. No sum was mentioned. It was said intimations were made that Brazil might consider restricting her cotton production and export trade in that commodity, since she has been absorbing some of that commerce we formerly enjoyed before our crop reduction program was put into effect.

BANK BILL SETS 40 MILLION TAX ON ALL DEPOSITS

Centralizes Rule of Reserve System.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—A tax of 40 million dollars a year to support the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation will be levied on the banks of the country by the administration's banking bill, which will go to congress next week. This was learned today in high official circles as the final work was done on the draft of the bill.

J. F. T. O'CONNOR. [Acme Photo.]

Virtual transformation of the federal reserve system into a central bank is also contemplated by the bill. This will be accomplished by consolidating the positions of federal reserve governor and chairmen of each of the twelve banks, giving the reserve board power to confirm or reject this key officer, and transferring the open market credit controls from the reserve banks to the government-dominated reserve board.

"Premium" on Deposits.

The tax to support the FDIC will be in the form of a yearly insurance "premium" on the deposits in every insured bank. The rate of the premium has not been settled, but it probably will be about one-tenth or one-twelfth of one per cent of the total deposits in an insured bank, it is said. The original suggestion of one-eighth of one per cent is now regarded as too high.

About 40 million dollars a year would flow into the FDIC through such a levy, officials estimated. This money would be stored up in a reserve out of which the FDIC would pay off losses in closed banks or would rebuild, merge, or buy out weak banks.

Large banks, notably those in New York, are complaining about the fact that the levy will be on all deposits regardless of the amount insured. They believe the premium should be measured by the insured deposits.

Besides this annual levy, the FDIC is asking for broad powers to regulate banks in the insurance fund on the theory that such controls are necessary to prevent weak banks from undermining the solvency of deposit insurance.

Some of Powers Asked.

Among such powers which will be included in the administration bank bill are:

1. Authority to lay down requirements as to capital, economic justification, and similar standards for any newly chartered bank which wishes to enter the FDIC. This would allow the

STOCK TRADING DULLEST SINCE EARLY IN FALL

But Prices Hold Fairly Steady Level.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 30.—Trading in stocks fell to an extremely low level today. The ticker loafed whole minutes between sales and many ordinarily active stocks did not appear on the tape at all. Volume slumped to 427,540 shares, making it the dullest day since early last fall.

Traders favoring the constructive side found small comfort in the fact that the steady flow of liquidation which has been depressing values for several days tended to dry up with the further shrinkage in volume. This enabled the list to maintain a fairly even keel.

Anxious About Gold Ruling.

Interest continued to center in Washington with the pending gold clause decision as the main subject of boardroom discussion. In some quarters talk was heard of a possible suspension of operations on the exchange the day the decision is announced—if it should prove to be unfavorable to the government. One report had it that exchange authorities had given some consideration to such a suggestion, but inquiry brought forth nothing official either in verification or denial.

Railroad shares were put in a better light by Coördinator Eastman's plan to unify regulation of transportation. Belief that the administration's report on aviation, expected tomorrow, will carry recommendations favorable to that industry brought an occasional buying order into the airplane group. Brokers heard that a new system of paying for mail transportation would be among the suggestions, and hopes were expressed that the program also will include the construction of several thousand planes.

U. S. Steel Is Strong.

Among the stock group leaders U. S. Steel gave the market a heartening example by forging ahead the better part of a point despite the large deficit reported by the corporation for the last year. Most of the other standard industrial issues managed to keep afloat most of the time. Case Threshing Machine spurted nearly two points and American Tobacco B edged ahead half as far.

The preferred share division generally found bids irregular. Losses of 3 to 4 points were suffered by American Steel Foundries, New York Steam, and Norwalk Tire. Bon Ami A stock dropped $5 a share. In contrast with these displays of weakness, however, gains of 2 and 3 points were registered by the senior stocks of National Lead and Loose Wiles.

Metal issues, principally those allied with the gold and silver industry, rallied moderately in response to the action of the foreign exchanges.

CENTRAL STOCK DEPOSITORY PLAN STUDIED IN N. Y.

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Wall street's million dollar bond robbery of Monday has stirred brokerage houses to reconsider the plan for establishing a central depository for securities. It was learned today a report is awaiting action by a committee of the New York Stock exchange.

It has been proposed for over ten years that the exchange set up a central depository which would act as custodian of active stocks. Transfers between brokers on behalf of their customers under the plan would be accomplished by security checks and would involve no physical transfer unless demanded by the owners. In addition to lessening the possibility of security thefts such as Monday's robbery of $1,462,000 of securities owned by the Bank of Manhattan company, it is said the cost of transfer would be greatly reduced.

Brokers have been unwilling to consider the depository because of the expense entailed. It has been suggested that corporations whose securities are traded on the exchange might be willing to finance the central depository with the funds saved in elimination of their own transfer branches. An objection to this, however, is that many workers would be thrown out of employment.

Paramount Bondholders 'Ask Speedy Reorganization

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Action on the proposed reorganization plan for Paramount-Publix corporation should be taken without delay, Saul Rogers, counsel for Paramount-Publix bondholders, declared today in federal court. Rival companies are filching stars and directors from Paramount, the sales force is handicapped, and British motion picture companies are threatening its business, he said.

WHEAT AND CORN PRICES ADVANCE CENT A BUSHEL

Corn Leads Upturn; Light Trading Volume.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wheat and corn prices rose about a cent a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. The advance was of that type which brokers customarily describe, somewhat ambiguously, as a "technical" movement. The term enjoys liberal usage when the causes of the market action are not readily apparent as was the case yesterday.

The advance yesterday came in the wake of several days of persistent selling that has brought about steady declines in prices. Volume of trading was extremely light, as it has been for several days, and the buoyancy of prices suggested that liquidation that has been washing down values for several days has been fairly well spent.

Cash grain merchants were also reputedly in the corn market on the buying side which was credited with contributing to higher prices.

Inflation Talk Aids Rise.

Toward the close reports from Washington said one or two more "inflationary" measures had been offered to congress. Talk of inflation is one of the sure fire buying incentives in the grain market and it apparently helped along the cause of higher prices yesterday.

Corn futures showed relatively greater strength than wheat. The advances in corn ranged from 1⅛ cents to 1⅝ cents a bushel while wheat quotations were pushed up ⅞ cent to 1¼ cents a bushel. Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Tuesday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$0.96¼	$0.95½	$0.97
Corn	.83⅝	.82⅛	.84⅝
Oats	.40½	.40⅞	.51½
Rye	.66	.66	.67½

Closing quotations were the best prices of the day. A leading grain commission firm declared a good share of the buying which came into the wheat pit represented short covering by professional traders who have been selling wheat futures for several days in the expectation that the market was approaching a heavy liquidating period.

Mills Buy Modest Amounts.

Millers were said to be buying wheat in moderate amounts but current sales of flour, on which such purchases depend, are slow. Flour buyers, like speculators, are apparently awaiting the outcome of the gold clause case before making future commitments at prices which might conceivably be radically adjusted through a decision on the case.

Uneasiness over the Canadian wheat situation appears to have subsided for the time being but the big wheat surplus which is piled up in that country will remain an important factor until it is liquidated to normal size.

Wheat prices in Winnipeg yesterday were a trifle higher, but speculators in this market are inclined to dismiss minor fluctuations there as lacking significance because of the corner which the government pool has.

TOP STEERS SOAR TO $13.65; BEST SINCE EARLY '31

A sharp rise in cattle prices to new highs featured the live stock market yesterday. Top steers jumped 65 cents per hundred pounds to $13.65, the highest mark since Jan. 8, 1931. Advances of 25 to 50 cents were general, all classes of steers sharing in the upturn. Biggest gains were made in the better grades of beef stock.

Bulk of the crop brought $8.00 to $13.00, with the general average for the day standing at $10.50, about double the average at the low last year. Yesterday's abrupt increase was attributed to the heavy drop in receipts.

Most plain grades of cows and hefers closed about steady with the average of Tuesday. A new top of $11.75 was reached on hefers.

Hogs were extremely erratic. Stock weighing 180 pounds and heavier ruled steady to 10 cents higher, while underweights and pigs slumped 25 to 50 cents, closing at the low time of the day. Fresh receipts were augmented by a liberal holdover of underweights.

Lambs ruled steady to 25 cents lower in late dealings, with spots off 50 cents in the plainer classes. The spread in prices widened sharply when top grades held steady at $9.10.

Approximately 5,000 pigs remained unsold yesterday. Prime medium and weighty butchers held steady at $10.15, processing tax included, while the general average at $9.95, exclusive of pigs, was unchanged.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per hundredweight collected by the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are per 100 pounds of live animal:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 30.—A weakening of confidence in first grade bonds at their current high prices was observed in the market today. This was not translated into liberal offerings, but rather was demonstrated by the reluctance of investors to make further commitments. The market is feeling the restraining influence of the impending Supreme court decision on gold.

What happened in the treasury list today is fairly typical of all high grade bonds. The turnover in this group was smaller than usual, but the withdrawal of buying orders made it difficult for the market to absorb small offerings except at a sacrifice. Treasury 3s of 1948 and the 3¼s of 1952 and of 1949 were heavier than the average.

Municipals Easier.

Coincident with the heaviness of treasury bonds the market for some municipals showed the first signs of weakness in many days. New York City issues were heavy, some declining half a point.

Exceptions to the trend toward slightly lower prices for high grade bonds were not lacking. Neither was the market for second grade and speculative issues devoid of its strong spots. Gains of a point or more were recorded in Alleghany 5s of 1949, Milwaukee 5s of 1975, Chicago and North Western general 3½s, Federal Light and Traction 5s and 6s and Utilities Power and Light 5s.

No Real Liquidation.

A much larger number of low grade bonds recorded declines of one to two points, but without evidence of real liquidation.

A brisk rise in Chilean bonds ranging from small fractions to more than 2 points reflected the progress of the bill in the Chilean senate which would permit a resumption of payments on Chile's external debt. Other Latin American loans showed generally minor price changes. In the European group, German loans were irregularly higher.

Belding Heminway.

Investors' Guide: Will you please inform me as to Belding Heminway? Thank you very much.—C. A. W.

Answer: Belding Heminway company manufactures about half the silk spool thread produced in this country. This accounts for about 50 per cent of its business. The remainder comes from distribution of silk fabrics and hosiery which it purchases from outside sources.

In March, 1932, new management took control after a period of four years' losses. Policies were realigned, production was revamped and numerous operating economies were instituted. As a result, loss in 1932 was one-sixth of that reported in 1931, while a profit was reported for 1933.

Net income for the first nine months of 1934, before federal taxes, was $374,000, or 80 cents a share, against net of $377,000, or 81 cents a share, for the corresponding 1933 period.

Net income in 1933 was $491,000, or $1.06 per share, against losses of $152,000 for 1932, $972,000 for 1931, $1,541,000 for 1930 and $164,000 for 1929.

Current assets on Sept. 30, 1934, totaled $3,010,000, and current liabilities were $410,000.

Capitalization consists of 465,032 shares of no par stock. A dividend of 50 cents a share, the first since May, 1928, was paid Oct. 31, 1934. Directors announced that subsequent dividends would be considered semi-annually.

New York Power and Light.

Investors' Guide: I'd appreciate information on New York Power and Light 4½s, due 1967.—V. D. F.

Answer: New York Power and Light corporation is a unit in the Niagara Hudson Power system. It operates in the Mohawk and upper Hudson river valleys, supplying electricity and gas to an important agricultural territory.

Gross revenues have held up well during the last five years, but higher fixed charges and increased costs have cut into the margin of coverage. The company covered fixed charges 1.61 times during the twelve months to Sept. 30, 1934. Although this was substantial, it did not compare favorably with the coverage of 1.75 times in 1933, 2.07 times in 1932 and 2.29 times in 1931.

The company operates in a rich territory which has an excellent prospect for expansion, but the tax situation and the future of rate schedules do not appear promising. Rate reductions involving $820,000 a year have been made in the last twelve months.

The first 4½s, due 1967, are a business man's investment.

MEN

DO YOU BELIEVE IF GIVEN A CHANCE YOU COULD SUCCESSFULLY OPERATE YOUR OWN BUSINESS? ARE YOU INDUSTRIOUS ENOUGH TO WORK 8 HOURS A DAY WITH THE OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE $5,000 A YEAR? IF YOU CAN SINCERELY SAY YES TO THE ABOVE QUESTION, MAKE A PERSONAL INVESTIGATION THURSDAY OF A COMPANY AND ITS PRODUCTS THAT IS ESTABLISHING MEN IN CHICAGO AND THE WEST.

Here in Chicago we have men representing this company who are in their own business, financed by us and many are earning a percentage of from $35 a week to as high as $916 in four weeks.

Our products are patented and come close to selling themselves. Our electrical hygiene unit is by far the most outstanding—however, we sell air-conditioning, concealed heating, electric mixers, etc.

Our company is rated in millions and operates all over the world and has grown by leaps and bounds because of its unique method of distribution, extremely profitable to our dealers and leaving almost no resistance to the sale.

The men we desire to interview do not have to be business men or salesmen. Our only requirement is good appearance, sincerity and a willingness to work hard and learn.

Our expansion program will create business opportunities for a few men this week. We have nothing to sell you—you can't invest anything but your time and we want you to know straight from the shoulder that we feel you will consider our business the most outstanding opportunity you have ever investigated. Apply

THURSDAY ONLY, 10 A. M. OR 2:30 P. M. No other time.
